County Revision In State Aid Means $450,000 Loss

Cook County's proposed revision of the state aid formula will mean a $450,000 loss to Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, said Marvin Lapicola, business manager.

"If the suit filed by Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton against Gov. Richard Ogilvie for intentional fraudulent and illegal computation of the state multiplier used in Cook County assessments is won, we lose," Lapicola said.

He explained Cook County's equalization factor of 1.59 is higher than the 1.43 downstate equalization factor. "If the courts rule that the factor should be 1.43 throughout the state Dist. 54 would probably lose $29 million in equalized assessed valuation," he said.

"THIS LOSS OF equalized valuation means we will get about $250,000 more in state aid."

"However the loss of equalized assessed valuation also means this district would definitely lose about $700,000 of income through taxes," Lapicola said. "What happens is we get $250,000 more, they take away $700,000 and we end up with a $450,000 loss," he said.

State aid distribution is set by a formula based in part on a school district's wealth or assessed valuation of property. In order to compensate for discrepancies in county assessment practices, the formula includes an equalizer. The equalizer multiplied by the assessments sets an equalized assessed valuation used in state aid computation.

Lapicola added equalized assessment figures are used not only to compute state aid but also a district's tax collection and bonding power. If the equalizer were dropped the district's power to sell bonds or borrow money decreases.

"We agree that a better method of assessment and taxation must be found but it's got to be through legislation not backtracking through law suits," said Lapicola.

Convention With Conservative Flavor

by BOB LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — If there is a typical delegate at this gathering of the Republican Party, it might well be Bernard Pedersen, GOP committeeman of Palatine Township.

Pedersen describes himself without apology as a conservative — a label that for some years during the days of civil rights demonstrations and Kennedy Camelot took on a somewhat derogatory connotation — and he appears very much in tune with the majority sentiment of his party's 1972 convention.

The conservative flavor of this convention, and of the Illinois delegation, was clearly in evidence Tuesday when a liberally oriented plan for future selection of delegates to the convention was soundly defeated.

Pedersen was among the 50 Illinois delegates who voted against a plan that many observers viewed as a vehicle that would aid Sen. Charles H. Percy in a 1976 bid for the presidential nomination.

Percy was able to attract only eight votes from the Illinois delegation for a plan that would have favored his state and other large industrial states at the expense of the smaller, rural states of the Southern and Western areas of the nation.

PEDERSEN EXPLAINED the sentiment behind the vote that defeated the Percy plan:

"The Eastern states of the country controlled the selection of presidential candidates until 1960, and there is considerable feeling among the delegates that the Eastern states are trying to get their control back."

Pedersen recalled the 1952 convention in which the Midwestern and Western states were strongly in favor of the nomination of Ohio Sen. Robert A. Taft, but were unable to overcome sentiment of the so-called Eastern Establishment for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

There is considerable sentiment here, as expressed from the convention podium by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, that the smaller states be granted a certain minimum representation and that the population base embodied in the Percy plan not be made absolute.

As Pedersen explained it, "I don't believe that the Constitution originally was emphatically designed to adhere to the one-man, one-vote philosophy."

Pedersen shares the view, which appears dominant here, that regional interests have at least as much right to influence in the selection of the presidential nominee as do the personal sentiments of the delegates.

Correction

For the past week, the Herald has mistakenly reported that the Powers Construction Co. of Elmhurst was charged with criminal management of property in connection with the rental of a farmhouse and several other buildings on west Bode Road in Hoffman Estates to a large family.

The charges were made against the Tower Construction Co., 5309 W. Touhy Ave., Skokie. The firm is the builder of the Interlude Apartments, 800 Bode Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Powers Construction Co. is not connected with the project or the rental property in any way.

The Herald regrets the error.

MSD Sues To Halt Lake Water Usage

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court to prevent the diversion of drinking water from Lake Michigan to Northwest suburban communities.

The suit, filed Tuesday, seeks an injunction, a declaratory judgment and an administrative review of the allocation of lake water made July 21 by the state.

The mere filing of the suit can endanger the efforts of the local communities — Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine — to develop a new source of drinking water, according to Robert Teepe, chairman of DAMP.

DAMP is the water commission serving the four communities. Also affected by the lawsuit are Elmhurst, Villa Park, and Lombard, which make up the Tree Towns Water Commission. DAMP and Tree Towns tentatively have agreed to cooperate in the multi-million-dollar water diversion project.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the MSD said yesterday the district feels the state's allocation of water is in conflict with a U.S. Supreme Court order of 1967.

At that time the high court ruled against six states and gave Illinois permission to divert a total of 3,200 cubic feet per second (cfps) from the lake. The court designated the state Department of Transportation the responsibility of allocating that water equitably.

MSD Pres. John Egan said yesterday he believes the state agency, through its Division of Waterways, "acted arbitrarily and capriciously in making the allocation."

The state has allocated 34.8 cfps to DAMP for 1975, with an increase to 42.5 by 1980. Tree towns was granted 56 cfps for 1975 and 70.8 for 1980.

Of the maximum allowable diversion of 3,200 cfps for the entire state, the MSD currently is diverting about 1,100, which are used primarily to "flush" sewage down the Chicago River.

THE MSD FEELS the allocations to the seven communities is improper be-

Expensive Road Of Living In Northwest Area

Suburbs No Haven For The Elderly

by MARY HUTCHINGS

Growing old, men wear the bottoms of their trousers rolled, and tread lightly over the expensive road of living in the Northwest suburban area.

In a suburb where "children under 12 are admitted free," senior citizens who live alone often find it hard to make ends meet.

Senior citizens in other metropolitan areas sometimes are the special customers of merchants who offer discounts on drugs, cosmetics, haircuts, transportation services, food and clothing bills as well as entertainment.

While Store Mgr. Nick Flocco of Snyder Drugs in the Golf-Rose Shopping Center says, "this isn't exactly geriatric haven," he touches on two of the problems of being over 65 in a suburb geared to the under-25 set.

BECAUSE THE 1970 census lists only 666 persons in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg over 65, their presence is obscured and often ignored. There are very few discounts available to them, and without a bus system, transportation is difficult at best.

A haven the area is not, but at least two discounts are available from local entrepreneurs — the Schaumburg Village Cab Co. and Woodfield Theater.

"If a senior citizen asks for a discount, we usually offer 10 per cent on short orders and 15 per cent on rides of about $4," said Mrs. Mickey Mandel of Schaumburg Cab. The company also gives discounts on steady and group orders.

Matinees are open to the medi-care set until 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday for $1 instead of the usual $2 at the Woodfield Theater.

No area drug stores, however, have special programs for the elderly. "If there were a large group of senior citizens out here — say 300 or so — we might consider it, because it would open up another market area," said Cliff Skarr of Town Square Pharmacy, Schaumburg. He did not realize the number of senior citizens is twice 300 and more. Since most of the older folks in the area live with their children, Skarr said, the bills are paid by the younger clientele.

"The elderly can't afford to live here on social security checks," he adds.

MRS. WILLIAM PETERS said that though her husband has a job several days a week, "It's kind of hard to manage everything. Everything is so high. Even if you have a little saving, it all goes."

Mrs. Myrtle Anderson, 75, of Hoffman Estates, sees the problem in another way. She said most of her widow friends "have no insurance, since they got married and kept house."

An apartment of her own in Hoffman Estates is a luxury for Mrs. Mary Johnson, who moved here from Brooklyn to be near her son. She realizes, however, that "most individuals can't afford to maintain their own home or apartment."

She would like to see drug stores offer discounts, since she said, "almost everybody I know uses medication of some

by WANDALYN RICE

As the meeting of High School Dist. 211 teachers broke up Tuesday night, one official of the teachers' bargaining association looked at a companion and said, "I underestimated the membership. I really didn't expect this tonight."

The sentiment was repeated over and over by association officials as the teachers left after giving their bargainers overwhelming support in their contract dispute with the district's board of education.

"I really thought we were beating our heads against the wall with no support," Association Pres. Doug Verdonck, said. "I don't quite believe this."

The teachers, 235 of the 380 association members in the district, had braved the unair-conditioned meeting room at the Palatine Fire Hall to demonstrate their desire to have guarantees on "working conditions" placed in their 1972-73 contract.

THE NEGOTIATING team for the Dist. 211 Education Association has been bargaining with the board for five months without reaching any agreements. The major issue has been association demands that guarantees on class size, teacher evaluation and assignments, curriculum planning and other "working conditions" be included in the new contract.

As the meeting started, members of the bargaining team began methodically explaining the process that had led them to the meeting.

"Last fall we sent you a questionnaire to determine your priorities," Ron Avery, head of the negotiations team, said. "The top 15 items included assignments, class size, curriculum planning and elimination of noninstructional assignments. These are the things you asked us to negotiate and these are the very things we are hung up on at this moment."

The board, Avery charged, has refused for the past several years to discuss working conditions and is now offering to set up joint administration-association committees to study problems brought up in the talks.

"The way they take care of working conditions is to have us study them," Avery continued. "We think it's a good idea to work things out in committees, but we want some of these things in the contract."

DAVID TOMCHEK, local representative of the Illinois Education Association (IEA), and Joe Pasteris, IEA state president, also were on hand. Tomchek urged the group to hold out for guarantees on working conditions in contract language because it would be legally binding on the board.

"I was talking the other day to the representatives of the custodians in Dist. 211. The board of education has apparently seen fit to enter into negotiations on working conditions with the custodians this year, but not with the teachers," he said.

Pasteris, a burly man from DeKalb, assured the teachers they were not alone. "I was in Elgin with their teachers last night," he said. "And this is like an instant replay even though they have a better contract than you have."

He added, "What you are asking for are definitely items that affect the quality of education. We're faced with two alternatives in a situation like we have here. Either you take what is offered or you do something about it. That's a decision you have to make and no one else can make it for you."

FOLLOWING THE speeches, the teachers set about deciding whether to take the board's offer or "do something." One asked, "Why do we distrust the board? Their policy has worked well." The statement was greeted with loud groans.

The division in the hall became clear when John Carlson, a teacher from Palatine High School spoke. "I'm concerned about working conditions, but maybe we're cutting ourselves off if we say we want it in the contract or nothing," he said. "We have to ask the question of whether we have faith in the board."

The statement drew a smattering of applause, but the majority was clearly not willing to trust the board.

The split held up as the voting began. No dissent was heard to a motion to support the negotiating team. A gray-haired teacher stood up and said, "I've been teaching for 22 years. I love this profession and I have complete confidence in the men on the rostrum to negotiate for us."

SILENCE FELL over the room moments later, however, when Lowell Johnson, a teacher from Fremd High School and member of the association's executive board, offered his motion.

"I move," Johnson said, "that we withdraw our services from Dist. 211 on Aug. 25 and not restore them until the negotiations committee feels they can reach a tentative agreement with the board."

Tension filled the room. The motion meant a strike.

A second motion was quickly made to table the move to strike "for the time being." With relief, the teachers passed it quickly. They were not yet ready to strike.

THE MEETING quickly bogged down in parliamentary procedures. Motions and counter-motions flew around the hall. Tempers flared.

The group voted to accept guarantees on working conditions "only in contract language." Someone protested that the word "only" made the position a "non-negotiable" demand. A motion to soften the language failed.

"We've got to go to the board full guns and then if we still can't negotiate we can decide whether we want to strike," one teacher argued during the discussion of whether to include "only" on the motion on working conditions.

Bargaining team member George Stewart stepped forward. "I think people are getting scared that if we take a stand it will mean a strike," he said. "There are a lot of things we can do without striking — use your imagination." The crowd laughed.

Finally teacher Bill Patterson, chairman of the association crisis committee, handed out questionnaires asking the teachers if they would be willing to hold "coffees to explain issues, picket or hand out flyers. What lengths are you willing to go to to support the negotiations team?" he asked.

THE TEACHERS wrote busily, filling the back of the questionnaires with comments and specific complaints against board policy.

Finally, as they prepared to go home, Patterson asked the teachers to attend another meeting. "We want a very large number of people to attend the school board meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday," he said. "I think if we can get a lot of people there, it will add weight to what the negotiation team says."

Large numbers nodded in agreement.

Seger Mum On Teacher Vote

Robert Seger, chairman of the High School Dist. 211 board negotiating team, said yesterday he could not react to the teachers' vote to support their negotiators until he could talk to the whole board.

Seger said he expects the board to discuss all developments in negotiations in a closed session at its regular meeting today at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

At the meeting, the board will also take up a long routine agenda which includes discussion of the tax levy for the coming year, increases in student lunch prices and a proposal to change the grading system in the district's music classes.

Also today, the district's four schools will be open to allow teachers to prepare for the official opening of school. District officials said that although teachers are not required to be in school today, 75 to 80 per cent of the teachers have been on hand in past years the day before school opens.

Friday will be the first official day of work for the teachers. Students are scheduled to return to classes for the year on Monday.

CHECKING TIMES AFTER a trial or this weekend's Schaumburg Jaycees swim meet are competitors Terri Brandenburg (sitting) and Chris Lau. Mee director Bob Skupien is recording practice times for the second annual meet.

2nd Jaycee Swim Meet Is Saturday

Several hundred swimmers will be hitting the water Saturday in hopes of winning awards and ribbons in the Schaumburg Jaycees' second annual swim meet at 10 a.m. at the Atcher Pool, 700 S. Springinsguth Rd.

Sixty individual and relay events are planned for the meet which is open to youngsters of all ages. Ribbons will be awarded to winners finishing in first through fifth places.

Registration for the event may be made by contacting Bob Skupien at 529-6594.

Swimmers may compete in the 25-yard free-style, back stroke, breast stroke, and butterfly events. Two different age groups, for eight-year-olds and younger and nine and older, will be offered.

The same events will be offered at 50-yard distances for 11 through 14-year-olds. Open swimming competition at 100 yards will also be offered.

Competitors will not be allowed to enter more than two events, exclusive of relays. They must also compete in their own age groups.

MSD Sues To Halt Use Of Lake Michigan Water

cause it diminishes the amount of water the district is allowed to divert.

Egan criticized the allocations on the ground that the communities will not make use of the water until after 1975. He added, "It creates an added burden for the district's water pollution abatement program, which is second to none."

Vincent Flood, attorney for the MSD, admitted the use of lake water for drinking purposes "is a higher use" than that of the MSD, but said, "Our allocation would be reduced without the communities using the allocations for a long period of time."

However, according to an allocation schedule released in July by the state, the MSD's allocation will remain at 1,100 cfps until 1980, when it will be allowed 1,000 cfps.

John Guillou, chief engineer for the division of waterways, has stated previously that the MSD should seek other methods of satisfying the oxygen needs to prevent water pollution from sewage. He has maintained that by 1980 the MSD should not need as much water.

Egan said the legal action could hold up the efforts of D A M P and Tree towns, even if the court eventually rules against the MSD. He explained that with the allocation in question, the two water commissions may have difficulty in obtaining interim financing for detailed engineering drawings and that they could not attempt to sell bonds with the suit pending.

Community Council Funds Go To 'Y'

The remaining bankroll of the now-defunct Community Council of Schaumburg Township will be donated to the Twinbrook YMCA, past president Sig Thorsen announced recently.

The Community Council operated for a year and a half almost 10 years ago and was instrumental in establishing the United Fund here.

Its members were representatives of social and civic organizations. Marilyn Adams of Schaumburg and Thorsen are the only members of the original 30 now living in the area, and were the only ones authorized to sign checks, Thorsen said.

The check for $91.74 will be given to director Bob Williams for use in the community, Thorsen said.

Addison Man Seized In Wild Chase

An Addison man was being held by Hoffman Estates police yesterday on charges for nearly a dozen traffic violations, possession of marijuana and aggravated assault after police from three communities chased his car nearly 15 miles at speeds that exceeded 90 miles an hour, police reported.

Police said Mark Beatty, 21, of 630 Lincoln St.. Addison was clocked at 20 m.p.h. over the speed limit on Bode Road near Grand Canyon Parkway at 9:45 a.m.

Beatty eluded police and sped down Grand Canyon to Higgins Road. Hoffman Estates policeman Dave Burrows tried to stop Beatty at the intersection of Higgins and Roselle roads, but he sped away again, police reported.

The chase continued along Higgins road to Meacham road. Beatty then went south on Meacham to Irving Park Road with police continuing in pursuit. Along the way Beautty car damaged several mail boxes according to police.

In Roselle, police said Beatty ran a road block set up by Roselle police on Irving Park Road, west of Meacham, and then crashed into a tree.

He then allegedly tried to run down a Roselle policeman who fired a shot at Beatty while he was attempting to flee the scene in his damaged vehicle.

The chase ended when Burrows' car blocked his escape. Beatty was charged in Hoffman Estates with reckless driving, speeding, attempting to elude an officer, damage to village property, and possessing an open liquor bottle in his car. A subsequent search of the car revealed a small amount of marijuana stuffed between the seat, police said.

Village Awards Contracts For Civic Center Work

Contracts totaling $178,865 for underground improvements, excavation of a lake and construction of an access road at the site of the Schaumburg Civic Center were awarded by the village board Tuesday.

Ground breaking at the site, southeast of Roselle and Schaumburg roads, is 10 a.m. Saturday.

Fioravanti Construction Co., Inc., of Melrose Park, low bidder of the nine firms which submitted quotes on the underground improvements, won a contract for $72,256. Completion is promised within 60 days after work is started. The bids did not specify a starting date, but Mayor Robert O. Atcher suggested it would be 10 days after contract approval. Other bids ranged up to the high of $113,893, with a 90-day completion clause, submitted by Tremar, Inc.

Consulting engineers for the architectural firm that designed the center, Eichsteadt Associates, estimated the cost of the improvements at $79,467.

Plote, Inc., of Palatine, won the contract to excavate a lake on the civic center site with a bid of $52,000. The only other bidder was Rock Road Construction Co. of Des Plaines, which quoted $67,500. The architect's engineering consultant had estimated cost at $118,000. No completion time was specified in either of the bids, but Plote quoted an option for the village, 75-cents per cubic yard if the village wishes it to spread topsoil on the site after the work is completed but before landscaping.

A contract also was awarded to Rock Road Construction Co. to install an access road to the center's construction site. The contract amount is $54,609.20, while the estimate was $60,309. The road is to be opened by mid-September.

THE BOARD granted authorization to the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago to install an oversized sewer main drop pipe from a manhole being relocated on Woodfield Drive. Cost to the village is estimated at $1,600. Work is to be done by J. D. Construction Co. When finished, the village will be able to shut down its Woodfield lift station.

Also approved was payment of a voucher for $46,934 to R. J. Pederson and Associates, Inc., for water main and sanitary sewer installation at Schaumburg and Roselle roads. The funds come from special assessment revenues.

Bids on a special assessment to install water and sewer mains along Golf Road to service commercial properties are to be opened Sept. 26.

Progress also is being made on plans to install a 30-inch storm sewer to relieve flooding conditions during heavy rains on Laurette Court, said Village Engineer Joe Zgonina. Mayor Robert Atcher reported the developer of the area, Lancer Corp., has agreed to pay for the installation.

Lancer Park Group Plans Picnic Sunday

The Lancer Park Homeowners Association will hold its second annual picnic Sunday at the Ned Brown Forest Preserve, Elk Grove Village, near Arlington Heights and Higgins roads.

All residents of Lancer Park are invited to bring their lunch. Free beer, soft drinks, and ice cream will be provided. The picnic will begin at noon and continue until about 7 p.m.

Baseball and volleyball for the adults, games and races for the children, and musical entertainment for all will highlight the picnic. Malik Parkash, association president, promised "it will be a memorable day." He can be contacted at 894-6070 for further information.

Kelly Open House Slated Friday

An open house for area residents to meet John P. Kelly, Democratic candidate for Illinois congressman from the Third District, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the home of Jack Halpin, 111 Brixham Pl., Schaumburg. Refreshments will be served.

Carnival To Fight Muscular Dystrophy

A backyard carnival Sunday raised more than $51 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The four children of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Arenson, 1632 Park Dr., Schaumburg, hosted the carnival in cooperation with the national fund headed by Jerry Lewis.

Ira and David Arenson, ten-year-old twins, with the help of their older brother Jeffrey and older sister Sherrie, sold hot dogs and soft drinks and organized many games, including dart toss and bean bag toss.

Cindy Eugene, Jill Sugar, Susan Jackson and Timmy Englund of Schaumburg also helped raise the money which will be used for research in fighting muscular dystrophy.

Sportsman's Liquors, Cockrell Vending, and Jewel Foods were among the local Schaumburg merchants who donated prizes and supplies.

Schaumburg School District Challenge

Court Test Eyed In Merger Of Co-op

Schaumburg School Dist. 54's challenge of the merger of the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) may end in a court test.

"Individual members of the Dist. 54 School Board question the legality of merging the two school district cooperatives," said Dianne Hardt, board president. "We have asked our attorney to give us an opinion on the proposed merger. We may take it to court."

Steps toward a merger were begun last month when members of the NEC Governing Board voted to put NEC and NSSEO under one administrative head. The move was made after consultant Oscar Chute recommended streamlining the cooperatives into a single administrative structure.

Currently NEC leaders are meeting with Atty. Allyn Franke to revise the NEC and NSSEO charter agreements and formalize the merger. The two cooperatives must continue to have separate agreements, says Franke, but with an added interlocking provision.

NEC WAS FORMED in 1969, seven years after NSSEO. NSSEO's formation was a response to state mandates for special education. NEC, on the other hand, is a largely locally supported group with a selection of programs ranging from teacher training to data processing.

All NSSEO members, with the exception of Dist. 54, also belong to NEC. These members include districts: 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57, 59, 211 and 214.

According to Mrs. Hardt, "Dist. 54 has to stay in NSSEO, and we want to be in it. But NEC is a purely voluntary group. We question the legality of merging a state mandated cooperative with a voluntary cooperative."

"We like the idea of NEC," added Mrs. Hardt. "We believe it is needed. But we also believe there should be a different method for financing it. NEC relies too heavily on local funds, and is well on its way to becoming a super district."

Dist. 54 expects an opinion from its attorney sometime next month. If the attorney says the merger is illegal, Mrs. Hardt said it is possible the board will file suit against NEC. She pointed out the board has taken no formal action on the proposal, but individual members are considering legal action.

The issue should come to the forefront at the board's Sept. 20 meeting. Dick Schlott, chairman of the NEC Governing Board, has been invited to attend the meeting to discuss the cooperative. He advocates solving the disagreement out of court.

"IT WOULD lower tensions if our legal counsels would get in touch with each other to iron the problem out. Perhaps it's only a misunderstanding," said Schlott.

Following Franke's advice, the NEC Board at its last meeting decided Dist. 54 could vote on all NEC matters concerning NSSEO. Yet, Mrs. Hardt said the procedure is difficult and complicated.

Ultimately, said Mrs. Hardt, Dist. 54 would like to see NSSEO stand alone and NEC transformed. Board members have proposed turning NEC into an education service region, separate from the existing Cook County Education Service Region. NEC and the present region duplicate many services, said Mrs. Hardt, but the region has the use of government funds.

At this time Dist. 54 is apparently alone in its stand against the merger. Mrs. Hardt said the district is used to a minority status, pointing out, "We are more conservative in our thinking fiscally and in many other ways. While we are faced with tremendous growth, many of the other districts are nearing a saturation point."

THE STREET IS theirs, at least for the moment. The ever-present Vietnam Veterans Against the War, most active of the protest groups in Miami Beach for the Republican National Convention, hold their ground on Collins Avenue. Their message, sprinkled with occasional flares of violence: they fought a war they felt was wrong, and want it ended immediately. (Photo by Tom Grieger)

'People Listen To Us': Antiwar Vets

by CINDY TEW

MIAMI BEACH — "Spare change to feed the people." "End the war." "The only way is Christ's way." "The Catholics in Belfast are oppressed."

The 36-acre expanse of Flamingo Park has turned into a dusty combination rock fest and youth exposition. A far more spontaneous convention than the one a few blocks north.

"Everyone's been on an ego trip, with a special cause," a Springfield youth said. "Bonds started forming Monday night when Jane Fonda spoke."

While everyone has a common cause, the one common cry is "end the war." And the Vietnam Veterans Against the War say it with the most force.

"We're almost 1,000 strong, we're organized, and we speak the truth," said a sweat-drenched veteran in jungle fatigues and combat boots.

VVAW members seem to be able to withstand the intense Miami heat better than most groups — they say the weather in Vietnam is very similiar.

"Our camping facilities were much worse than these in 'Nam. We didn't have clean toilets and oceans of drinking water," said a vet about the park where the environment-conscious keep most of the trash picked up.

THE VETS AGREE that the miiltary food was better than the free food at the park — though as soldiers they had to work for their meals.

Flamingo Park residents have a choice of bread, peanut butter, fruit or mush. Mush is a stick-to-your-ribs combination of rice, oatmeal and brown sugar.

Veterans have their own food. They don't rely on anyone for support of any kind.

"We've spent months organizing these convention demonstrations. You can't get anywhere without organization," said Jeff Hillier of Chicago. "We'll join with anyone who has the same goals as ours, which include peaceful demonstration."

Hillier is a photography major at Prairie State College in Chicago. He spent six months in Vietnam.

"I'm here because in 1968 Nixon promised to end the war, and it hasn't been ended," Hillier said. "The ground war is de-escalating, but the air attacks are harder than ever."

UNLIKE OTHER end-the-war groups, the veterans feel they have a united front and credibility.

"People have listened to us and will continue listening to us," said Chris DiMatteo, a welder for International Harvester Co., Chicago.

"We've been in the war, we've seen it, and people know that," he said.

"The leaders in this country are paranoid, and they know the veterans have power," said Hillier. "Why do you think a Vietnam veteran was asked to give a seconding speech for Nixon? Why do you think the VVAW has been infiltrated by informers?" Six veterans recently were indicted for allegedly plotting violence during the convention.

"We are a national organization. We elect our leaders, and we are interested in non-violent activity," said DiMatteo.

Both Jeff and Chris enlisted in the military and have since been disillusioned and "brainwashed" by the system, they said.

IN A MAKESHIFT pup tent during one of several Miami thundershowers this week, the men told their story.

"I ended the ground war, not Nixon," Jeff said. "The soldiers on the ground simply refused to fight. When we were sent on patrol, we'd stage fire attacks."

Jeff said that killing is wrong and that he could not morally participate. "My upbringing, which included toy guns and war comic books, made it too easy for me to kill," Jeff said. "I want peace for my children."

Jeff also said that lies about the war have been rampant. "Americans get the line that people are fleeing from North to South Vietnam to get out of the Communist grip," he said. "Of course, people are getting out of North Vietnamese cities — those cities get shelled by American bombers. It's safer in the south."

CHRIS, WHO went into the service in 1964, says he never questioned the military. "I was a good soldier, and believed all they told me about stopping the aggressive Communists," he said. "It made me bitter."

Chris said it's not just the war that brought him 1,260 miles to camp in a Vietnam-like heat.

"It's the system. We're all caught up in an inflationary trip," he said. "I'm a welder, and I'm a peasant. Working conditions are deplorable, and wages go up right along with the cost of living."

Chris says the power has to be put back in the hands of the people. "Nixon appoints commissions, like the one on drugs and abortions, then ignores the findings because he personally disagrees with them."

"No one in the government knows what's happening. We want to present these messages to the American people this week.

WHILE THE VETERANS had their activities as well thought out as the Republicans, other Flamingo Park residents continued to wander around trying to decide what action, if any, to take.

"It's so useless. Maybe we can slow them down and embarrass them, but you just can't go up to Nixon and say 'you can't run,'" said a wanderer from St. Louis.

"I'm going to get arrested tomorrow. Maybe that will help let people know things are wrong in this country," he said.

Miami Outreach Program

'Peacemakers' Stifle The Rumor Mills

MIAMI BEACH — Tom Oakes, 32, of the Northwest side of Chicago, may be the biggest peacemaker at Miami Beach this summer.

He's not a delegate and he's not a Flamingo Park protester.

"We don't take anyone's side. We are here to make sure everyone is able to express their ideas and see that violence does not erupt," Oakes said.

He is a central coordinator of the YMCA-sponsored Miami Outreach Program, which includes about 100 persons from 20 states. The program is part of the YMCA national training staff for youth Outreach workers.

Workers, from 19 to 25 years old, have been through intensive training programs, including a week-long session in Chicago.

THE PEACEMAKERS are even more obvious at Flamingo Park than the makeshift water fountains located every 100 feet. Blazon yellow shirts identify the group.

"We're not an undercover group. We want people to know who we are," Oakes said.

Besides trying to keep tensions from escalating the confrontations between groups, Outreach workers provide a rumor-control service and medical aid for all non-delegates.

"We have an extensive communication network throughout Miami Beach," said Oakes. "We check out all rumors and try to spread corrected rumors."

DRUG OVERDOSE cases at Flamingo Park have been dwindling since the beginning of the week, Oakes said.

"A combination of park people self-patroling drug traffic and the increased convention-related activities of the past few days have kept overdose problems to a minimum," Oakes said. "We've been treating mostly cuts and bruises lately."

According to Oakes the most impressive groups at the convention have been the police and the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW).

"The police have done a lot to keep things from escalating," Oakes said. "They keep their cool in very difficult situations."

The veterans' group has been organized in Miami along with the Outreach program since June.

"They are an impressive group. They're here to make a point about the war and not cause any trouble," said Oakes. "They have the organizational system to do just that."

WHILE OUTREACH workers support the rights of everyone to gather and be heard they are on guard for confrontations thaat are potential sources of physical violence.

"We provide a buffer zone," Oakes said. The yellow-topped buffers have been in action keeping the Cuban and American militants away from each other.

Outreach workers have talked extensively with the police, residents, delegates, and non-delegates as a third party to get people to listen, not to fight, with one another.

There is nothing like a Den Mother.

The work isn't always easy, but it is always rewarding. America's manpower begins with BOYPOWER, and nothing builds BOYPOWER like the Scouts. Will you help?

CLOSE ORDER DRILL —The Florida Highway Patrol, backing up the Miami Beach police, has been on constant alert in the GOP convention city this week. Uptight At The Hotel

Safe For 'Demockracy'

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

MIAMI BEACH — You may have thought it was a pretty easy, open thing to renominate a fellow like President Nixon virtually by acclamation. Actually, it involved a lot of very closely guarded activities.

I got my first hints of how hush-hush these matters have to be when I was sitting in the Nixon campaign offices in the Doral hotel the afternoon of Aug. 17 — four days before the Republican convention opened. My gaze fell upon a large brown-paper sack taped to the sides of a desk. On it were printed big red letters:

"Classified. . . Burn."

This was not the top Nixon command post in the building. But even if it had been, what could there be to burn?

I suggested to a friend that we monitor the bag for an hour or two to see what was tossed in, much as columnist Jack Anderson used to stake out the late J. Edgar Hoover's trash cans.

AUG. 17, of course, turned out to be the last free-roaming day at the Doral. Next morning at 7 a.m. the place was locked up tight by a variety of edgy security forces. Reporters found they could get to the large, lobby-level press room, the basement coffee shop, and a telephone or two. That was it.

A reporter was steered carefully to a telephone. When he returned, a security officer asked: "Did you get your call through?"

The newman responded: "There was no answer. In case you're interested, I let it ring four times."

In this holiday town, my mind went quickly to the idea of an escorted package tour. I could perhaps arrange a pleasant swing that, all in an hour or two, would take me to aides Herbert Klein, Van Shumway, Fred Malek, etc.

That hotel was loaded with possibilities. It's a fair guess that at least 150 people were there to carry out President Nixon's secret plan to win renomination in 1972. One tries to imagine what it would have been like if Nixon had had a fight on his hands.

If memory serves, things were a lot more relaxed in 1968 when the President had some real competition.

The Doral naturally was packed with communications equipment. There was a tight link to Key Biscayne, a few miles south, where the President, as usual, was based.

THE AVAILABLE evidence indicated an army command post was set up, too. The street crazies were threatening to block the routes around convention hall.

One hesitates to be sweeping, but I'd guess that never in convention history was so much done to safeguard so little.

Why? It occurred to me, just offhand, that it was a marvelous antidote, for the Nixon staff, for the boredom of the routine.

If things are secret, they must be important. Right?

Some top Republicans help the game along nicely. Secretary of Interior Rogers Morton said there was a "sense of urgency." National Chairman Robert Dole dared to use the word "exciting" to describe the happenings.

In fact, however, what we witnessed may be the best-organized, most tightly-controlled nonevent of this century.

Can't Resurrect Riots Of 1968 But They Try

by BOB LAHEY

MIAMI BEACH — There were perhaps 500 young men and women, dressed in remnants of olive-drab Army fatigues, sprawled on Collins Avenue, the main thoroughfare of this peninsula city.

A reporter arose from among them and began to walk toward the driveway of the Fontainebleau Hotel, where Cong. Pete McCloskey of Californa was chatting with some of the self-appointed leaders of this gathering of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

The reporter was collared by a bearded "veteran" who told the reporter in indignant tones that he was "blocking the view" of a number of demonstrators.

The reporter pointed out to the veteran that he and his fellow demonstrators were blocking an entire city, and suggested in terms not to be quoted in a family newspaper that the veteran go occupy himself otherwise.

That little tableau says something about what is going on here, and about the nature of the protest demonstrations that now and then break out around the Republican National Convention.

THE DEMONSTRATORS here have been greeted by a surprising tolerance on the part of a heavily conservative assembly of Republicans, and by an extremely disciplined and patient police force.

What inconvenience has been created for the delegates — and when you block Collins Avenue you effectively disrupt this entire city — has been viewed with equanimity both by the delegates and the assembled police forces of the State of Florida.

There is a remarkable lack of spontaneity in the demonstrations that have occurred here. Talking to random members of various protest groups, you will discover no unanimity of purpose, and only an occasional reference to the Chicago riots of 1968.

It is difficult to find anyone here who participated in the original protests against the Vietnam War, and it is difficult to rid yourself of the feeling that many of the protesters here are simply trying to resurrect the spirit that prevailed among the Chicago demonstrators four years ago.

Convention Flavor Is Conservative

whelming majority of his fellow Illinois delegates refused to fall into line with Sen. Percy on the delegate selection plan, it is probably not correct to assume that they are anti-Percy.

Pedersen observed that Percy's argument in a caucus of the Illinois delegation for his plan were "persuasive and articulate," and he added, "We need that kind of reasoning."

The compromise plan presented by Percy, who earlier had advocated a plan even more favorable to liberals, at first seemed to have the support of the Illinois delegation, Pedersen, said.

However, a little-noticed provision of the Percy plan later aroused opposition on the convention floor, according to Pedersen.

Percy had included an "open-door" proviso in his proposal that would have admonished state party organizations to encourage women, young people and minority group members to become delegates to the national convention.

A feeling arose, Pedersen said, that this would create a "back-door" opening for establishment of quotas in the selection of delegates, a possibility solidly opposed by delegates at this convention.

THERE HAS BEEN considerable talk in Miami Beach about a struggle between conservatives and liberals in the Republican Party, and Pedersen believes that has been somewhat overemphasized, although he concedes there is "some dispute" here between those elements in the party.

But Pedersen expressed himself as being generally satisfied with the conduct of the convention here, and he made a comparison between the conduct of this convention and that conducted by the Democrats a month ago in this same city.

"The Republicans have conducted themselves in a professional manner," said Pedersen, "and that at least is reassuring."

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Could you please discuss temperature and explain if it is normal for a child almost 10 to have a regular temperature ranging from 99.2 to 99.6 degrees? I first discovered this last Thanksgiving and it didn't follow an illness. She has been seen by the doctor twice and there was no sign of illness. All of her laboratory studies were normal. She looks well and has a good appetite, but I'm worried about what this means. My doctor seems unconcerned. If you say the above average temperature is nothing to worry about, I'll ignore it. Otherwise, should I take her to another doctor or what?

Dear Reader — You did the right thing in taking your daughter to the doctor for a good medical examination. Since she turned out to be perfectly normal by examination I think you could indeed forget the problem. Body temperature varies a lot in different people. The oral temperature ranges from 96.6 degrees F. to 100.0 degrees F. Not only that, some people have a normal daily variation in body temperature of as much as 2.0 degrees F. or 3.0 degrees F.

Usually the body temperature is lowest between 3 and 5 in the morning and it is highest in the late afternoon or early evening. It is particularly labile in infants and it's more labile in children than it is in adults. Many normal adults have an afternoon or early evening temperature of 99.0 degrees F. or more.

Body temperature can be influenced by a good many factors. Strenuous exercise can temporarily elevate the temperature several degrees. Even eating hot, spicy foods can elevate the temperature in some people. The temperature regulating center for the brain is located in the area called the hypothalamus, which is a small structure underneath the brain behind the eyes. It's literally the switchboard for human emotions. Therefore it's not too surprising that emotional reactions can influence body temperature. All things considered, in the face of a normal medical examination, I would say that your doctor is probably wise in ignoring it and think you should do the same.

I RECEIVE many letters from women who have had their tubes tied and later regretted it. Attempts have been made for several years to reunite severed tubes or undo female sterility operations. These have met with varied success. For readers who are concerned with the problem, however, they might be interested to know that Dr. Celso-Ramon Garcia at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia has developed a micro-surgery technique. The surgery is done with the aid of a microscope and Dr. Garcia has been able to obtain successful rejoining of open tubes in 50 per cent of his cases. Of his first 14 patients, three have been pregnant and one of them has had two normal pregnancies. There are many problems associated with the reconstructive surgery but at least there's hope for those who are sorry about the whole thing.

Stamp Notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

The United Nations Postal Administration will issue a commemorative stamp for the Economic Commission for Europe (ECE) on Sept. 11th. This is the regional commission's 25th anniversary.

Since its inception in 1947, the ECE has become a permanent instrument of the United Nations — a center for the promotion of trade, particularly East-West trade, for the exchange of technical information, for the negotiation of intergovernmental agreements and for research on and analysis of economic developments of the region.

The new stamp was designed by A. Medina Medina of Uruguay and will be printed by offset at the Government Printing Bureau, Tokyo, in two denominations — 21 cents and Fs.1,10 in quantities of 2,200,000 and 2,100,000 respectively.

Four marginal inscriptions will appear on each sheet, two at the top and two at the bottom, and will consist of the UN seal with the words "Economic Commission for Europe" on the top of the seal with the date "1972" beneath it on the 21 cent sheet. A similar text in French will appear on the F.s.1,10 sheet. Both denominations will be printed in sheets of 50 stamps.

First Day Cover service for the U.S. denomination will be available from UN Headquarters, New York, New York. The outside envelope should be clearly marked "FDC - ECE - 21 cents." Remittance to cover the cost of the stamp plus a 5 cent service charge for each cover must be included.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the Swiss denomination must send their self-addressed envelopes to United Nations Postal Administration, First Day Cover Service, CH - 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland.

Remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed (U.S. equivalent 29 cents) plus a 5 cent service charge for each cover must be included in money order or certified check in either U.S. or Swiss currency at the rate of 3.84 Swiss francs to $1. Bank notes or coins will not be accepted.

Prepared Geneva covers and mint stamps of both denominations may be ordered from the UN Postal Administration, Box 5900, Grand Central Station, P.O., New York, New York 10017. Cost of the cover includes 10 cents for the Geneva cachet plus a 5 cent service charge. Covers with a single stamp are 44 cents; with a pair of stamps, 73 cents, and for a block of four and the marginal inscription block of four stamps, $1.31.

CANADA CARDS — scenic, prestamped postcards — are available by mail from the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A OB5.

Eighteen sets of five cards each are being marketed depicting Canadian scenes and places of historic interest.

The pre-paid 8 cent postage indicia on each card is a miniature of the full-color photograph which appears on the front.

Three sets each have been produced for Quebec, Ontario and British Colombia; two sets for Alberta and one set each for the remaining provinces (Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island) and one set for the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

The sets are $1 each. Space prohibits the listing of the scenes portrayed on all 90 cards but for those collectors interested I will send you the listing for a self-addressed stamped envelope.

POLE SITTING revisited? Maybe not, but this workman radiates unconcern about means of departing his perch. The "ivory" towered sun break was taken atop the Medcoa Building, sprouting up at Higgins Road and Grand Canyon Boulevard, Hoffman Estates. The structure will house medical suites.

Water Recycling Plan Proposed

Incorporation of a water recycling system in a proposed car wash in the Woodfield complex won tentative approval for the facility from the Schaumburg Village Board Tuesday night.

Last week the petitioners for the car wash were told the board generally approved of their plan, but would require an arrangement for recycling water before it could be accepted. Woodfield Associates is requesting a special use permit for the facility, which is to be leased and operated by McCleen Corp.

McCleen's representatives Tuesday said they had learned of a corporation process which would more than satisfy the village's recycling requirement. The board had told the firm use of fresh water for the system would seriously endanger supply of water to the rest of the Woodfield complex due to its heavy drain on the center's water storage tank. The request now must be approved in two readings before the board.

Final approval was given for a special use permit for a car wash to be constructed by Shell Oil Co. on Higgins Road at Mall Drive.

THE SHELL facility already had received initial approval by the board.

Both facilities are restricted to use of phosphate free, bio-degradable cleaning agents.

The trustees also approved a recommendation from the zoning board of appeals to grant a special use permit for a day care center at Westover Lane near Wise Road, in a shopping center on property owned by James Teufel. John Murray, who is to run the day care center, said it will be licensed for 102 children. The center will comply with the village ordinance regulating child day care facilities, he said.

Teufel also sought and received approval for a packaged liquor license for a store to be located in Weatherway Plaza, another center he is constructing, at Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way. Operator of the store is to be Fred Kerr, who also will have a variety store in the same building. The liquor store is to be separated from the rest of the structure with a partition, and will have a separate entrance.

ANOTHER PERMIT for the Weatherway center was granted on first reading for a store front church, to be leased by Woodfield Jewish Congregation. Mayor Robert O. Atcher suggested in discussion of the church the group should obtain permission from Woodfield Associates for use of its name. While he said he did not anticipate any objections from the firm, which developed Woodfield shopping complex, he noted there are legal restrictions on use of the name.

Also approved on first reading was a request from National Tea Co. for a package liquor license.

In other action, the board approved on first reading adoption of three federally drawn codes regulating food stores and adopted an ordinance requested by the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago prohibiting discharge of certain materials into sewers.

Also approved was an agreement with Morwell Builders, whereby the firm will install an oversized storm sewer near Beech and Hickory streets in Timbercrest. Mayor Atcher predicted it will relieve flood problems in the area. Later, when property at the final point of the sewer is developed, the agreement will permit Morwell to recover the extra expense from oversizing from that developer.

'Kids Krusade' Puppet Show Set

A "Kid's Krusade" at Calvary Baptist Church, 1000 S. Springinsguth Rd., Schaumburg, will feature puppet shows Sunday through Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m.

"Uncle Hank" and "Aunt Joyce" Hemond will present their puppets, Oliver and Stretch, in a show that features lively songtimes, a contest and Bible stories.

Admission is free.

Pedodontist Opens Schaumburg Office

The area's first pedodontist has opened an office in the Schaumburg Plaza Professional Building, 1433 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg.

Dr. Ronald Rothenberg, who has practiced in Skokie for 17 years, said the additional office here is needed because many of his patients are from this area.

"This is an area building itself up and in need of this kind of service," Dr. Rothenberg said. He specializes in dentistry for children and adolescents, and will see patients here by appointment.

Appointments can be made by calling 894-1248 or 676-1243.

Dr. Rothenberg is a graduate of the University of Illinois and Loyola Dental School and did postgraduate work at Eastman Dental Center, University of Rochester.

He is a member of the American Dental Association, Illinois Dental Society, Chicago Dental Society and the American Society of Dentistry for Children.

Dr. Rothenberg and his wife Shirlee have three children and live in Highland Park. His Skokie office is at 8424 Skokie Blvd.

Bottle Recycling Area Open Saturday

Used bottles and containers may be deposited Saturday at Hoffman Estates Municipal Reclamation Center, on the grounds of the old village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd. bewteen 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Newspapers may be left at the center daily but must be bundled or left in large paper sacks. Magazines are not acceptable.

Glass may be prepared for deposit at the center by rinsing and removing metal rims; labels need not be stripped from the containers.

The recycling center is sponsored by Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee. All proceeds from glass and paper reclamation are used by the committee for villlage beautification purposes.

Electrical Service Interrupted

Storms caused interrupted electrical service to a small area of Hoffman Estates early yesterday afternoon.

John Stephens, district superintendent for Commonwealth Edison's Northwest service area, reported a line was down in the area bounded by Maricopa and Thacker streets, Illinois Boulevard and Lincoln Drive. The interruption lasted about an hour, starting at 1:50 p.m., said Stephens.

Only about 30 homes were affected, said Stephens. No problems were reported in Schaumburg.

St. John Teacher To Be Installed

John Janzow, new principal and seventh and eighth grade teacher at St. John Lutheran School, will be installed as a member of the church Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

The congregation will hold a reception in the school gym following the service.

Janzow earned a bachelor of science degree from Concordia College, River Forest, and has been teaching for 20 years. Previous positions include appointment as teacher-principal in a Costa Mesa, Calif., school and teacher-assistant principal in Elmwood Park.

He presently is a candidate for the master's degree at Northeastern Illinois University, Chicago.

He has also done graduate work at Chapman College, U.C.L.A. and Concordia.

Janzow, his wife Jocelyn and their four children recently moved into the teacherage on Irving Park Road.

The school, at Irving Park and Rodenburg roads, Roselle, serves both the Schaumburg and Roselle areas. School registrations are still being taken for the fall term.

Information is available at the school or by calling 529-5328.

Carnival Is Today

A neighborhood carnival against muscular dystrophy will be held today on Branchwood Drive off of Cedarcrest Lane in Timbercrest.

Hosting the festivities are Tammy and Pamela Rolfs and Sandra Moutvic. The Rolfs' home at 207 Cedarcrest Ln. will be "headquarters" for the carnival from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

All proceeds will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

Bomb Threat Traced To Library

Arlington Heights police were notified at noon yesterday by a telephone operator that someone was trying to phone President Nixon to tell him there is a bomb in the White House.

The operator told police that she received a call from a pay phone at Arlington Heights Memorial Library. A male voice asked her how to get in touch with President Nixon, police said. When the operator asked why, the voice responded that he wants to tell the President there is a bomb in the White House.

A squad car was sent to the library in an attempt to apprehend the caller, but no one was found. Police dusted the telephone and phone booth for fingerprints.

Police notified the Chicago office of the Secret Service, but local police are continuing to investigate. It is a federal offense to threaten the life of the President.

President Nixon is not at the White House this week. He is in Miami for the Republican National Convention.

Area No Haven For Elderly

kind. And vitamins and other non-prescription medication is expensive, too."

"We all love to go to restaurants together," Mrs. Anderson said, adding she'd like to see discounts at all types of entertainment.

THOUGH MOST OF HER friends live with their families, Mrs. Anne Somers said, transportation is still a problem. "There should be some public transportation so we don't have to be dragged around," she said.

"Most people my age are still independent and would like to travel without inconveniencing the family," Mrs. Johnson said, admitting she now misses the New York subway and bus system.

Even renting a car for a weekend trip would be expensive — and if you're over 70, Budget Rent-A-Car doesn't have to rent to you, reports Dick Doyle of the local Golf-Rose Shopping Center office.

While the local senior citizen groups have organized group trips to the Arlington Park Race Track, the theater or the Cubs games, they have not organized to pressure for discounts from local stores.

Mrs. Harlo Sartorius, director of the S and H Golden Group, for persons over 55, said discounts "are a really needed service. No one is actually working on it, and the only discounts the group has are ones offered to it."

The race track charges seniors only 50 cents every day and the Cubs proclaim Tuesdays senior citizen days.

HIGH SCHOOL DIST. 211 offers free continuing education courses as space is available in the regular winter schedule. Superintendent Richard Kolze said most of the over-65 students sign up for the Travel and Adventure series and art, bridge and dancing classes.

Senior citizens may become members of the district's Golden Years Club by simply signing up at the school district building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Cardholders are entitled to attend all school activities free of charge.

No cleaners or beauty salons in the area appear to give discounts to the elderly, and instead some merchants are under the impression that only "rich old folk" could live here.

"We want to sock 'em while they're around so we can be rich like them someday," one Hoffman Estates barber laughed, but the seniors wonder if the statement might be true.

"I don't give discounts to older women because I don't want all old ladies flocking in here," a beauty salon operator in Schaumburg said. "We do a lot of curling iron and younger styles. If you start to have all older women, forget it."

AND WHEN ONE TRAVELS the route of hairdressers, pharmacies, cleaners and grocers in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates, one finds few gray-haired shoppers.

It's hard to remember that more than 600 social security checks come in the Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates mail. Last month's checks also contained an information sheet on food stamps.

Food stamps are available to older persons on social security, depending on their total income, rent, medication and food bills and pro-rated on a scale. When all these factors are taken into consideration, the maximum income eligible is $178 per person per month.

Very few persons, let alone the elderly, use food stamps in the two villages. The Herald reported last February that less than five customers per month redeem food stamps at the National Food Store in the Golf-Rose Shopping Center or the Jewel in Hoffman Plaza.

DISCOUNTS AT large chain stores would have to be negotiated through the company's management at the regional or national level, Larry Cline, Osco Drugs manager at Hoffman Plaza, explains. Discount stores like Valueland in Hoffman Plaza feel they are offering the lowest price possible to everyone, store owner Lyle Levy says.

The American Association of Retired Persons, Chapter 545, offers discounts to all members through mail order drug companies, but Mrs. Anderson said this is often inconvenient.

The AARP locally has about 135 members, 100 of them over 65. Most are widows, and meet monthly as well as almost every week for games, needlework or arts and crafts.

For those growing old while their community grows younger, such groups have concentrated on offering companionship, not organization for a cause such as discounts.

"I don't ever expect anybody to do anything for me," Mrs. Anderson said. "But others appreciate it, and I do too."

And when the median age in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates is a little more than 21 years, few merchants take notice of the suburbanite who wears his trousers rolled.

Collecting Coins

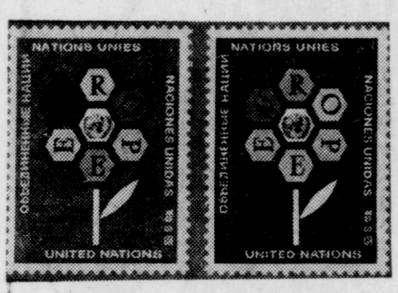
by Mort Reed

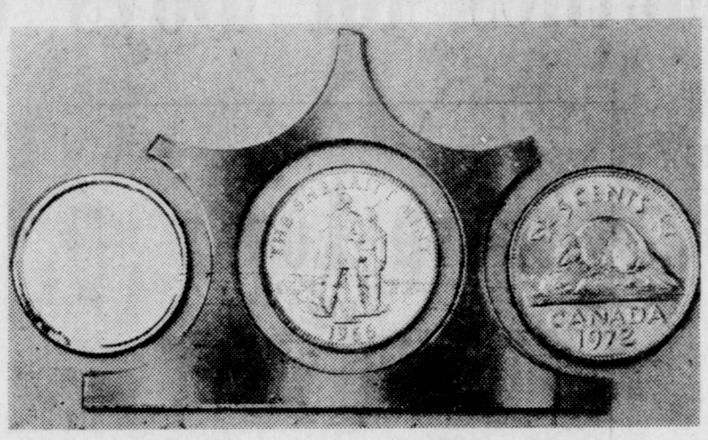
Of all the metals used in coinage of money for general circulation, nickel is the only one adaptable without the addition of an alloy. U.S. nickel five-cent pieces, like the cladding on our current dimes, quarters, half-dollars and dollars, are actually 25 per cent nickel and 75 per cent copper. We have never issued a pure nickel coin.

Canadian five-cent pieces are pure nickel with a high magnetic quality making the coins desirable for most vending machines.

Pure nickel can be melted, cast or rolled from ingots or rolled directly from nickel powder. Coin blanks from nickel strips tend to harden in the process making it mandatory to soften each piece before receiving the coinage design.

POWDERED NICKEL rolled into strips is softer and more ductile which lends the blank to an immediate coinage die without being routed through the softening operation. All of this is part of the "Nickel Story" being made available to readers of this column through the courtesy of Sherritt-Gordon, one of the world's largest producers of nickel coinage material.





The "Nickel Story" is supported by a piece of nickel strip web (that portion of a strip remaining after coin blanks have been punched); a coin blank (left); a Canadian pure nickel five-cent piece (right) and a Sherritt Mint Medal (center) also struck on a pure nickel planchette, housed in a 3¾x6-inch wallet-type vinyl holder.

THIS SPECIMEN display gives the observer an opportunity to see and touch the three production stages of a pure nickel coin while reading about the mining and processing of nickel sulfides, one of Canada's chief contributions to world coinage.

These collectors specimens are limited one to a reader at $2 each, all fees paid. Address orders to "The Nickel Story," P.O. Box 880, Ladysmith, British Columbia, Canada.

BICENTENNIAL FIRST DAY COVERS

According to a report from Coin World, there was a total of 665,000 official American Revolution Bicentennial medal-stamp First Day covers sold by the Bicentennial Commission by July 15. With the deadline set at July 31, it is possible this figure may increase to over ¾-million. This is the first time a series was made available on a first-come-first-served basis by the ARBC.

This column's offer to mail official order blanks to any reader sending in a stamped, self-addressed envelope brought 3,302 requests. Some orders could not be filled due to a shortage of blanks. This offer will be extended to our readers when the second ARB First Day PNC cover is announced by the commission.

If you missed this opportunity, prepare a or 10-inch business size envelope now, with your name and address and proper postage to be sent to Money Clips, c/o Mort Reed, P.O. Box 555, Wooster, Ohio 44691, when No. 2 is announced. This will save time and assure delivery.

Do-It-Yourself

There are many styles in window coverings but remaining the most popular and used most frequently is the common roll-up window shade.

Such a shade affords privacy and is economical, easy to leave up for years and just as easy to replace.

But window shades do create an occasional problem. They may suddenly snap up and all privacy is gone. Sometimes you can't wind them up at all.

The parts of a window shade are repaired easily or replaced. Total replacement is not expensive but sometimes a simple repair made at no cost will do just fine.

THE SHADE IS fastened to a wooden roller with staples, tacks or tape. Inside the roller there is a coil spring with a dowel inside. One end of the roller has a stationary pin. The other has a flat, rotating pin. Metal caps protect these parts.

There are tiny pawls that fit into slots at the end with the rotating pin. The force of rotation causes the pawls to be released and that in turn causes the spring to raise the shade. Whenever you stop the shade's movement you cause the pawls to drop into place, locking the roller in that position.

When the shade does not roll up, increase the spring tension by pulling the shade down a few times. Remove the roller from the brackets and roll the shade tightly. Put it back and try again.

The pawls drop into place by gravity and sometimes they stick. Check to see if this has happened.

If you lubricate, use graphite, not oil, since oil picks up dirt and gums.

When a shade suddenly snaps up, then the spring is too tight. Roll the shade to the top, take the roller off the brackets, unroll about halfway down and replace.

WOBBLY AND falling shades may be due to loose brackets. Make certain they are fastened with screws rather than nails.

If you are moving a shade to a slightly larger window you can make it work by making the brackets stick out a bit farther by shimming them with bits of cardboard. Or extend the stationary pin by pulling it out a little.

If you move a shade to a narrower window (a likelier move), work on the fixed-pin end of the roller. Remove the fabric and cut the end of the roller where the fixed pin is (it pulls out easily).

Then put the pin back and replace the end cap.

Trim the shade by stretching it on a flat surface, measuring, marking and cutting against a straight edge. Refasten the roller with tacks, staples or tape.

The Lighter Side

Keep Breath-Propelled Weapons Out

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gun-control advocates who felt the bill recently passed by the Senate was too weak now have something to assuage their disappointment.

In California last week Gov. Ronald Reagan signed into law legislation making potentially lethal blowguns illegal.

"This is great!" exclaimed Seymour Puffoff, executive director of the National Council for a Sane Blowgun Policy, when I called him up for comment.

"If other states, or maybe Congress itself, will follow through with similar measures, America will be a safer place in which to live."

I said, "How many people in the United States are killed or wounded each year by blowguns?"

"STATISTICS LIKE that cannot be compiled accurately owing to the difficulty in distinguishing blowgun attacks from certain other types of aggression," Puffoff replied.

"Let us say, for example, that a group of revelers are playing darts in a friendly tavern. One of them makes an errant throw, causing the dart to sail over the transom and strike a pedestrian on the sidewalk outside.

"The passerby may very well report unduly creating alarm that a blowgun sniper is at large in the neighborhood.

"On the other hand, someone who is actually the victim of a blowgun attack may be fooled into thinking he has merely been jabbed with a darning needle by some disgruntled old maid.

"Other blowgun victims may simply conclude that they have accidentally become involved in mass vaccination programs.

"STILL OTHER blowgun victims may erroneously assume that they have been inadvertently mainlined by a jittery junkie who was shaking too hard to hit his own arm.

"On balance, it is our belief that far more people are being blowgunned than is generally realized. Frequent failure to report such assaults has given the public a false sense of security."

I said, "Something must be done to keep breath-propelled weapons out of the mouths of criminals."

"That's only part of it," Puffoff said. "Our records indicate that by far the largest number of blowgun casualties is caused by people accidentally shooting themselves."

"How do they do that?"

The Needy Are With Us, Too

The question of welfare — the serious and profound issue of public aid for the needy — is here with us in the suburbs.

It is largely unseen because we live in affluent and comfortable neighborhoods without the grimy evidence of poverty which has invaded the metropolitan core, but it is here nevertheless.

It is here in less than the overwhelming numbers which characterize big city welfare dilemmas, but the individual plight of the homeless and the hungry is just as aching, even if their numbers among us are fewer.

Occasionally we hear their stories firsthand. The story, for example, of a family of seven who is faced with maintaining their basic daily vitamin intake despite a cutback in federal programs which takes away their supplemental food allotment.

Or the case of a partially blind mother of five who no longer can sustain herself here because no agency will permit a monthly rental of $250 a month for a house.

One of the sad things about the cases of welfare in the Northwest suburbs is that poverty means expulsion from this area.

The poor — even if they are poor only temporarily or out of a handicap — cannot afford to live in our midst for very long and they must move away. Poverty in the suburbs means a family must move to the inner city or to the dirt towns of Illinois or the south. Poverty seeks its own level and one of the inevitable prices to be paid by a poor family is economic banishment from suburban communities.

Consider the plight of one family, the partially blind woman with five children and no husband at home. She received slightly less than $100 from township welfare coffers while she waited to get on Cook County general assistance.

After a two week wait the woman will receive $292 monthly from the county. She cannot possibly afford to live here on that sum. She and her five children will leave us shortly. She will relieve us of the burden of caring for her and she will be forgotten.

Each year local township governments budget substantial amounts of money for general assistance although each township uses only a fraction of its budgeted amount.

In Wheeling Township, for example, $23,000 was used last year out of some $46,000 budgeted for general assistance.

Wheeling serves here only as an example for a common practice in most townships of budgeting well in excess of the amount spent.

We believe in this one case — and in selected others — township government is acting penuriously.

Because township general assistance funds are not received through federal or state taxes, the townships have virtually unrestricted use of their funds.

We think this gives an excellent opportunity to township government to use its knowledge of the community and to play an active — and compassionate — role in local public aid.

Olympics' Sex Test

Maybe their hairdressers know for sure, but Olympics officials aren't taking any chances.

To guarantee that none of the 1,500 women athletes coming from around the world to compete in Munich this month has not even the slightest genetic variation that might enable her to deliver a man's performance, a special team of doctors and scientific assistants will administer a simple, certain and nonembarrassing test of femininity.

The procedure merely requires an athlete to part company with one of the hairs on her head. The hair root cells are dyed red for inspection purposes and then scrutinized under a microscope to determine whether or not they contain the male Y chromosome. (Female cells contain only X chromosomes.)

An estimated 70 women, those who have never participated in an Olympics competition, will undergo the chromosome test for the first time. An anticipated maximum of only two or three of them are likely to be disqualified on the grounds of "intersexuality."

Those who pass the test with flying hair roots will be issued a certificate, good for all future Olympics, testifying that they are 100 per cent women.

No Box Tops, Please

At the risk of setting off a new avalanche of cigarette wrappers, matchbook covers, teabag labels, beverage can tabs and what have you, the Seeing Eye of Morristown, N. J., would like to emphasize that none of these things can be traded for a Seeing Eye dog.

For 40 years the organization has been on the receiving end of such worthless junk sent in by well-meaning people deluded by a rumor that refuses to die despite all attempts to squelch it.

Yet all a blind person has to do is apply to the school in Morristown. No one is ever denied a dog for lack of funds.

'Big States Vote In Patterns'

Examine with a skeptical eye any front line reports which suggest that the eight most populous northern states may be spread all over the lot in this election. Though Massachusetts is something of an exception, generally they tend to vote in a pattern.

If an election is very close, the big states may fall on either side of the middle where most of them will be bunched. Thus it was in 1968, when President Nixon won four and Sen. Hubert Humphrey four. The same split occurred in 1948 between Harry Truman and Thomas Dewey.

Yet this doesn't necessarily follow. John F. Kennedy's popular vote in 1960 was narrower than these two, but still he won six of the eight top northern states and nearly took a seventh.

Landslides inevitably engulf all the big ones. Dwight Eisenhower swept the eight in both 1952 and 1956 and so did Lyndon Johnson in 1964.

The fact is, these large industrial states are pretty much the same in make-up, despite highly advertised difference. To grasp the general consistency of their behavior in presidential elections, you have to look at the specifics.

Last time out, for instance, Mr. Nixon won California by 3.1 per cent, Illinois by 2.9, Ohio by 2.3 and New Jersey by 2.1.

Bruce Biossat

Humphrey margins were a bit large in three — 6.7 per cent in Michigan, 5.5 in New York, 3.6 in Pennsylvania. Massachusetts was a sport, giving Humphrey 63 per cent to the President's 32.9.

The strongest evidence of pattern was visible not in margins but voter percentages. Leaving out Massachusetts, Mr. Nixon in 1968 got percentages ranging from a high of 47.8 in California to a low of 41.5 in Michigan. Humphrey went from a high of 49.8 per cent in New York to a low of 42.9 in Ohio. Mostly the two men fell between 44 and 47.

The Truman-Dewey election, complicated by the candidacy of Henry Wallace, was tighter still. Massachusetts again did not follow form, giving Truman an 11.5 edge. But he took Illinois by just .9 per cent, California by .5, Ohio by a microsopic .3.

Dewey in turn picked off New Jersey by 4.4, Pennsylvania by 4.0, and scraped by in Michigan with 1.6 and New York with 1.0 margin.

Once more, the voting percentages bore fascinating similarity. In three of the eight, Dewey's vote was identical; 49.2 per cent. His 43.2 in Massachusetts aside, his range in the other seven was from 46.0 in New York to 50.9 in Pennsylvania.

As for Truman, he ran from a flat 45 per cent in New York to a high of 50.01 in Illinois. He hit near 47 three times.

Massachusetts is not always sporty. In the Eisenhower sweeps, it was right in there. In seven of the big eight, Ike in 1952 got margins of great size and vote percentages ranging from 54.2 in Massachusetts to 56.8 in New Jersey and Ohio. Only Pennsylvania lagged with 52.7. Adlai Stevenson's losing totals spread from 46.9 to a flat 42 per cent.

Ike's bigger 1956 victory found five states giving him totals of 59.3 per cent to 64.7, and three trailing at around 55-56. In Johnson's 1964 landslide, six states gave him from 59.1 to 66.7. Massachusetts at 76.2 and New York at 68.6 were somewhat above pattern.

Kennedy, winning six in 1960, got percentages in seven states running from 47.4 in Ohio to 52.5 in New York. Five were around 51-49. Mr. Nixon, while losing all but Ohio and California, fell below 48 just once. Again, Massachusetts was above phase — 60 Democratic. The margins in three states were less than one per cent.

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

'Most Public Officials Are Socialists'

If I may, I would like to comment on the article by Murray Olderman, which appeared in the August 17 edition of the Herald. The heading on the article in question was "David Packard Doesn't Miss The Pentagon Problems."

The author states that Mr. Packard is a "conservative Republican" who believes deeply in the political tenets of Richard M. Nixon. This statement in my view, is one of the most contradictory statements I have seen in print; even tho it is characteristic of the material that emanates from that Mecca of the Eastern Establishment — Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The statement is contradictory because it would not be humanly possible for anyone to believe deeply in the political tenets of Richard Nixon, and at the same time be a conservative Republican — simply because Mr. Nixon is not himself a conservative Republican. He is, by his own admission, a Fabian Socialist.

The question quite naturally arises at this point, "what is a Fabian Socialist?" And the answer follows that a Fabian Socialist is a student and an advocate of the political and social tenets of the British economist Lord John Maynard Keynes.

The rather sad truth is the fact that one-half to two-thirds of our elective and appointive offices in the United States are now held by Fabian Socialists. And even sadder is the astounding fact that 95 per cent of the American electorate has never heard of a Keynesian — or Fabian Socialist — much less understand what their philosophy is, or for that matter comprehend that they have to date managed, by a process of patient gradualism, to gain control of both major political parties in the United States.

Fortunately there is a solution to this problem — there is one option open to the voters. I would suggest that when they go to the polls next November that they pull the lever for the American Independent Party — that's the only action they can take that will make any real difference. All else is rhetoric!

Coach Is Thanked

We were a bit skeptical about enrolling our 9-year-old in an organized baseball league, but our doubts never materialized. Our son had the good fortune of being on a team in Palatine's Boys' Baseball League headed by a coach who taught them baseball skills, teamwork and sportsmanship. He handled the boys magnificently and brought out the best in each one.

We would like to publicly thank Mr. Jerry Thomas (and his assistants, Mr. Kuhel and Mr. Bigelow) of the Barrington Trucking team. It was no surprise that their team came out number one.

Editorial 'Confuses' SCLC

The Board of Directors of the Suburban Division of S.C.L.C. thanks you for editorially expressing your concern for our concerns. It is encouraging to see that we agree that ". . . there is no time for yet another study" of racism. The central commitment of S.C.L.C., as repeatedly expressed by Clyde Brooks and the Suburban Division S.C.L.C. Board of Directors is Affirmative Action-Activism. This has been an S.C.L.C. commitment since 1963, and it is not likely to change.

The posture taken by Paddock Publications in its July 25 editorial is somewhat confusing. Throughout the article, specific examples of racism were given, and the editorial accepted the S.C.L.C. posture that racism does exist. However, Paddock took the "don't rock the boat" position of scolding S.C.L.C. rather than urging white middle-class suburban residents to examine their attitudes and institutions.

Defining racism no longer interests us. We see it clearly defined every day in cross-burnings, harassment, intimidation, and outright threats of violence — all in the conservative Northwest suburbs. Our study is about specific manifestations of suburban institutional racism which prevent attainment and enjoyment of equal opportunity and privileges. We are pinpointing and spotlighting several areas (among others):

—The failure of local governments to pass effective open housing legislation or to establish viable human relations commissions;

—The failure of police, fire, and other local government agencies — using massive amounts of federal money — to recruit or advise minorities of job availability;

—The failure of industry to recruit, hire, train, and promote minority personnel;

—The failure of our educational institutons to prepare our children to live in a multi-racial world;

—The attempt by Real Estate agencies to actually subvert the 1968 Civil Rights Act relative to open housing.

Our study of institutional practices is considered an integral part of our activism to achieve the goal of minority participation in America's promises.

Our tactics will adapt, without illegitimate compromise, to the suburban condition. We will be firm, but we may not be quiet. We will be moderate when moderation is called for, and militant when militancy is called for. In the words of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., "We have a dream," a dream of all men living together in brotherhood and harmony, with equality and justice. We hope that all people of good will in the Northwest suburbs will cooperate and join with us in working toward realization of this dream.

Word-A-Day

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although airline hijackings have caused relatively few outright casualties and most of the ransoms paid by the airlines have been recovered, they can cause serious inconvenience and losses to individuals.

At last an insurance company, American Home Assurance, has introduced a policy rider to pay $100 a day for 20 days for delays and inconvenience resulting from skyjacking. The rider has been offered so far only on international flights because, the company said, in order to offer it on domestic flights they must register it and get approval of all 50 state insurance departments.

The $2,000 maximum rider costs $2 for three days, $4 for 31 to 90 days and $6 for up to six months. The rider can be bought with an ordinary trip insurance policy at any airport where the company has an office.

The Insurance Information Institute said it had not heard of any other company offering such a rider.

INCONVENIENCE insurance is only one and perhaps the smallest worry of the airlines about hijackings. They can get ransom insurance also from American Home Assurance or through Lloyds of London.

The maximum ransom coverage offered is $250,000 and most hijackers demand more than that. Also, airline officials said the coverage is expensive and, anyway, experience shows they have a much better than 50-50 chance of recovering ransom money. For example, the Algerian government has returned $1.5 million in ransoms it seized from hijackers of two American planes. Several hijackers have been captured or surrendered with the ransom fund intact.

THE BIGGEST worry of the airlines over hijackings is damage suits for actual injury or emotional distress suffered by passengers. This is a delicate area complicated by the Montreal and Warsaw Agreements on airline liability to passengers. The problem is over which agreement applies to a particular case or does either agreement apply. The Warsaw Agreement seeks to limit compensation to $8,300 but the Montreal agreement permits recovery of up to $75,000.

In the last analysis it is up to the courts to say how much damages must be paid in a particular case.

At least two such cases now pending in higher courts are being watched carefully by the industry.

There is another complication. The Warsaw Agreement requires claimants to show negligence on the part of the airline. The Montreal Agreement, generally regarded as a supplement to the Warsaw Agreement, makes no such requirement.

Bankers School Opens Sept. 4 At Southern Ill.

More than 190 bankers will be taking up residence on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale on Sept. 4, to begin the 20th Annual Illinois Bankers School. Sponsored by the Illinois Bankers Association, the school will be in session for two weeks.

The first-year study program includes: investments, banking law, operations and control, public speaking, functions of a trust department, economics, commercial loans, bank insurance coverage and public relations and marketing. Subjects covered or continued in the second-year program include agricultural credit, asset management, personnel administration, bank management, management succession, real estate lending, installment lending, commercial loans, public relations and marketing, economics, investments, banking law and operations and control.

The school's faculty will include 37 lecturers from the fields of banking economics, law and business. Among the lecturers will be Richard T. Hepworth, president, Financial Insurance Service, Inc., Des Plaines.

Diplomas will be awarded to graduating students on Sept. 15 by John F. McKnight, president of the Illinois Bankers Association and president of the First Bank of Oak Park.

Chrysler Cars Qualify For Insurance Cuts

Allstate Insurance Co.'s chairman Archie R. Boe congratulated Chrysler Corp. for qualifying all its 1973 model passenger cars for Allstate's 15 per cent bumper discount on collision insurance.

The 15 per cent discount to qualified applicants is for cars meeting Allstate's criteria of a test barrier impact at 5 miles per hour front and 2½ miles per hour rear without any damage.

"We are especially pleased that Chrysler Corp. has not only met but exceeded the federal bumper standard for all its 1973 cars. This is good news for car owners who have been looking forward to receiving a collision discount since we first announced its availability some time ago," Boe said.

"These new Chrysler bumpers will bring significant insurance savings to customers. In addition, the owner of a car qualifying for a rate reduction would also save all or part of the $50 or $100 deductible by the elimination of damages in low speed accidents. Even those who do not buy collision insurance would save on these costs of repair," Boe said.

Boe said the savings apply throughout the life of the car and not only to the first year.

Allstate also offers a 20 per cent and 10 per cent collision discount. The 20 per cent discount, first offered in March, 1970, is for cars meeting Allstate's criteria of a test barrier impact at 5 miles per hour front and 5 miles per hour rear without any damage. The 10 per cent discount is for cars meeting the 1973 federal bumper standards. They require barrier crashes of 5 miles per hour front and 2½ miles per hour rear without damage to a car's safety related systems, such as lighting and cooling systems, exhaust and fuel lines.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The recent battle of the bulls and the bears emerged as a victory for the bulls, according to the Spear Market Report. The market's technical inability to sustain an advance into new 1972 high ground, however, indicates the public isn't yet "in the market" as a force driving stocks higher and that "the news background in recent sessions was a bit less cheery than in earlier weeks," the firm says.

THE STOCK MARKET has been doing well recently, Abraham & Co. notes. It is possible, the firm adds, that the recovery that began several weeks ago will yield another downtrend phase. For several reasons, however, "we expect stock prices to advance during the months ahead, with the Dow sooner or later climbing to new bull-market highs above 980 and thereafter to new all-time highs above 1000," the firm says.

THE ABILITY of the market to periodically correct its excesses and consolidate its overall gains, as it has done recently, is regarded as encouraging by Standard & Poor's Corp. "We would look for an early resumption and broadening-out of the recent uptrend in stock prices," the company adds.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON Institute notes the traditional summer rally came a little late this year. However, "Barring heated-up international hostilities, the strong economic fundamentals make it almost a foregone conclusion that the Dow will hit the elusive 1000 mark before the end of the summer," the firm predicts.

Combined Insurance

Shareholders of Combined Insurance Co. of America approved a 10 per cent share distribution to be issued Sept. 22 to shareholders of record Sept. 1.

At a special shareholders meeting in the company's international headquarters, Chicago, the stockholders approved an increase in the corporation's capitalization to 28,338,567 authorized shares at one dollar par value to allow for the one-for-ten share distribution.

Combined is the parent corporation of a group of five insurance companies. The insurance subsidiaries are Hearthstone Insurance Co. of Massachusetts, Brookline, Mass.; Combined American Insurance Co., Dallas; Combined Life Insurance Co. of New York, Albany, and Combined Insurance Co. of Wisconsin, Fond du Lac.

Lucky Stores, Inc.

Lucky Stores' sales were $477,000,000 and earnings were $6,291,000 for the second quarter ended July 30.

Sales for the quarter showed an increase of 9 per cent over the $439,000,000 in the second quarter of 1971. Earnings were $6,291,000, compared with $6,946,000 for the same period of 1971.

This is equivalent to 20 cents a common share, after preferred dividends, on the average number of common shares outstanding during the quarter. It compares with 22 cents a common share in the second quarter of 1971 (after adjustment for a 3 per cent stock dividend a 100 per cent stock distribution).

Pre-tax earnings were $12,060,000 compared to $14,200,000 in 1971.

Richardson Co.

The Richardson Co. reported second quarter earnings from continuing operations up sharply from 1971. Earnings of $809,000, or 35 cents a share, were 42.9 per cent over the $566,000, or 18 cents a share, earned in 1971. Sales also were up sharply, from $25,759,000 to $29,468,000 this year, an increase of 14.4 per cent.

Earnings for the six months ended June 30 were $1,551,000, or 66 cents a share, after preferred dividends, as compared with $1,181,000, or 41 cents a share, in 1971, an increase of 31.3 per cent. Sales for the six months were $58,668,000, up from $51,247,000, or 14.5 per cent over those for the same period of 1971.

Headquartered in Des Plaines, Richardson has interests in specialty chemicals, plastics, graphic arts materials and equipment, engineered industrial materials and parts, and consulting and environmental engineering.

Arlington In Easy Victory

by PAUL LOGAN

RICHMOND, IND. — The outstanding pitching of Jim Hopkins and the dazzling team speed of Arlington Heights stunned a talented Kokomo, Ind., team here Wednesday, 9-4, in the American Legion Regional Tournament.

The surprisingly lopsided victory over the Indiana state champ carried the Illinois titlist into the second round of the winner's bracket against Trent, Mich. (30-5) at noon Thursday.

"It was the fastest I've been all year," said Hopkins after his brilliant five-hitter, two being scratch singles.

Reminded that some of his losses (7-5 season record) had been caused by not-so-steady play behind him, he added, "That's the best support I've seen in a long time, both in the field and offensively."

Probably because of the heat (high 80's with sunny skies) and the pressure of the opening game, Hopkins failed to mention his team's fantastic overall leg work (eight stolen bases) that totally demoralized the Kokomo defense. Running at will, Heights was led by Bert Newman's three stolen bases with two each by Pat Broderick and Dave Zare.

This typical pressure and pecking offense (Arlington now has 111 steals in 43 games) was spiced by Coach Lloyd Meyer's usual tricks — the delayed double steal and the suicide squeeze. Both worked to perfection.

The game was billed as a weak-hitting (.260) Arlington team against invincible Tom Underwood, 12-0 on the season and holder of eight shutouts with an amazing strikeout-walk ratio of 225 to 26. Underwood had a 0.21 earned run average heading into the game in 101-2/3 innings.

Underwood lived up to the billing in one respect with 14 strikeouts, but he and his teammates were simply outpitched and unnerved by Arlington.

Although Underwood was interviewed prior to the game and was called by the press here as the best hurler in the field, it was Hopkins who had the scout's attention and the writer's pencils working. Jim struck out 12, five coming in the late innings when he was tiring.

Arlington scored single runs in four of the first six innings. Mark Leonhard who will pitch against the Michigan champ, drove in the first with a line drive single. In the third Newman doubled down the left field line. Although missing the sign, he still scored on a suicide squeeze by Leonhard after reaching third on a grounder.

Heights Post 208 made it 3-0 in the fifth with Newman doing the damage on a walk, balk and throwing error. A delayed double steal came in the sixth with one out. Zare, who reached on an error and moved to third on Tony Fricano's single, slid around a tag at home for the fourth run.

Aided by three stolen bases by Newman in the seventh and eighth innings, and a triple by Bob Harth, Arlington blasted Kokomo out of the ball game.

The only big mistakes Hopkins made were pitches to .380 hitter Joe Whitney. Joe tripled in the second and hit another shot in the seventh that went for three bases and led to their first run.

The losers' scored three more in the bottom of the ninth on an error, two walks, and a single.

Fricano led Arlington at the bat with two singles. Defensively, it was shortstop Jim Locascio who drew the plaudits here with a couple gems, an over-the shoulder catch and a belly-flop dive on a grounder to throw out the batter. Locascio also broke an 0-for-21 battling slump with an RBI single in the seventh.

THE HERALD SPORTS files bulge with yellowed clippings of past heroics. One such dusty folder contains this lead paragraph:

"Mark Newman of Arlington Heights showed an amazing 520 average for 25 bats in the American Legion State Tournament in Carmi, Ill."

Newman was one of the bigger heroes in that fabulous year of 1965 as most legion followers will readily recall. Nothing seemed to stand in the way of Coach Lloyd Meyer's boys as they drove relntlessly toward the national title.

Five straight wins in the regional tourney carried Heights to Aberdeen, S.D. for the World Series. Although finishing fifth, it was the greatest success story ever by a local team on a national scale.

"It doesn't seem like that long ago," said Mark after thinking about the seven-year span of time earlier this week. "It was quite an experience."

He was only 16 then — a youngster totally involved in baseball. There was pressure, sure, but he probably didn't fully comprehend its magnitude then. He just played ball.

Mark still wears this proud team's uniform, but in a different capacity — assistant coach. However, that title is deceiving for Meyer treats him like a co-head coach. Tha's why Mark runs most of the show offensively from the third base coach's box, an area patrolled by Meyer up until this year.

"He has pretty much of a free rein at third base," says Meyer of Newman. "We talk about it — when we want to run and when not to — but I don't think I give him more than one or two signs a game."

This twosome has to represent the most experienced coaching combination among the leaders of the seven-team field this week at Richmond, Ind., site of the Regional Tournament. Carrying most of the third base coaching load puts plenty of pressure on this 24-year-old but he's up to it.

"The strategy part of it," answered Newman when asked about the burden of the position. "You have to think quickly."

Newman was doing just that throughout the state tournament, especially during two one-run ball games that he helped set up. In the opener against Kakakee, the score was tied at 5-5 when the first coaching move led to victory. A delayed double steal with two outs was called by Mark at just the right time. Kankakee never shook that shocker and lost 6-5.

Then, in the championship game, he had brother Bert stealing second in the 12th inning against Belleville. But it wasn't any old steal for he again chose the precise moment to cut loose his speedy brother.

Meyer was asked what type of personality his former outfielder had during those four years he coached him.

"He was a fierce competitors," he recalled. "He came to play. I don't recall him ever getting thrown out of a game. He just expected so much out of himself."

If you know Lloyd Meyer, you'd almost think he was describing his days as a ballplayer. These two men are that close, but they also have slight differences to make this a most compatible relationship.

Altough Meyer has mellowed somewhat, he still has a lot of that old fire he is famous (or infamous, if you're the opposition) for. However, Newman has become just the opposite.

"I've matured quite a bit," said Mark. "I worked for a guy at Southern (Illinois University) that taught me a lot about attitude — Itchy Jones."

Newman played under this former coach of the year and is now the pitching coach at SIU during the school year. He's hoping to land a college coaching job someday and then go into law after that. But that's in the future. Mark changed the subject back to the regional.

"The team's got good speed and the kids are beginning to learn how to use it," he said. That's the big difference between '65 and '72, according to Newman.

"The pitching was a lot better," he said of '65. That year Heights had two exceptional pitchers of major league caliber — Tom Lundgren and Paul Splittorff. The latter is now a starter with Kansas City. "They also don't hit as much, but this team runs better and plays as good a defense. They've just done things well."

Since this column was written prior to yesterday's opener, Arlington could either be four wins away from the title or on the verge of being eliminated. However, the latter won't be because Mark Newman displayed the slightest bit of doubt about his team's ability.

"I'm totally confident we'll win it," he said. "I know we'll win if our players come to play."

Using the pronoun "we'll" is a good sign. Maybe Mark, Lloyd and the boys are ready to stage again that meteoric climb to national prominence.

Mask Helps Take The Fear Away . . .

by PHIL KURTH

Steve Kasper never saw the puck.

It came hurtling from the side, crashing into the right side of his face, just below the eye.

Steve crumpled to the ice, his nasal bone fractured, his orbital split from ear to ear, his nose crushed into the shape of a backward C.

After two and half weeks in the hospital during which the sight in one eye was endangered and split vision was a threat, Steve recovered and returned home, carrying a fear of the sport he loved.

A year later he was back on the ice. Then came the scramble for a loose puck, and an opponent's sudden turn.

Steve Kasper never saw the stick. It was a blur as it flashed toward his face and struck with a chilling crack.

But this time Steve didn't crumple to the ice. He smiled, took his helmet off, and glanced at the gouged plastic shield that had protected his face. And maybe he whispered a special thanks to his brother.

It was Mike who had helped him conquer his fear, it was Mike who knew what hockey meant to him, and it was Mike who had designed and constructed the mask that had enabled him to return to the ice. Mike, and his dad, Dale.

The Kaspers live in Medinah but young Steve spent some time earlier this month at the Gene Ubriaco Hockey School in Rolling Meadows.

"When he got home from the hospital, he was naturally scared about playing hockey again," says Mike. "We knew how much he loved to play, so we thought about the idea of a protective mask. We tried to buy one and couldn't so my father and I developed one on our own."

The first model was finished in about three weeks and as imperfections were noted and problems arose, changes were made until the present design evolved.

"One of the big problems we had at first was a fogging of the shield," says Mike, "so we put in air louvers and there's never been any trouble since.

"The shield is suspended away from the face, so it never makes contact with the skin and doesn't reduce visibility at all. The plastic is durable and strong and offers protection against sticks, pucks, or even skates. In fact, it's capable of stopping a .22 bullet."

After the design had been perfected, Mike, a pre-med student at North Central College in Naperville, gave some Thought to marketing the helmet and is currently in the process of investigating the avenues and procuring a financial vehicle.

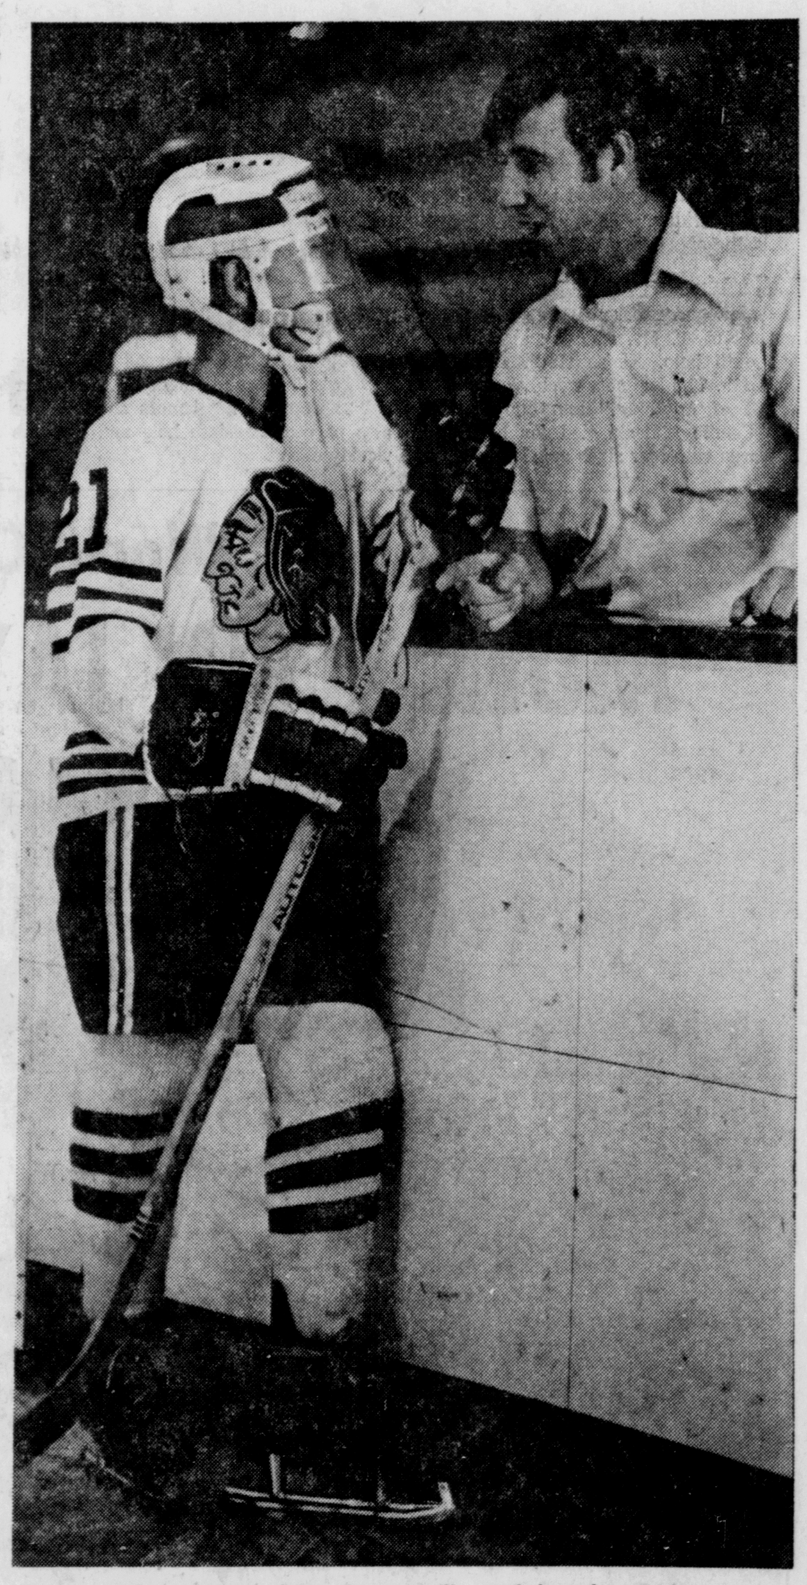
"My father and I looked at our idea for awhile and I went down to a patent lawyer to check it out. They did some research on it and found that there was nothing like it on the market. Right now we're hoping to find someone interested in producing and marketing the helmet.

"We figure it could retail for about six or seven dollars, which is really reasonable for the kind of protection it offers. I've talked to some people in the high schools and they say they'd be willing to make it mandatory if I come out on the market with it.

"Hockey is growing so much and there are so many kids being hurt that it seems something like this could prevent a lot of injuries, a lot of pain, and a lot of medical expense."

Steve Kasper certainly thinks so. With the mask, he's an avid hockey player. Without it, he refuses to step on the ice.

But then he knows the awful result of a misaimed puck and an unguarded face.



After the mask . . . Steve talks with brother Mike.

Merkel, Wild In Semi-Finals

The unseeded doubles team of Jim Merkel of Arlington Heights and Steve Wild of Des Plaines yesterday scored a major upset in the Illinois State Junior Tennis Tournament at River Trails Tennis Center.

Merkel and Wild defeated second-seeded Glenn Golden of Wilmette and Steve Pollock of Winnetka 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 after surviving six match points.

Semi-finals will be played today and the finals tomorrow.

Set Registration In Palatine Hockey

Registration will be held for the Palatine Amateur Hockey League at the Park District Administration Building, 262 E. Palatine Rd., beginning Saturday, Sept. 2 and continuing through Saturday, Oct. 21. Hours will be 9-5 during the week and 9-12 on Saturdays.

Boys who wish to try out for one of the traveling teams must register by Sept. 16 except Mites who have until Sept. 30.

Each boy must bring positive proof of age and at least one parent to sign up. The league takes no medical responsibilities.

Tryouts will be held at the Arlington Ice Spectrum Sept. 18-22 from 5:30 to 7:20 p.m. The only purpose of tryouts is to pick traveling teams. There will be no cuts from the program. Each boy between the ages of seven and 16 who registers by Saturday, Oct. 21 will be placed on a team and play in the games.

There will be a new Mite traveling all-star team this year. All of the traveling teams are in addition to the regular house program. A team jersey and goalie equipment will be provided. The boys must provide their own helmet, external mouth guards, heavy gloves, sticks, skates and pads.

The house league teams will have indoor ice at the new Spectrum on a regular basis from Oct. 31 through March 24. In addition to indoor ice, there will again be a full schedule of outdoor practices and games in January and February. All told, each team will have about a 30 to 35-game season with 18 to 20 games outdoors.

House league fees will be as follows: First boy in family, $15 for residents; $20 for non-residents in the Mite Division. For the Squirt, Pee Wee, Bantam and Midget Divisions: first boy in family for residents and $35 for non-residents. There will be a $5 discount for each boy after the first in a family for residents only.

Other information on the program, including that pertaining to leagues, practices and equipment for traveling teams, can be obtained from the Palatine Park District.

First Rain, Then Heat But Newcomers Still Have Fun

After getting rained out the previous week, women playing in the Arlington Heights Newcomers Golf League at Arlington Country Club had to battle fierce heat last Friday.

But the oppressive temperatures didn't appear to bother Jeanne Fleming. Participating in the First Flight, she shot the day's low gross score of 53 as well as the low net of 36. Ms. Fleming also birdied the sixth hole. Eloise Harrison parred the sixth. The league's weekly event was "Most of Anything," and Judy Nelson and Connie Malecki tied for honors in this area with four sixes apiece.

In the Second Flight, Irene Burquest carded a low gross 58 which was reduced to a net 39. Betty Herlache and Pat Abbott both parred No. 6. Ms. Abbott had the most sevens.

Dorothy Gabbei registered a low gross of 73 and a low net of 42 in the Third Flight. Lee Yelovich won the weekly event.

Lallie woods' 74 was good enough for low gross honors in Flight No. 4 and her net 38 won low net honors as well. She also parred the sixth hole and won the weekly event.

FAN FARE — By Walt Ditzen

Bulls Release 72-73 Home Schedule

The Chicago Bulls open their 41-game National Basketball Association home schedule for the 1972-73 season on Tuesday, Oct. 10 against the Philadelphia 76ers, in the Chicago Stadium.

General Manager Pat Williams pointed out that local fans will be able to see 21 week-end games; seven Saturdays, 10 Fridays, and four Sunday games.

The world champion Los Angeles Lakers make three Stadium appearances, with the first one scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 12. The arch-rival Milwaukee Bucks make three Stadium visits with their first one scheduled during the holiday weekend, Dec. 30, plus a Sunday matinee on Feb. 4.

The New York Knicks appear in the Stadium only twice during the 1972-73 season.

The Bulls longest home stand will be the month of January when they play 10 games, with a brief respite during the 23rd annual All-Star game, to be played in the Chicago Stadium, Tuesday Jan. 23 at 8:40 p.m.

All home games tip-off at 7:30 p.m., with afternoon games scheduled to start at 1:10 p.m. unless otherwise specified.

According to Williams, this year's 1972-73 schedule for the 41 home games in the Stadium is the most attractive for local fans since the Bulls became part of the NBA during the 1966-67 season.

JACKIE OLIVER, the rainmaster, in the UOP Shadow, forging ahead to an ultimate second place finish on the slippery, wet Mid-Ohio course during the 1972 Buckeye Cup Can-Am race.

Aim For Win In 'Bratwurst Country'

Englishman Jackie Oliver and the crew of his American-built Universal Oil Products Shadow will seek this weekend (Aug. 26-27) to make their return here to "Bratwurst Country" a triumphant one.

Oliver, no stranger to winner's cirlces in other forms of racing, wants to score his first Canadian-American Challenge Cup victory here at Road America, the picturesque site of the fifth race in the 1972 series for unlimited sports racing cars.

The diminutive driver came as close as he ever has to a Can-Am victory — second place — in a 196-mile sprint through intermittant rain showers in Ohio two weeks ago.

"Now the whole team is ripe for a win," says Oliver, "and none of us can think of a more appropriate place to have it; Road America is one of our favorite places."

Oliver hopes that his determined drive to the finish line at the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course on Aug. 6 signalled the end to a string of bad luck that has plagued the team since the opening of the season. It was, in fact, the team's first trouble-free race in four starts this year. Mechanical failures prevented the car from finishing the other three.

"We've had our share of misfortune," says Oliver. "Now, perhaps, that's behind us."

Oliver has the dubious distinction of having finished second in more Can-Am races (four) than any other "non-winner" except Texan Jim Hall. Oliver scored his other second places in 1970 and the Ti22, another American-built car. In 1971, Oliver's best finish was a third, in the UOP Shadow MkII, at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Last year, here, Oliver started the Road America Can-Am from the front row of the grid, only to be delayed during the race by tire punctures. He eventually finished 12th.

Winning is the next logical step for the Shadow team, an organization with a couple of important points to make.

First of all, Oliver and the men from Don Nichol's Advanced Vehicle Systems are working to prove that an American-built car can compete successfully with the best that European designers and builders produce.

The Universal Oil Products Company of Des Plaines meanwhile has a point to make too. UOP is compiling what it hopes will be incontestable evidence that unleaded fuels, which are burned exclusively in the Shadow, are in everyway competitive with their leaded counterparts, no matter what type of an engine a motorist uses.

The company believes this evidence has important implications in the battle for cleaner air through reduced auto exhaust emissions.

UOP, a recognized leader in petroleum refining technology, has concluded that the catalytic converter system is the most reasonable method now available to reduce harmful emissions. But research has shown that lead additives in gasoline reduce the effectiveness of such converters.

The company believes it essential that the everyday motorist be able to use a catalytic device in conjunction with lead-free gasoline. It is seeking to prove through racing that the motorist need pay no penalty in engine performance or economy as he helps make the air cleaner.

Continued strong performances by the UOP Shadow Team — it has not suffered an engine failure in 12 races — will help make that point.

Area Youngsters Place In 7 Jamboree Events

Youngsters from the Herald area placed in seven different events in the 17th annual Illinois Junior Sports Jamboree last Saturday at Crystal Lake Community High School in the northern Illinois town.

Palatine boasted three place-winners in Dan Kilrain, Debbie Weaver and the relay team of Many Waetherford, Debbie Weaver, Anne Meyer and Susan Dawson. Mt. Prospect's Trudi Rebsamen and Kim Feige both placed among the top finishers in their events. Streamwood's Al Sietman and Carla Rub of Arlington Heights rounded out the placers from the area.

Although none of these contestants were blue-ribbon winners, Carla and Dan picked off second places. Carla was second in the Midget Girls 50-yard dash in a time of :06.8 and Dan's 17-4 long jump was good enough for second in the Junior Boys division.

Kim garnered a third place with a 203-6 baseball throw in the Intermediate Girls category, Al ran :10.5 in the Intermediate Boys 100-yard dash for third and Palatine grabbed third in the Midget Girls 440-yard relay with a time of :59.1.

Debbie placed fourth in the Midget Girls 100-yard dash with a :12.8 clocking and Trudi finished sixth in the Intermediate Girls 220-yard dash at :29.1.

These local youngsters were among 500 boys and girls from all over the state between the ages of 10 and 15 who survived the summer-long competition from 40,000 entries in more than 200 communities. Only the finalists participated in Crystal Lake.

The competition was in three divisions: Midgets (ages 10 and 11), Juniors (12 and 13) and Intermediates (14 and 15). The sponsors of the Jamboree were the Illinois Jaycees, the Governor's Office of Human Resources and the Community Service Unit of the Illinois Department of Corrections' Juvenile division.

Hauer Accepts Steward Post

Henry Hauer, a long time Arlington Heights resident, and formerly the clerk of the scales in the winner's circle at Arlington Park, has been named a steward in a racing official's capacity for the remainder of the meeting.

The vacancy appeared when Melvin Mackin returned east to his Maryland circuit. Hauer will replace Mackin and work with Illinois Racing Board representative Ted Atkinson and Raymond Pollock.

Mackin had accepted the Arlington stewardship with the agreement he could leave Aug. 9 to fulfill a previous officiating commitment in Maryland.

After concluding the final week of racing at Arlington Park, Hauer will continue his stewardship at the upcoming Sportsman's meeting.

Harper College Holding Practices

Athletes interested in trying out for the Harper College football team should report to the college field tonight at 6:30.

Throughout the week head coach John Eliasik will be holding conditioning workouts at that time. Equipment will be issued on Saturday.

Athletes are advised to get a physical as soon as possible. The one taken by freshmen upon enrolling in school is sufficient, according to Eliasik.

Eliasik wants prospective Hawk players to bring T-shirts, shorts and spikes to this week's workouts. Gym shoes are acceptable this week.

40,000 MILE TREAD LIFE EXPECTANCY POLICY

With proper care and normal driving, you will get at least 40,000 miles of tread wear from new, first-class Custom Power Cushion Polysteel tires on your car.

If you don't get 40,000 miles — and provided you were the original buyer of the tires and they are still on the original car — bring the tires and the policy booklet (with recorded mileage readings) to any Goodyear Service Store or Dealer in the United States or Canada. They will give you credit for mileage not received on the purchase of new Custom Power Cushion Polysteel tires, based on Goodyear's "Pre-determined Price for Adjustment".

A small service charge may be added.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Expert South was in bad humor. He had been holding bad cards and his palooka opponents were all winning from him in the rubber bridge game.

His three-club call can only be ascribed to that bad humor which was not improved any when West let out a resounding double but when the smoke had cleared away South was positively beaming while East and West were engaged in one of those verbal fights that seem to enliven rubber bridge games.

Diamonds were continued with South ruffing the third lead. He finessed dummy's queen of hearts and ruffed the last diamond while East jettisoned a heart. Next came a heart to the ace and a ruff of a heart with East disposing of the deuce of spades.

East had had two chances to use his 10 of clubs but had held it back.

Now South led a low spade and West did his bit to help South along. Instead of ducking he played his ace and led the suit back.

South cashed the king and queen of spades and led a heart from dummy. East had a last chance to beat the contract but he still refused to put his 10 of clubs to work. He ruffed low. South overruffed with the eight and West was forced to win the trick and lead to South's trump tenace.

The Volunteer Bureau

Volunteers Aid Day Camp Staff

Camp Bubbling Brook was the name of the day camp conducted by the Girl Scouts at Ned Brown Forest Preserve Aug. 8-18. A total of 65 volunteers were involved in the camp including some Hersey High School sociology students; mothers of Girl Scouts of today, yesterday, and even tomorrow; Senior Scouts; and some who are none of these categories but simply dedicated to the principals of Scouting.

"You don't need to know a square knot from a fire," is what Elena Rutter, Arlington Heights director of the day camp, said to potential volunteers as she proceeded to give them four solid days of training. During the training sessions volunteers were already involved in the process of looking after the kids while their moms were preparing for the days when they would be the volunteers. Carol Ecklesten, Eunice Watanabe, Betty Molloy, and Fran Manichowicz of Mount Prospect; and Mary Ann Lawlor and Betsy Christensen of Elk Grove Village were the early-bird volunteers.

On the staff of the camp were the Asst. Dir. Eleanor Kehr, Mount Prospect; Betty Shelven, Des Plaines, and Liz Weber, Elk Grove Village, nurses; Recruiter and Adm. Aide Mary Wendt, Elk Grove Village, and Eunice Watanabe, Mount Prospect; Registrar Carol James, Elk Grove Village; and Unit Leaders Bessie Piecuch of Elk Grove Village, Joan Olson of Mount Prospect, Dolly Burton of Mount Prospect, and Linda Purlee of Mount Prospect — all volunteers!

Ninth graders Lori Gasero and Cindy McCloughan of Elk Grove Village, and Lynn Schneider and Stephanie Burton of Mount Prospect were program aides; and Shirley Contine of Arlington Heights, Betsy Christensen of Elk Grove Village, and Cathy Molloy of Mount Prospect were the Leprechan Ladies — that is, they were in charge of the small children of the volunteers at the camp.

Some of the specialists of the volunteer assignments were the shoppers of supplies, edible and otherwise, who were Nancy Trigueros and Betty Molloy of Mount Prospect. The craft consultant was Joan Reinert, Mount Prospect, and the naturalist was Marilyn Rix of Prospect Heights — all volunteers.

Three women were drivers for one of the counselors who needed transportation due to blindness. Louise Gentry, Arlington Heights; Betty Shelven, Des Plaines; and Pat Piper, Arlington Heights filled this assignment in shifts.

From Mount Prospect came the following counselors: Bev Burton, Diana Cassiere, Mary Castronovo, Gini Doheny, Kathy Kopinski, Lynn Nelson, Geri Pagel, Pat Partlow, Rhea Thomas, Tillie Walkowiza, Jerry Zemko, Bill Bethell, Cay Carlson, Betty Spencer, Mary Jo Castronovo, Debbie Saunders, Roz Barker and Darrell Trout.

Donna Burt, Kari Johnson and Roger Coffman were from Arlington Heights. The young men named among these volunteers were students from the Hersey sociology class under the direction of W. C. Kozlowski, and they were assigned to the unit under Mrs. Olson which consisted of the handicapped youngsters, both girls and boys.

From Elk Grove Village came these counselors: Bernie Frankiewicz, Barbara Franklin, Peggy Rogers, Joan Rydberg, Sandy Shoemaker, Karen Mack, and Toni Kuehl.

Kay Powell of Des Plaines, Mary Reilly of Wheeling, Sarah Henry of Hoffman Estates, and Therese Schmieg of Wildwood complete the list of volunteers.

One more should be mentioned because on that "rainy, rainy" Friday this father brought some dry firewood to the campsite. A volunteer father and he was most welcome, Richard Baley of Mount Prospect.

From all reports the camp was a resounding success, and the Volunteer Service Bureau Northwest Cook County is not surprised. The ingredients of a successful program were all there — good training, supervision, and the overall respect for the volunteer as a first class citizen. "Together We Can Do It," say the Girls Scouts. "Great," says the Volunteer Bureau.

NOW 1½ BATH MODEL

Own a champagne house on a beer budget.

If you've got a taste for the better things in life, but not the bankroll to match, this house is made for you.

For just $20,990. For real. Thanks to a revolutionary way of building that does for houses what Henry Ford did for cars.

We put five fabulous homes under just one roof. So they'd look like just one very big, very handsome house. And so we could split up the cost five ways.

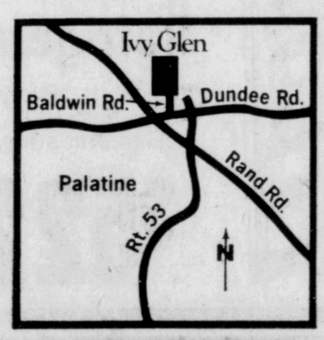
We also manufactured all the parts we could. So they'd cost less and be made better. And we built all our houses in clusters. So every one would look out on a super-colossal front yard (instead of the typical, tiny front- and backyard). So we could even save you money on land.

As for the inside, it's a dream. Big and cozy. Two bedrooms. Carpeting wall to wall. GE oven-range, refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher and disposer. Individual central heating and air conditioning. Storage space. Enclosed garage. And privacy aplenty, from your own entrance to special sound-engineered walls that hush all the noise.

There's more. Something you'd hardly expect to get for $20,990. No maintenance. Nothing at all to interfere with the way you spend your free time. And all for just $950 down and a total monthly payment of $151.* The closing costs are on us.

Of course, you may want another bedroom. Fine. You've also got your choice of three-bedroom floor plans. And four- or five-family homes, in ten exterior designs and one or two stories. (We think variety is the spice of homes, too.)

You're welcome to see our model homes any day of the week between 10 and 10. We're in Palatine. On Baldwin Road, north of Dundee (Route 68) between Rand and I-53. 1200 E. Gardenia Lane. (312) 359-9212.



Ivy Glen. Handsome two- and three-bedroom homes, from $20,990.

Ivy Glen-Palatine

A development of Building Systems Housing Corporation, subsidiary of Building Systems, Inc.

*Loan of $20,040 with 348 monthly payments of 7.78% simple interest, reflecting an 8.37% annual percentage rate. Payment includes principal and interest ($146.57) as well as mortgage insurance ($4.17). Condominium fee of $35.00 (est.) and taxes of $48.67 (est.) are extra per month.

FACTS AND FEATURES ABOUT . . . THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Few areas in America offer the combined charm, natural beauty, convenience and residential acceptance of the great Northwest Chicago Suburban area.

Here, in a natural valley of rich earth, streams, lakes and wonderful mature trees is everything needed for total living comfort.

FOR INDUSTRY . . . there are vast, strategically located industrial complexes that enhance the land value and balance the social/economic nature of the communities, offering employment as well as tax relief to the residents.

FOR CHILDREN . . . there are numerous recreational facilities for safe, healthy supervised activity in a climate of fresh, clean, tree scrubbed air.

FOR ADULT RECREATION . . . there are dozens of private and public golf courses formed by the interesting, rolling hillsides and gracious trees that abound in the area. There is the nearby Illinois inland lake chain that affords boating, swimming and fishing.

FOR THE FAMILY . . . there is an ideal balance of residential communities offering a most complete selection of home styles to suit every taste, budget and space requirement. American Colonials, ranches, split levels, condominiums, giant apartment complexes with pools, tennis courts and recreation pavilions, adult living complexes that offer peace and quiet in an atmosphere of town and country convenience . . . no matter what your life style, there are communities perfect for everyone with home values ranging from $29,000 to $200,000.

FOR EDUCATION . . . the Northwest Suburban school system is generally recognized as one of America's finest, featuring an unusually high scholastic standing in all levels from grade schools to Junior College.

FOR RETAIL CONVENIENCE . . . the Northwest Suburbs are rich with well planned, well developed shopping areas in the neighborhood as well as 2 of the country's largest super shopping complexes, Randhurst and Woodfield Mall. And . . . the streamlined commuter system plus the extensive expressway systems with adjacency to nearby O'Hare International Airport offers the utmost in transportation convenience.

These are some of the many reasons why the Northwest Suburbs have taken their place as one of America's most desirable living areas . . . communities that are pledged to the continuation of total living loveliness in the highest traditions of American freedom, peace and prosperity.

Affluent Seeking Leisure-Time Homes

Around the turn of the century, waterfront recreation communities were being developed in such areas as Newport and Palm Beach and were being enjoyed by a group known as the "leisure class." Today, according to the Kennedy Company, the more affluent Americans are showing signs of again becoming a leisure class and are seeking residences in recreation-oriented communities.

Fox Point, the Kennedy Company's luxury single-family home community in northern Barrington, is one of their most outstanding developments for both the recreational aspects and the calibre of homes. The sales record is proving this, according to Ed Opfer, Sales Manager at Fox Point.

"ONE OF THE major reasons that home purchasers decide to settle at Fox Point is because of the abundance of leisure-time facilities available to them, both within the community and immediately adjacent to it," said Opfer.

Fox Point has been developed along the shoreline of Lake Louise, a 46-acre spring-fed lake which provides a natural playground for water sports year round. Residents have their own private boat launching and storage area while, just off shore, is an island retreat for picnicking and recreation. The lake is ideal for sailing, canoeing and fishing in summer while in winter it is used for ice skating.

The Fox Point Bath and Tennis Club, available to residents and their guests, provide a focal point for summer sports acitvity with its Olympic-size swimming pool and tennis courts. There is also a play area for children. In addition, three areas within the community have been designated for parks and playgrounds through the Homeowners' Association.

Surrounding the community are even more recreational amenities, such as golf courses at a number of public and private clubs; riding stables with 75 miles of riding trails in neighboring Barrington Hills; and several forest preserves.

THE BASIC STYLES for the Kennedy Company luxury homes available at Fox Point are geared for recreation and entertainment. The traffic patterns within are aimed at separating the formal from the informal zones of the home. Oversized garages in some homes are large enough to shelter a boat or snowmobile as well as cars. Additional bedrooms and bathrooms can be added easily to the floor plan to promote a life-style that includes weekend guests to share the leisure-time activities.

Large family rooms for informal entertaining are included in all of the homes. In most models; mud/laundry rooms have direct access to a powder room and feature a separate rear entry to cater to outdoorsmen returning in weathered sports clothes or with armfuls of equipment.

One of the most perfect luxury recreation homes, according to Ed Opfer, sales manager at Fox Point is "The Battersea," a 4-bedroom, 2½ bath, two-story home priced from $70,800 including the half-acre lot. It is designed after the early Eastern Seaboard Colonials and features a distinctive English gambrel roof.

THE CENTRAL ENTRY to this efficiently planned home provides access to each major living area without passing through another. The guest closet, stairway and nearby powder room are all in the foyer. To one side is the spacious living room, and on the other side is the large formal dining room. Back of the foyer are the informal areas.

The U-shaped kitchen has plenty of cabinets and work space, and a breakfast nook with sliding glass doors leading to the backyard patio. Off of the kitchen is the laundry room and entry to the garage. The paneled family room, adjacent to the kitchen, has a fireplace and more sliding glass doors leading outside.

The central hallway upstairs provides access to the four large bedrooms, family bathroom, and two hall linen closets. The master bedroom is at one end of the hall allowing it more privacy. It has a walk-in closet, dressing room with vanity and private shower. Each of the bedrooms has ample closet space.

There are seven different plans for homes available at Fox Point, each with a choice of three exterior styles and a variety of exterior materials for construction. Every Kennedy Company home can be customized to suit the personal needs of the residents.

MORE THAN 400 homes have been built at Fox Point to date, all with access to Lake Louise and the Bath and Tennis Club. Seventeen new homesites have just been approved for construction by the Barrington Village Planning Commission and Village Board.

Fox Point homes range in price from $68,300 to $97,800, each including a half-acre lot. The price also includes many extras, such as fireplaces, carpeting or oak floors, storms and screens, Tappan kitchen appliances, finished garages, patios, walks and driveways.

Mullins Real Estate Opens Third Office

Bill Mullins of Mullins Real Estate has announced the opening of a third office in Hanover Park. Located at Irving and Wise Roads, the new office will accommodate the growing volume of business handled by Mullins Real Estate in the Hanover Park, Streamwood and Schaumburg area.

Robert Carlson will be the sales manager of the new office. Carlson has been with Mullins Real Estate for two years, working at the Arlington Heights office. The firm also has an office in Mount Prospect.

Seven people will staff the branch office. An additional five people will be added later.

Mullins also announced that as of July 1, home sales and listings by Mullins Real Estate has exceeded the total amount of the entire 1971 sales year.

He projected that a "total of $8 million to $10 million in business will be transacted in 1972."

The firm hopes to expand into the Hoffman Estates area after the first of next year.

Firm Specializes In Planned Unit Developments

Two large firms in different fields of real estate development, Romanek-Golub and Co. and I. Simon and Son, have created a new firm called The Simon/R-G Group, Inc.

With one $22-million planned unit development already underway and another of similar scope to be announced soon, the company is expected to become an immediate major factor in planned unit developments in suburban Chicago and Chicago city proper, and on a national scale.

According to Ned Simon, president of the newly formed Simon/R-G Group, Inc. and of I. Simon and Son, their "immediate objective is to produce from 500 to 700 residential units annually."

Other officers are Robert Neumann, executive vice president and secretary; I. Simon, chairman of the executive committee; Marvin Romanek, vice president; and Eugene Golub, treasurer. Neumann is also a vice president of I. Simon and Son, while Romanek and Golub are officers and partners in Romanek-Golub and Co., the real estate company currently developing the 38-story LaSalle Plaza office tower.

The new company will be headquartered at 625 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

THE FIRST major development of the firm is Atrium, the 498-unit development in Elmhurst. The 27-acre planned unit development, selling individual units from $33,500 to $56,400 is the first such development in Elmhurst. Until Atrium became a project of the new company it had been a joint venture of I. Simon and Son and Romanek-Golub and Co.

ACCORDING TO Eugene Golub, "Romanek and Golub has been keenly interested for the past several years in expanding into the planned community market. It was a matter of finding the right people and organization, with sufficient experience and innovative talents, to blend with our particular experience and record in financing and conceptualization. We were interested only in a long-term commitment to quality housing of this nature. The Simon people represented what was needed to create the proper mix."

"From our viewpoint," added Ned Simon, "we feel I. Simon and Son's 46 years of experience in quality homes and Romanek-Golub's record in large-scale financing and development is a perfect combination to successfully meet the increasing complexities of quality planned community developments. The esidential home market today requires such a blending to create a top leader in the field."

A 45-acre site in a Northwest suburb has already been purchased by The Simon/R-G Group for the construction of a planned unit development. Subject to requirements for local approval, work on this second $20-million development could begin as early as January, 1973.

I. Simon and Son, which was established by Isadore Simon in 1927, will remain a corporate entity in connection with the award-winning Portals planned unit development in the Lincoln Park area. In addition, I. Simon and Son will continue to develop the recently announced 23-acre planned unit development in Hoffman Estates, and will continue to own and operate several major apartment building developments in the Chicago area.

I. Simon, who became chairman of I. Simon and Son in 1966 when his son Ned became president, will also be a director of The Simon/R-G Group.

GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONIES were held recently for Inverrary, the new quadrominium development by Marlis Construction Company, west of suburban Deerfield. Participating were Don Henry, assistant Vice president of Marlis; Tom Boucher, vice president; Ralph Markus, president; and Marlene McGuinn, Sales manager. Inverrary, described as featuring the largest quadrominium homes ever built in the Chicagoland area, is located on Milwaukee Avenue, midway between Deerfield Road and County Line Road. Models are expected to open in late September.

Quinlan And Tyson Announces Financing

Quinlan and Tyson Mortgage Corporation has made a $1,150,000 mortgage on a newly completed warehouse faility in Oak Brook.

The facility, at the northwest corner of Swift and Windsor Drive in Oak Brook, has been occupied by Xerox under a term lease with renewal options.

The property contains a 68,600-square-foot building which is fully air-conditioned and has a sprinkling system. The building is on an irregular site of about 162,000 square feet with parking for 50 cars.

The architects were Smith and Stephens, A.I.A.

Permanent financing in the amount of $1,150,000 has been furnished by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U.S., through Robert C. Kinn, division manager.

Interim financing was completed by Quinlan and Tyson Mortgage Corporation, according to Leland N. Larson, president. Negotiations for permanent and interim financing were handled by Roy W. Wolty, vice president.

Development and construction for the project was by I. C. Harbour Construction Company of Oak Brook, which was represented by Raymond Goldfarb of Williams and Leonard. Attorney for Equitable was Malcolm Mecartney of Ross, Hardies, O'Keefe, Babcock and Parsons.

Gladstone Sales Hit New High

Sales for the first six months of 1972 hit a record high at Gladstone, Realtors. The firm, which opened two new offices recently, reported an increase of 61 per cent over sales for the like period of 1971.

"We opened our Villa Park office the first of the year and started out with a staff of five," said Vincent J. Bolger, partner in the Gladstone firm. "Our present staff now numbers 18." Bolger's partner, John L. Markay, said there's a similar growth pattern in the Mount Prospect office, which opened early in June.

Gladstone also has offices in Franklin Park, Des Plaines, and Elk Grove Village, where the firm's industrial division is headquartered in the same building as the residential division.

ANNEN & BUSSE, INC. announced completion of sales in the Stoltzner-built, 20-unit condominium complex on Eastern Avenue in Barrington. The two and three bedroom condominiums have basements and garages and range in price from $26,900 to $36,900.

Opposition To Real Estate

Strong opposition to the real estate tax structure as a whole and to the classification and percentages of market value determinations in particular were voiced by representatives of the Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago at a classification hearing Aug. 8 of the Cook County Assessor's Office.

Presenting the view of the large apartment owner, Ned Simon, Apartment Council president, stated that the Council is philosophically opposed to real estate taxes providing for other than real estate services, citing two examples — education and welfare — as areas which have "clearly exceeded reasonable bounds." "Both are state responsibilities and properly ought to be provided for from sources other than real estate taxes," he said.

Regarding classification of properties, Simon stated that in the Council's opinion all residential living units provide the same function and therefore should be classified in a single category to include every form of living unit, be it owned or rented.

Simon, president of I. Simon and Son, builders/developers, explained that the Council does not seek to change the single family residential tax picture, but only to bring apartments to the same level, with a single percentage assessment excepting necessary factored allowances for federally subsidized housing to place it on a comparable base.

Pointing to some significant differences between apartments and single family dwellings as enumerated in charts provided the hearing board, Simon stated: "It should be noted that roads and parking in apartment areas are generally owned and maintained by the apartment owners, thus not a burden on the taxing source. Further the concentration of living units in a relatively small area by apartments reduces the unit cost of roads, police, fire protection, and other services which are spread over great areas in single family residential areas and generate a higher community unit cost per living unit than for apartments, and yet, apartments are taxed substantially higher. Road maintenance alone as cited in the appendix, can show for the same number of units a factor over ten times as great for single family as for multi-family in a given example."

Simon also pointed to the fact that large high rise apartment complexes provide a great many amenities, recreational facilities, and other services at no cost whatever to the taxpayer, and yet, the tax per living unit is greater than single family units which typically provide none of these amenities, but rely on community-provided services from the tax base.

"But," continued Simon, "large operations composed of hundrreds of units are only part of the problem of excessive and confiscatory taxing practices. The small apartment owner is in grave difficulty, occasioned by inability to 'make it' simply because the elements of which his expense pattern is composed are beyond his control."

Simon then introduced Casimir Dolemba, representing the Small Apartment Owners Committee of the Apartment Council, who himself is owner of an 18-flat building on the West Side. In particular Dolemba cited the substantially smaller burden that apartments place on the community in terms of children of school age, giving his own building as an example — three children and two of them below school age.

"This is not unlike the pattern that exists in our own Chicago region as well as nationally," he stated, citing another chart of statistics provided to the hearing board. The tables showed that anywhere up to fourteen times as many children generate from single family as from high rises, while garden apartments produce less than half as many children.Dolumba stated that many of the costs including taxes are fixed and beyond the control of the owner. "The janitorial service is certainly among these and is at a fixed ten per cent of revenue," he said. "The owner has no choice."

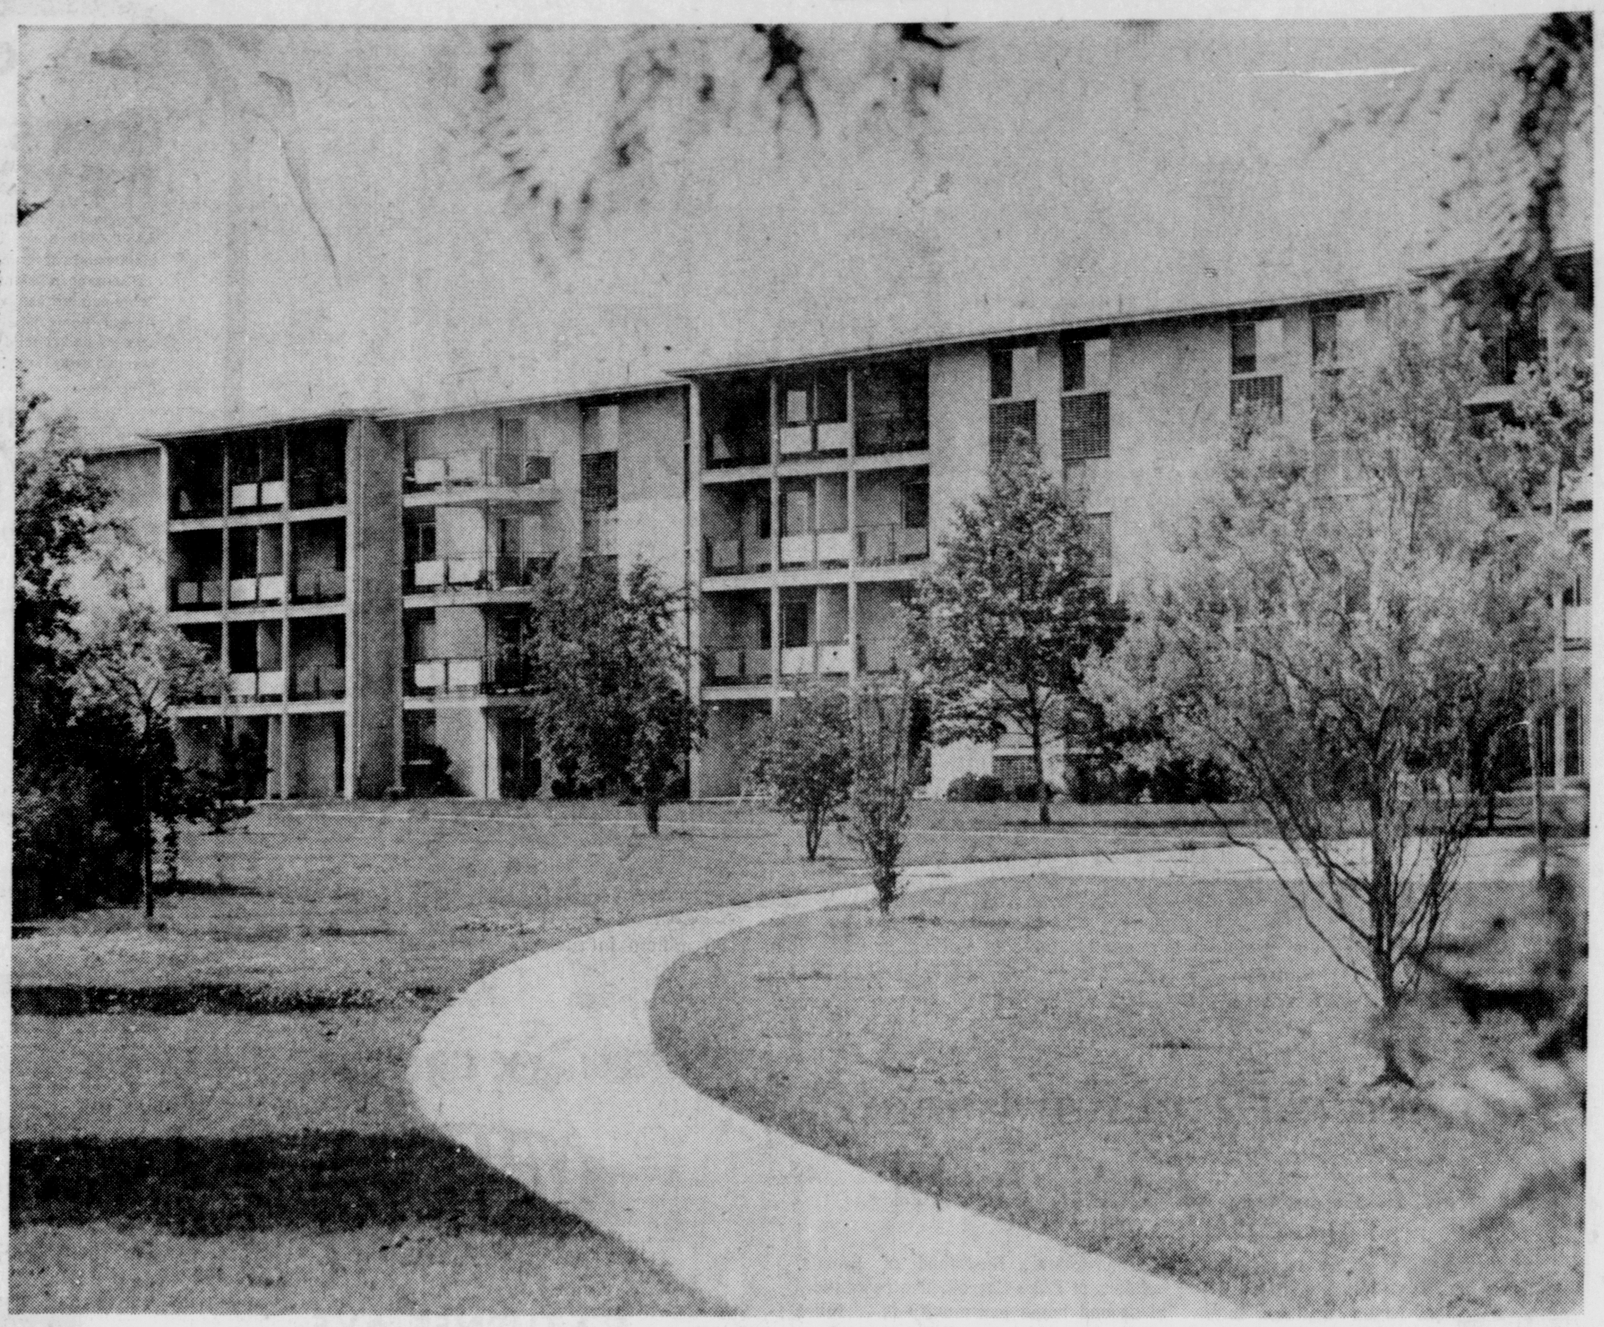
Dolemba suggested a lower tax rate as incentive in portions of the city which are finding large numbers of abandoned buildings, due largely to the high tax rate which has made survival impossible.

"We cnntend," he said, "that no taxes at all, which is what is collected from an abandoned building, creates a public hazard, requires far greater police and fire protection, and works to help perpetuate and accelerate further deterioration and destruction of the community."

He asked that all living units be placed in a single classification and taxed at a fixed 20 per cent of market value (which equates approximately to 16 2/3 per cent of gross revenue). These properties are currently being taxed at between 1.39 and 1.67 times the 16 2/3 per cent of gross revenue rate.

In summarizing, Simon stated that excessive taxes are forcing foreclosures which lead ultimately to abandonment. "Savings and loan institutions are reporting the return of buildings, both through foreclosures and simply by owners walking in the door and turning the deed over to the savings and loan and walking away from their investment because they have been taxed out of any reasonable expectation of surviving in a deterioriating market place.

"For a nation which prides itself on support of the small entrepreneur, it seems unreal to actually observe the decline of the small owner as he is frozen out and forced to release his property because he cannot meet the taxes which are collected for purposes unrelated to real estate services."



COUNTRY ACRES CONDOMINIUMS offer one, two and three-bedroom units with many amenities for owners and their guests, including two swimming pools, protected playgrounds for children and complete maintenance year round of grounds, lawns and walks.

Developers Revive The Ol' Fishing Hole

Ye ol' fishing hole, a favorite boyhood pleasure spot that has delighted everyone from grandfathers to grandsons, may be fast disappearing in many places but it's making a big comeback in Lincolnshire, Ill., in a new community called Wood Creek Courts.

Five "fishing holes," which are actually small lakes, are being created and a dense woods protected in conjunction with the building of 74 ultra-luxury homes — proof that progress can preserve and protect and not just destroy, The Irvin A. Blietz Organization and Valenti Builders, Inc., co-developers, say.

The builders are also carefully moving 1,800 trees and protecting 200-year-old oaks in a massive seven-point environmental program to preserve a natural setting of thousands of trees that will surround homes built in clusters. Model homes are scheduled to open this fall.

Americans Head For Country To Get Away From It All

"With retreats at Camp David, Key Biscayne and San Clemente at his disposal, President Nixon appears interested in one more refuge from Washington, this one on the Maryland sea shore," according to recent wire service reports.

You may not have stopped to think about it — but if you're a typical American you have more in common with President Nixon than you might know.

Oddsa are you both spend your weekends the same way.

This doesn't mean sitting around deciding affairs of state, of course. Rather, it's that, come Friday, President Nixon — like many other urban Americans — puts the city limits behind him and heads for a weekend retreat where he can relax in outdoor surroundings with a luxury touch. And since you can only be in one retreat at a time, one is almost as good as four.

"When the President goes to San Clemente — or Key Biscayne — or Camp David, he's right in there with everybody else," points out John Lazarowicz, senior vice president, Russwood of Illinois, builders of Lake Carroll. The recreational second home community is 26 miles southwest of Freeport, Ill.

"It's not just that Nixon puts Washington behind him — but that he seeks outdoor surroundings, with emphasis on sun, water and recreation."

There's a common bond even with the harassed urbanite who wrestles traffic and gets in line at a public beach.

But the parallel is particularly noticeable when you start counting the growing number of Americans who are buying weekend retreats of their own at places like Lake Carroll.

True, property owners don't have the White House helicopter and Air Force One to help them beat the traffic. But they don't spend that much time on the road, either. Most come from cities within easy driving distance. Lake Carroll is only a two hour drive from Chicago.

A number of Lake Carroll lots are being purchased for use as weekend retreats now and retirement homes later.

Remember To Move Your Money, Too

As the most mobile nation on earth, Americans change their residences with what other nations regard as dizzying frequency. But with a little foresight and planning, house moving can be accomplished with ease if not pleasure.

Unfortunately, while most families remember to call the packers, the movers, the electric company and the telephone company, too many wait too long before transferring their bank accounts. And let's face it, why should the hardware store in your new town accept a stranger's check drawn on a bank 2000 miles away?

A much easier course when you're moving from one city to another is to visit an officer of the full service bank which currently holds your accounts. He will gladly write a letter of introduction to a bank located in the city where you intend taking up residence, therefore simplifying the whole transferral.

Additionally, if you can select the actual branch along the lines of convenience to your new home before you make your move, things can be simpler.

Armed with your letter of introduction, spend a few minutes with an officer of the new bank and he will arrange for a smooth transfer of your savings and checking accounts. Thus when you are finally moved in, the new accounts will be ready for you to use. You'll be able to write checks for those hundred and one things that need to be paid for in a new house without being subject to questioning stares at local stores.

There will surely be inevitable frustrations connected with the move. Make sure your bank account isn't one of them.

RICH CABINETRY, plenty of counter space and a full-range of appliances are featured in the Ivy Glen-Palatine kitchens.

Urge Preserving Power Of Local Governments

Preservation of the power of local government and zoning boards in matters such as housing projects and commercial and industrial developments has been recommended by the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Realtor Fred C. Tucker, Jr., Indianapolis, in hearings before the Republican Platform Committee, urged that any party endorsement of pending land use policy bills should not approve the intervention of the federal government through money and economic sanctions in these areas.

Pointing out that the power of decision in local matters should be reserved to local governments, Tucker said that "the President in his message to the Congress on revenue sharing expressed this doctrine most eloquently when he said that it was time to begin to reverse the flow of power in America away from the federal government and toward local government."

Legislation on land use presently pending in Congress, he explained, would impose economic sanctions on states that did not promulgate statewide land use plans, which would include the power to reverse local zoning decisions.

THE PRESIDENT OF NAREB, which, with realtors and their sales associates, represents about 500,000 in real estate, said that the most perplexing social problem facing this nation today is that of the central or so-called inner city and that it demands a greater role of state and local governments working in partnership with private business, financial institutions, and civic leadership.

He noted that many metropolitan public housing authorities are either insolvent or facing insolvency, that crime and vandalism are common problems, and that so-called moderate-income subsidy programs have created concerns in many of our communities.

"Subsidies to families earning at least the median income have generated discontent and disillusionment among the millions of American families who have made the sacrifices necessary for home ownership without subsidies, and cause them to wonder what subsidies might now be in store for them," he said.

Realtor Tucker, referring to the disturbing state of the current subsidy program, urged the Platform Committee to adopt planks calling for limiting housing subsidies to families of low-income, and directing other efforts to the problem of providing greater access to housing, without subsidy, through improved technology and greater access to the capital market by broadening residential lending powers for private financial institutions.

He called for a plank urging provision of housing allowances to the needy so that such low-income families may compete in the market place for housing.

Emphasizing the importance of the Platform reflecting the reversal of the flow of power from federal to local and state officials, he pointed out that dedication to this concept must be adopted by local officials and the people themselves to solve their problems with the financial and technical aid — not direction — of the federal government.

La Salceda Kitchen Luxury

The basic luxury approach is continued into the kitchens, also, in the models now on display at La Salceda, in Northbrook.

This is in marked contrast to many residential developments, where the models often disappoint visitors when they reach the kitchen. La Salceda designers have been careful not to slight the kitchen in any of their several models — all of which stress a feeling of tasteful custom luxury throughout the house.

Typical is the kitchen (note photo) of "The Casa Grande," priced at $61,600 plus site. This beautiful four-bedroom home is styled in the impressive manner of Old Castile. And here, the purchaser has a choice of ten wooden kitchen cabinets of oak and other wood finishes. The flooring is triple, under resilient tile, with quarter-inch underlayment over two decks of plywood.

Matching color-toned appliances include "top of the line" self-cleaning double oven, dishwasher and ½ h.p. reversing disposal. Counter tops are in a full range of decorator colors and surfaces. The convenient U-layout features a wide service peninsula to the adjoining well-lighted breakfast area.

La Salceda models are open to viewing daily from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. — on Willow Road, three miles west of Edens or one mile east of Tri-State Tollway.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

GET EXPERT HELP WHEN SELLING YOUR HOME!

Selling a house in today's highly competitive market is no do-it-yourself exercise. Your first step should be to place your home with a reliable Real Estate Agent and give him an "exclusive" for 30 to 90 days. That will give him extra incentive. You can have multiple listing as well. Make sure your Real Estate Agent puts up a "For Sale" sign.

"But why a Real Estate Company?" many owners inquire. "I can sell it myself and save the six or seven percent commission."

It's not that simple. For one thing, the typical buyer will expect you to knock off the commission for HIS benefit. And there are other do-it-yourself pitfalls. Are you familiar with the current real estate market and able to price your home properly? Are you prepared for curiosity seekers tramping through your house? Do you have the time and ability to negotiate and bargain? Can you handle the intricacies of financing?

A bona fide Real Estate Company will screen your prospects and give your house maximum exposure; he's familiar with market conditions, zoning and financing; and finally he's usually able to command enough more for your house to pay the commission, and then some.

Select the Real Estate Agent with the best combination of aggressiveness, integrity and know-how to do the job.

Kunkel Leases Buildings In Des Plaines, Elk Grove

Seven leases have been arranged in three downtown Des Plaines office buildings and one industrial lease in Elk Grove Village by Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, announced Marvin Kingdon, director of Kunkel's commercial-investment division.

Besides Kingdon, the Kunkel staff involved in arranging the leases were Frank Kotnaur and Patrick Hurley. Four leases were consummated in the new 4-story, all electric Jefferson-Pearson building at 640 Pearson St. in Des Plaines.

Amcon Construction Corp., Beechwood, Ohio, developers and general contractors, signed a three-year lease for 1,050 sq. ft.; F. C. Fry & Associaties, insurance surveyors, are leasing 500 sq. ft. for three years; and Tero Corp., chemical additive distributors, took a three-year lease for 400 square feet. Powell & Associates are leasing 600 square feet for three years.

In the 600 Algonquin Rd. office building in Des Plaines, National Recreation & Park Association is leasing 750 square feet for five years; and Diano Corp. has taken the same size space for three years. S & B Distributors, who handle alarm systems, signed a two-year lease for 600 square feet in the 727 First Ave., building, also in Des Plaines.

In addition to the above exclusive leases, Kunkel obtained leases for two firms in cooperation with Arthur Rogers Enterprises. A three-year lease was arranged for Northern Telecom for 4,600 square feet in Rogers Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village; and a 700 square foot lease consummated in O'Hare Lake Plaza for Jousif Amro, who handles burglar alarm systems.

Barcelona Condominium Sales Manager Named

The appointment of Robert E. Kist as the new sales manager of the Barcelona Condominium apartment complex in Skokie has been announced by Hollywood Builders.

"Bob Kist has ideal qcalifications for real estate and housing field," Hollywood vice president Manuel S. Kramer said. "He is a young married man with a family of four children and understands the housing needs of people in the middle and upper income classes."

Sales at Barcelona by Bob Kist totaled more than $600,000 the month of June indicating both his talent and the attractiveness of Barcelona Condominium.

"A key feature of Barcelona is its North Shore location. The apartment homes are within walking distance of schools, heatres, parks, restaurant, Old Orchard Shopping center, and still with access to Chicago via train or automobile.

"Living in Barcelona combines the pleasures of country living in suburbia with the convenience and prestige of Lake Shore Drive," said Kramer.

"The condominium buyer gets full ownerhip of his living unit. He can sell it at anytime. He pays the taxes and mortgage which both are tax deductible as rent is not," Kramer added.

PERSONS CONTEMPLATING the purchase of a condominium can have the best of all worlds at Barcelona. There are the tax advantages of owning your own home and the carefree life of an apartment dweller (no grass to mow, no snow to shovel.)

A condominium buyer starts furnishing his new apartment home the minute he walks up to his individualized front door," points out Manuel S. Kramer, Executive Vice President of Hollywood Builders. "With a choice of one, two or three bedrooms, plus a den and outside balconies ranging up from twenty-three feet, he can make his Barcelona Condominium Apartment Home as individual as he desires."

Adding to the image of individuality at Barcelona is its Mediterranean villa design that features mammoth lobbies with handcarved doors, graceful Moorish arches, and wrought iron grillwork.

Included in the purchase price of a Barcelona Condominium Apartment home are self-cleaning double oven, self-defrosting refrigerator, indoor parking, individual central heating and air conditioning, dishwasher and disposal, recreation facilities (party room and kitchen, swimming pool, sauna baths) and a beautifully landscaped surrounding area. Purchasers can choose from a wide range of marble vanity tops, bathroom vanities, and custom kitchen cabinets.

If inflation and rising labor costs continue, a condominium owner can expect an increase in the value of his property. Many developments without the advantages of Barcelona have increased in valuation from 12 to 14 per cent in a year, according to the developers of Barcelona.

To get to Barcelona Condominium Apartment Homes take Edens north on Gross Point to Golf. Turn west on Golf and look for Barcelona billboard.

Attends Seminar

Mel Helms, a member of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors commercial investment division, recently attended an American Management Association seminar.

Theme of the seminar was "Executive Management on New Building Projects." Subjects discussed included the manager's overview of project, cost control and contract negotiations.

His attendance at the AMA seminar is part of Kunkel's commercial department's continuing growth into the development field.

BOB KIST, newly appointed Sales Manager of the Barcelona Condominium apartment complex in Skokie, explains the construction progress of the new buildings to a purchaser. The completed complex of deluxe apartments will contain seven buildings with 392 units.

Little Bit Of Farmer In Us All

The urge to make things grow may well manifest itself in a new community plan for city living.

Houses cluster around "the garden spot" — beautifully landscaped mini-acres for frustrated farmers — plus it puts groceries on the table.

So observes Durand A. Holladay, managing trustee, Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston, who notes that "where there is not enough room to build a golf course or bridle trails inside the cluster — there could always be room for a planned garden project."

Continental Mortgage Investors (CMI), the nation's largest independently sponsored real estate trust in mortgage lending, has made more than $1.5 billion in mortgage loans since 1962. CMI shares are traded on the New York and other leading stock exchanges.

"There is a little bit of farmer in all of us. City women, for the most part, have kept alive the call of the soil — with devoted attention to the potted geranium and other decorative house plants. With a 'garden spot' dwelling, both wife and hubby could cultivate their pent-up fondness for agriculture.

"THE AMOUNT of land — perhaps undevelopable for the developer — would, of course, vary with each 'garden spot' site. But to the residents — attracted back to the good earth in easy stages — a postage stamp size plot or fraction of an acre could produce amazing results," Holladay continues.

"A half-dozen tomato plants can keep one couple well-stocked all summer and into the fall — with some left over for neighbors. There are bound to be some savings on the weekly grocery bill, too.

"Ideally suited for cluster housing — or specialized multi-level condominiums — the 'garden spots' concept would open new avenues to those with a horticulture bent — growers of champion roses, terraces of spring, summer and fall flowers and an ornamental tree or two," Holladay adds.

"The idea is to truly make possible a garden spot for the individual family — an outlet for their own yearning to reap an eventual harvest. Imagine the pride of achievement — from planting, care, cultivation and, finally, the dining room table.

"For the developer who owns a site with difficult, uneven terrain, the 'garden spot' might be the answer to his problem — converting his so-called wasteland into a salable asset.

"For the potential buyer, the 'garden spot' could provide a leisure outlet — a step in the right ecological direction," Holladay concludes.

Blackmon Appointed To Centex Post

Centex Homes Corporation, home-builders and developers, has named Euge W. Blackmon, leasing manager of 111 East Chestnut, the firm's 56-story building of luxury apartments located between Pearson and Chestnut Streets off Michigan Avenue in Chicago. Announcement of the appointment was made by David Webber, General Sales Manager, Illinois Region. Centex Homes Corporation is a subsidiary of Centex Corporation headquartered in Dallas, Tex.

Blackmon has been associated with Centex Homes for the past 2½ years and most recently was a salesman at Winston Woods, a planned community of single family homes in Bolingbrook. He has been involved in sales for the past 15 years.

Blackmon attended Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, and Roosevelt University in Chicago. He and his wife Jacquelyn have six children and reside in Chicago.

Schwartz Is Sales Manager For Lieberman

Larry Schwartz, a broker with Stan Lieberman Realty in Buffalo Grove, has been named sales manager of the firm effective this month. He has already exceeded $1 million in sales for this year.

Schwartz was graduated from Purdue University, and is presently working toward his master's degree in finance from Northwestern University.

A member of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees, Schwartz resides there with his wife and family.

'Mini-Paneling' Easy To Install

If you're planning your first major home improvement project and need all the help you can get, consider a "mini paneling" that is only one-third the size of a conventional 4-by-8-foot panel.

Most homeowners can't quite visualize themselves coping with the large panels, so Marlite's 6-inch-by-8-foot planks make it easy for one person to panel.

In addition, these prefinished hardboard planks have tongue-and-grooved edges that simplify fitting. Special metal clips and wallboard adhesive are used to secure a strong bond over old walls, other solid backing, or new framing. Harmonizing moldings also are available at local building material dealers.

Each carton of this "mini paneling" contains step-by-step installation instructions. Only regular carpenter's tools are needed — hammer, saw and level.

Marlite planks are available in a wide range of colors, simulated woodgrains, textures and patterns. Since they are highly-resistant to heat and humidity conditions, they can be used in the kitchen and bathroom.

Their washability also makes them a popular choice for heavy traffic areas, like a family room or dining nook.

Cracking Caulk Costs Money, Heat Loss

One sure way to cut down on heating costs is to seal off any leaks in the house. During the year the caulking around windows and doors may crack, chip and fall off. If this happens, warns the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, it will be a source of drafts and heat loss. Worse, in addition to being uncomfortable, it will cost more.

Maybe we're not the "largest" BUT we are the FRIENDLIEST

Want total real estate service? Let Starck serve your six needs.....

IF YOU WISH TO SELL A HOME . . .

1. PROFESSIONAL RELIABILITY. We conduct our business with the very highest ethics and standards so that you will get quality service from each Starck sales associate and from every person connected with our organization. Our selection standards and training for sales associates insure that you should receive outstanding service at all times. (If there is ever any problem, please call our president, Robert W. Starck: 255-2000 in daytime or CL 3-7273 at night.)
2. TOP PRICE. On every home we list, we do an evaluation of the property and furnish you a copy of a Competitive Market Analysis. This way you know that your property is priced "right." Overpricing is just as bad as underpricing.
3. FAST SALE. Your home gets immediate exposure through M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service and through our effective mass advertising. 30,000 Home Guide booklets are sent each quarter to homeowners, nationwide Realtors, corporations transferring personnel. Weekly ads in Paddock Publications, Copley Papers, daily ads in Chicago papers add to the exposure. Our exclusive membership in Inter-City Relocation Service brings us hundreds of transferred buyers from Realtors across the country. Our Guarantee Sale program permits a buyer to buy your home in spite of the fact that his old home is still unsold. Open house tours and all the other marketing efforts usually result in exceptionally fast sales for our clients.
4. FREEDOM. When you sell with us, you never feel "tied down." Just live and enjoy a normal life while we handle the complete sale of your home. Come and go as you please. Our sales associates only bring fully qualified buyers to your home, never just "lookers."
5. COMMUNICATION. The sales associate that will be assigned to your listing will keep in weekly contact with you and keep you informed of everything that is happening at all times.
6. WORRY-FREE FOLLOW-UP. Because we are one of the few Realtors in the area with a special Closing Department, you can rest assured that all details of the sale will be handled with the utmost efficiency in cooperation with your attorney.

IF YOU WISH TO BUY A HOME . . .

1. PROFESSIONAL RELIABILITY. We conduct our business with the very highest ethics and standards so that you will get quality service from each Starck sales associate and from every person connected with our organization. Our selection standards and training for sales associates insure that you should receive outstanding service at all times. Check us out with any local banker, attorney or Chamber of Commerce.
2. GOOD ADVICE. Everything you need to know to help you make a wise selection of a home will be furnished you by your Starck sales associate. Neighborhood and area conditions, school information, tax rates and most important of all, you will receive good advice about home values. We are particularly concerned that you purchase a home that has outstanding resale value in the event you are ever transferred or wish to sell.
3. PRIVACY. We think that you will enjoy visiting our offices because they are arranged so that you and your family can discuss your home requirements with one of our sales associates in quiet and private surroundings.
4. SAVE TIME. Although our salesmen have over 1,000 different homes to show you at all times, they know that your time is valuable and will only show you the very best home values in the price range that you have specified. They listen to what you have to say about your desires and needs in a home and then "zero in" on those homes that fill the bill. Our Guarantee Sale program permits you to select a new home even before your present home is sold with the assurance that you will never own two homes and have to make double mortgage payments simultaneously.
5. SAVE MONEY. By properly advising you on the homes that are the best values and through their up-to-the-minute knowledge of the best mortgage rates, our sales associates will assist you in getting the best home buy and the best financing available.
6. WORRY-FREE FOLLOW UP. Because we are one of the few Realtors in the area with a special Closing Department, you can rest assured that all details of the sale will be handled with the utmost efficiency in cooperation with your attorney or mortgage company.

Schlanbusch Named July Sales Leader

The leading sales producer during the month of July for Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, was Ernest G. "Ernie" Schlanbusch, new homes manager.

A member of the Kunkel staff since 1970, Schlanbusch was presented recently a special sales award for his outstanding work with home builders.

Currently he is in charge of sales for the Kingsberry Homes subdivision on Thacker Street between Wolf and Mount Prospect Roads in Des Plaines.

At the convention of the National Multi List Service this year, he received an award for the "most unusual sales success story." "Ernie" Schlanbusch is also a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards' "Million Dollar Sales Club" for achieving 1971 sales in excess of one million dollars.

When you sell homes in your own neighborhood, you work harder.

If you're selling homes in Milwaukee, but you live in Chicago, the ultimate happiness of your customers sort of loses its importance.

But when your customer is moving right across the street, or down the block, his happiness is something you'll notice day after day.

Which is why, if you're considering a home in the Northwest Suburbs, Village Square Realtors can do more for you than anyone else.

You see, the realtors at Village Square work where they live.

They know more about the schools, the property values, the neighborhood, and the people, than practically anybody.

You'll be pleased with the attention you'll get from Village Square Realtors.

After all, what else are neighbors for?

We work where we live.

GE To Move To Centex Site

General Electric has recently leased the Ampex building located at 10 King St., Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village. The building contains 5,000 square feet and is situated on a 30,000-square-foot site. The building was made available when Ampex Corp. decided to consolidate some of its operations in the area.

General Electric is going to utilize this building for the sales and servicing of its General Electric and Hotpoint appliances for the north and northwestern suburban areas.

General Electric was represented by Dwight L. Carhart, house counsel, from Louisville, Ky. The lessor was represented by Mr. James L. Marovitz of Leibman, Williams, Bennett, Baird & Minow.

Howard G. Krafsur and Robert A. Stone of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates were the sole brokers in this transaction.

Fraud Fought By Repair Group

Homeowners stung by repair rackets are turning increasingly to the safety of "organized" repairs, according to president Ira Safer of American Homeowners Association.

Milwaukee-based AHA is a national organization of homeowners, with divisions in major cities. The association provides approved repairmen for hundreds of home needs and combats fly-by-night operators.

"Almost every community has faced a recent repair scandal," says Safer. "In Pennsylvania, more than 200 homeowners were 'taken' by a roofing firm to the tune of $42,000. In Oregon, a widow lost $51,000 to 'exterminaors.' In Illinois, a man had a driveway poured all over his back lawn for $500, and an 80-year-old woman paid $8,000 to phony 'sewer inspectors.' In a midwest state, a homeowner is out $700 for non-working lightning rods. Other homeowners have been stuck with sticky 'blacktop,' peeled paint, dismantled heating systems, or unpaid mechanics' liens when a transient 'contractor' took off."

"AHA was formed," says Safer, "to protect the homeowner against rackets and to provide reliable and reasonable services under supervision." The association pre-screens contractors, and work is billed only after a complete satisfaction report is signed by the homeowner.

While not a vigilante group, the association warns its members and the public against racketeering "fixers" who offer phony bargains.

"AHA members are safe from these hazards," says Safer, "but the homeowner who faces repairmen on his own has to be on guard. He should note license plates, not yield to pressure, not let unknowns into his home, and not take money from a bank for strangers."

Real Estate Investment Trusts Are On The Rise

Ever since they sprang into existence through an act of Congress 10 years ago, real estate investment trusts have grown steadily as an investment tool and as a financial resource for the real estate industry.

The idea was to give small investors with perhaps only a few hundred dollars an opportunity to participate in the dynamic real estate field with guidance from professional management firms.

Real estate investment trusts, or REITs as they are known, have proliferated and diversified.

"THIS CAN CAUSE a good deal of confusion, especially among non-professional investors," noted John W. Baird, president of Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors, a publicly-owned over-the-counter trust which is headquartered in Chicago.

He said there are basically three types of trusts:

- The equity trust which owns office buildings, housing complexes, etc.
- The long-term mortgage trusts which will participate in a pool of mortgages.
- THE SHORT-TERM mortgage and development trusts which will lend money to build a property from the start until it is delivered to its ultimate owner.

"And of course, there are hybrids which will combine their investment portfolio," he said.

"Just as with any form of investment, you should decide what your objectives are before you decide what kind of trust to choose," Baird noted.

HE EXPLAINED that the equity or ownership trust will generally have a slightly lower yield. But because these investments participate in the income of property and a share of profits if a property is sold, there is more opportunity for growth and appreciation of your investment. Long-term mortgages generate a steady return.

There is a slightly higher risk factor in construction and development lending and the yield can be a little better from shares in a well-managed construction lending trust.

As a rule of thumb, you can expect to make about 8 per cent on your investment in REITs, about the same as average grade bonds, Baird said.

"BUT REAL ESTATE trusts have a better growth potential than most bonds and they have one distinct advantage over common stocks and even mutual funds. This is a factor known as leveraging — the ability to make money on borrowed money. REITs can make money by borrowing and investing it at a higher rate of interest than they borrowed it. Other securities simply don't have this opportunity to leverage their equity to generate additional earnings."

Shares in REIT's are purchasable through stock brokerage firms.

All American Life In Leisure Property Field

Following a meeting of the Board of Directors of All American Life & Financial Corporaton, announcement was made through E. E. Ballard, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer, of the corporation's entry in the leisure properties field. The newly formed leisure time company will operate as a wholly owned subsidiary.

Franchising under the Holiday Inns system, the largest resort hotel complex in the industry, All American Leisure Properties will acquire and develop leisure properties concentrating at the present time in recreational areas.

The corporation now owns Holiday Inns at Deerfield Beach, Boca Raton and Delray Beach, Florida. Additional units are currently under option and negotiations are proceeding for the purchase or lease of others.

Gary E. Mede, Treasurer of the holding company, is President of All American Leisure Properties Inc. and Richard J. Arnone, Vice President and Secretary.

Arnone joined the All American Family of Companies last April. A graduate of Boston University, Boston, Mass., Mr. Arnone's business experience is heavily oriented to the development and operation of facilities similar to those which meet the franchising aims of All American Leisure Properties. His most recent association was with a nation-wide firm engaged in the acquisition and construction of a motel chain, coast to coast.

John W. Gardiner, President and Chief Operating Officer of the holding corporation said the plan to enter the leisure properties field is moving along very satisfactorily. Other priorities named at the beginning of the year are on schedule.

All American Life & Financial Corporation, based in Chicago, is a financial holding corporation with major subsidiaries, including All American Life & Casualty Company, General United Group, Inc. and O'Hare International Bank.

Comfort's Important

In most parts of the country, notes the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, the indoor heating season lasts between seven and nine months. Heating, therefore, is the primary concern of the comfort system, and should be checked more closely when shopping for a new house.

ONE OF THE MOST popular attractions at Country Acres Apartments and Condominiums, in Des Plaines, is the large pool convenient to the surrounding buildings of the development. Models of these apartment homes may be seen daily, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., at Elmhurst Road (Rt. 83) 2,000 feet south of Dempster Street.

British Firm Buys Building In Centex

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has recently announced that BSR (USA) Ltd. has purchased the new 20,000-square-foot building at 780 Lively Boulevard in Centex Industrial Park. The building is in the process of being completed according to BSR's specifications.

BSR, whose home base is in England, is the world's largest manufacturer of automatic turntables and stereo component systems. According to Ed Wennerstrand, regional manager, BSR chose this location because it was ideally suited for its midwest warehousing and distribution operations and would also accommodate their new regional offices.

BSR also purchased an additional 44,000 square feet of vacant land adjacent to this building for their future expansion requirements.

The total price was approximately $400,000.

Harold Kruley, 105 West Adams St., represented BSR. Jack Pritzker of Pritzker & Pritzker was the legal counsel for the seller.

D. J. Velo & Company are the general contractors and are currently completing the construction.

Top Salesman Of Month Is Named

One of the newer members of Kole Real Estate, Ltd's team has been named top salesman for the month of July in the Wheeling office.

Edward R. Rezek Jr., 209 E. Circle Dr., Prospect Heights, who joined Kole as a sales associate last January has achieved a volume of over $300,000 during the past month, according to Tom Edward Rezek Jr.

Jakubik, manager of the Wheeling office.

Rezek, a member of Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, had been a sales instructor and manager with two other real estate firms in the area before joining the Kole organization.

A native of Chicago, he graduated from St. Thomas Military Academy and attended The University of Illinois from 1958-62. Very active in community affairs since moving to the northwest suburbs, Ed is currently External Vice President of the Prospect Area Jaycees, area representative for the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, and president of the Prospect Heights Annual Appeal.

New Real Estate Training Course Begins Sept. 18

A new training course open to anyone interested in learning real estate principles will begin September 18 at Kole Real Estate, Ltd., 203 E. Rand Rd. in Mount Prospect.

Under the leadership of Larry Ham, Kole's director of personnel and training, the three-week course will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Following the three-week session on the basics of real estate, there will be a thirteen-week salesmanship course meeting two nights a week. This is the third year Kole Real Estate, Ltd. has offered this complete training program for the novice in real estate. The instruction is given without charge by the Kole organization, which maintains six offices in the northwest suburbs. Students pay a fee of $35.00 to cover the cost of classroom materials.

For further information, or to register for the training course, call Larry Ham at Kole's executive office in Mount Prospect, phone 394-9600, between the hours of 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

New Manager Is Named By Kole

New sales manager of the Mount Prospect office of Kole Real Estate, Ltd. is Kenneth Arthur MacDonald of Arlington Heights.

Publisher of Chicagoland Food News and a Channel 26 television personality, MacDonald was associated with Robert A. Kole, president of the firm, from 1965-67, and rejoined the organization in June, 1972. In the interim, he sold real estate with Stark and Arlington Realty.

MacDonald is a native of East Detroit, Michigan, and attended Wayne State University in Detroit.

Gof, fishing and real estate are his special interests, and he is a member of Mason, Shrine, Moose, Scottish Rite and several other organizations.

Dovenmuehle OKs Loan Of $460,000

A mortgage loan to the amount of $460,000 has been arranged by Dovenmuehle, Inc. to refinance and enlarge an existing industrial building in Arlington Heights, it was announced by Robert E. Kenney, assistant vice president of the Chicago mortgage banking firm.

Known as the Carboy Building, it is located at 1621 Carboy Rd., in the Elmhurst-Algonquin Industrial Park in Arlington Heights. The original office space of 8,000 square feet has been enlarged by reallocation of areas to form 14,000 square feet of office space. The size of the building has been increased by approximately 3,500 square feet, creating total usable space of 40,445 square feet.

Kenney, who handled the transaction for Dovenmuehle, said the term of the loan is 25 years. The sponsor is the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, acting as Trustee.

RISING TAX RATES and widely publicized inequities in the rates are producing an Investor Fear Syndrome, according to Jerom Salzman, president of the Illinois Council of the Society of American Registered Architects. Salzman expressed architects' concern at a recent Cook County real estate assessment hearing, held in Chicago. Investor reluctance results in less new building, less modernization of existing facilities and less replacement for obsolescence, according to Salzman. Urging the placement of a maximum limitation on property tax, he added that further incentives to encourage new construction and modernization programs should be adopted in cooperation with architectural, real estate and appraisers organizations.

LONDON TIME, LTD., leased 18,000 square feet of space in a building at 1455 Greenleaf, Elk Grove Village. The announcement was made by Ron Frain, vice president of Gottlieb-Beale & Co. London Time, Ltd., is an assembler and distributor of decorative wall clocks for major department stores. The warehouse facility more than doubles the firm's production and inventory capacities. The London Time space is part of a 150,000 square foot multi-occupancy building in Centex Industrial Park. Other tenants in the building include SpotNails, Inc.; LaRosa, Inc.; International Marble & Granite; and Zinsco Electrical Products.

SAVINGS AND LOAN association is a "money store" where the association buys money from its savings customers and sells it to mortgage loan customers. This description appears in a new pamphlet being distributed by the U.S. Savings and Loan League. Entitled, The Savings and Loan Association: An American Financial Institution, the pamphlet gives a brief history of the savings and loan business and tells what the association does. The publication points out that savings and loan associations are the third largest type of financial institution in the U.S. and are the most important source of money for financing the purchase of a residential real estate of all kinds. Predicting a good decade for the business in the 70's the pamphlet says home ownership is within the grasp of millions of families of modest means, despite inflation, due to the efforts of these institutions.

At Puerto Rico Meet

John D. Belt of Des Plaines, has returned from a week-long, expense-paid trip to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where Mohawk Data Sciences Corp. honored its top sales representatives from across the country in a "Winners' Circle" meeting.

THIS IS A FREE INVITATION TO GRAND OPENING III. FOR $23,150 YOU CAN STAY FOREVER.

Perhaps you don't think $23,150 will get you much these days.

At Village on the Lake, it gets you a way of living that's just about perfect.

It gets you wall-to-wall carpeting, air conditioning, appliances and your own private balcony.

It gets you right next door to Elk Grove Village yet a mere 35 minutes from the Loop.

At Village on the Lake, twenty-three grand even gets you beautiful landscaping and a full-time maintenance crew to keep it that way.

Plus a private 35-acre lake (we don't call it Village on the Lake for nothing), tennis courts, swimming pool and a delightfully appointed social room.

Most important, $23,150 gets you a spacious, attractive, very livable one-bedroom condominium home. And for a little more, you can get all of the good things listed above in an even more spacious two-bedroom model.

But don't believe everything you read in this ad. Come out and see for yourself during our Grand Opening of Building III.

Get your pick of the best views (imagine having breakfast on your balcony while you look out over the lake).

Poke around. Ask questions (like how much equity you'll build every month even with a minimum $1250 down payment).

Our models are open daily, 10 a.m. to 7 p. m.; Saturday, to 6. Sunday, to 8.

Just exit the Northwest Tollway at Route 53 south, drive four miles to Biesterfield Road and turn east to Village on the Lake (two blocks past Alexian Brothers Medical Center) for a 23-grand salute.

The Foster Child

This Kid Needs Loving . . . And A Chance

by MARILYN HEISER

It was those eyes. The wide open staring eyes of a child that spoke of adult things, like suspicion and cynicism. Then a slight smile, and she opened the door, just like any normal elementary school child greeting Mommy's callers.

Only she's not just any other child. And she doesn't have just childish dreams and memories of happy times and loving parents.

She is a foster child . . . but one of the lucky ones, for she has been part of a Schaumburg family for a year and a half.

Michael and Pat Madden of 1405 Churchill Rd., look a bit surprised when asked why they took a foster child. "I don't know — we saw a commercial on TV or something — and we had extra bedrooms and a backyard. . . ." Mike Madden really couldn't definitely answer.

THE CHILDREN themselves are the best answer. They need homes for various reasons. A malnourished 7-year-old girl, weighing 26 pounds, found wandering the streets. Two small children, homeless, their mother hospitalized after a beating she received from her common law husband. Two little boys, their mother dead, deserted by their father.

In Cook County alone, there are more than 5,000 children placed in foster homes. And requests to place over 200 more children each month. Spokesmen for the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services (CFS) and other agencies which find foster homes for children talk only of those children they can't place.

"There is a tremendous shortage of foster homes. We're desperate for homes, and we'd really like homes in the northwest suburbs," said Mrs. Susan Szigeti, home recruiter for CFS. The northwest suburbs are ideal sources for foster homes, Mrs. Szigeti said. To begin with, there are very few foster homes in the area — only three or four in each suburb. Suburban homes tend to have a back yard for the child to play in, and extra space, unlike city apartments.

THE FINANCIAL situation of the families is such that often the mothers don't have to work and can stay home with the children. The Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society (ICHAS), a private agency and the state agency point to the excellent schools in the area.

"The suburbs are ideal locations because the schools have special programs for slow learners and children with emotional problems," said Alice James, director of foster care services at the ICHAS.

The kind of school system is essential in the process of matching troubled children with the best possible foster homes.

"There isn't a foster child without a problem. Their life experiences have simply created anxiety and confusion for them," Mrs. Szigeti said.

THE MADDENS are quick to agree that foster children are easy to love but they aren't always easy to understand. Mike and Pat now attend a weekly counseling session to understand their foster daughter better.

They know good schools are important to a confused child. "School Dist. 54 has just been great. A speech teacher and a school psychologist have worked with our child. She's in a special class with only eight children. The class is for kids with emotional problems, and the teacher tries to determine what are the kids' learning problems," Madden said.

Such a diagnostic program is similar to one sponsored by the ICHAS. The agencies continue to help the foster child and his parents after the placement.

The Perceptual and Ego Deficit Program (PEP) at ICHAS concentrates on filling in the experiences foster children have missed. The child visits the agency weekly in morning sessions which try to diagnose and correct his problem. The foster parents have group discussions at the same time to bolster each other's morale and to understand better the problems their children face.

IMAGINE A 6-year-old child who doesn't know what a gas station is or an elephant. Place this child in a middle class suburban community. It's little wonder the child will have learning problems.

Miss James said the children who participate in PEP haven't been played with or read to. They often can't whistle or skip. They can't think in abstract terms. The agency goal, Miss James said, is "to give these kids a chance."

How can parents who want to give these kids a chance become foster parents?

The requirements are generally the same with the private and the state agencies. There should be two parents in the home and the mother should not work. "The kids are confused over male-female roles as it is and need two parents and a mother at home," Mrs. Virginia Ruttan, homefinding supervisor at ICHAS, said.

THE FAMILY'S INCOME should be sufficient to take care of their own expenses. The agency pays food and clothing allowances for the child, and also any extra expenses such as medical bills.

The youngest natural child should be at least two years old. The foster child can share a room with a child of the same sex. "Every child needs privacy, a room he can go to," Mrs. Szigeti said.

By law, the parents have to be in reasonably good health.

The state agency, which places the largest number of children, follows a simple application procedure, similar to that of the private agencies. After making initial inquiry about foster care, a person is invited to a group meeting where the various problems and responsibilities of foster care are discussed.

All of the agencies then interview the prospective parents and find out what kind of child they want. The family hears about a particular child from a caseworker and usually will meet the child before the placement occurs.

FOSTER CHILDREN are rarely eligible for adoption. Usually there is a natural parent or a relative who will not release the child for adoption.

This creates the hardest problem for the foster parent. He can cope with his child's emotional and behavioral problems. But it's very hard to say goodbye.

Mrs. Szigeti said foster parents have to remember that while the pain of separation is hard for them to bear, "they are adults. Think of the child who has been shuttled around from home to home. Think of his pain. Whenever possible, we try to reunite children with their natural parents."

The child comes first. Mrs. Madden said her foster daughter was being teased by some children at school. They kept calling her "foster child."

Mrs. Madden explained to her little girl: "It's not a bad word. Foster means to love and cherish."

Who Are The Children In Need?

by MARILYN HEISER

Almost every would-be foster parent who calls up Catholic Charities, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society or the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and requests a child has a certain picture in his mind:

A nice, young, healthy child, between the ages of 2 and 5, beyond the diaper stage but young enough to fill up an empty house when the older children are away at school.

Unfortunately, there aren't enough of these children to go around. The agencies desperately need homes for older, white children, teenagers, white sibling groups and handicapped children.

Why white? Mrs. Susan Szigeti of Child and Family Services (CFS) said she has three to five black families waiting for each black child, but many white children go homeless.

All of the agencies try to place children in homes where the parents will be the same race as the child. "Kids have a right to know their ethnic and cultural background," said Mrs. Szigeti.

MRS. VIRGINIA RUTTAN, Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society (ICHAS), said, "We don't, for instance, place a Spanish-speaking child in an English-speaking home. These kids have enough identity problems as it is."

The ICHAS is starting a new program to place groups of pre-adolescent children, ages 10 through 13, in foster homes. "These children aren't necessarily related. They need a stable peer group and we'd like to place them with families with the space and energy to take in several pre-teens," Mrs. Ruttan said.

There are basically three different kinds of foster care and each kind requires a different sort of home.

—Emergency Protection Service (EPS). This is foster care for children who are found abandoned or abused and need immediate homes. Care lasts for only several weeks, and families have to be willing to accept a child any time, day or night.

THERE IS A large shortage of such homes, particularly in the northwest suburbs. The state agency said there are presently 101 EPS homes in all of Cook County. The state would like 150 more homes; hopefully 50 of these would be in the northwest suburbs.

"We like to place a child in the community he previously lived in so he'll be familiar with the schools and neighborhood. And economics have nothing to do with abused or abandoned children. There are fires and other disasters everywhere. Sometimes the child has no place to go," Mrs. Szigeti said.

To report a child in need of an EPS home because he is abused or abandoned, call 24 hours a day, 341-8492.

—Pre-adoptive or short-term foster care. Small babies waiting for adoption need foster homes possibly only for a month or two. Single women, as well as married ones, who like to care for babies are needed.

—Long-term care. Children ranging from 2 through adolescent years who are wards of the state and usually not eligible for adoption need homes. They will remain with a family from anywhere from two years up until they are 18 and no longer wards of the state.

WHILE NATURAL parents are allowed to visit these children on a regular (usually monthly) basis, these children remain with the foster family until the natural parents are able to properly care for them.

Why is there a shortage of foster homes today? The agencies cite such things as inflation, which makes people less eager to take on the expense of an extra room. Inflation also means that more mothers are working today and unable to stay home and care for a foster child.

Families are "also less willing to be responsible for bringing up kids these days of drugs and dropouts," Alice James of ICHAS said.

For information about foster care, call the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services at 341-8580, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society at 944-3313 or Catholic Charities at CE6-5172.

What Courts Have Ruled On Foster Rights

by MARILYN HEISER

It took the unbelievably tragic story of Johnny Lindquist, six-years-old, lying in a hospital bed unconscious and near death, to arouse front page concern over the plight of foster children.

Foster children are wards of the court and the state sets the standards by which the agencies function.

But the rights of foster children and foster parents are, at best, poorly defined.

As Alice James of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society explained, the rights of the natural parents supercede those of the child and his foster parents.

"The courts have tended to send children back to their natural parents when there is a good deal of evidence that they shouldn't," Miss James said.

Even if a parent has neglected his child or is in a mental institution, the state places his rights to the child above those of the foster parent.

MISS JAMES SAID her agency doesn't depend on the courts. "We try to work with the natural parents to make them see their child is better off in a foster home."

If foster parents want to adopt their fosterchild, the law gets even more complex. The agency must make every reasonable effort to locate the natural parents and notify them that a family wants to adopt their child. If unsuccessful after six months of trying to find parents who have deserted their child, the child can be released for adoption.

A recent Supreme Court interpretation gives fathers, especially those of babies whose parents aren't married, additional rights. If the father can be located, it takes additional evidence to show he has deserted.

BOTH THE MOTHER and father must sign releases giving up their rights to their child. The interpretation said a father later can change his mind about an adoption unless he signs a release.

Miss James said, "Because of this new father ruling, it takes longer now to adopt babies." Many babies who previously could be adopted at two or three weeks old, now have to be placed in pre-adoptive homes, sometimes for four or five months, until the father is located.

"This is why," she said, "we need desperately more homes for pre-adoptive babies."

Deaf Child's Potential Rests With His Parents

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The infant doesn't react when someone claps hands sharply nearby. At three months, he doesn't turn his head toward sounds. By the time he's a year old, he doesn't turn toward a whispered voice, the sound of a rattle nearby.

These are a few of the signals of hearing abnormality that parents should know of and be able to act according to the best medical advice. For the responsibility of seeing that the hearing-handicapped child reaches his full potential rests with his parents.

As one specialist has said, "Behind every deaf child who has learned to speak well stands a persistent adult, usually his mother."

In addition to adjusting to the fact their child has a handicap, parents must make plans for his education over a long period of time.

THE EARLIER the diagnosis of hearing loss, the greater the likelihood that with proper training the child can learn to speak. And as one specialist says, a child can easily be tested by any specialist any time after birth.

The problems of hearing loss and dealing with it are treated in a new publication, "Helping the Child Who Cannot Hear," from the Public Affairs Committee, a non-profit educational organization headquartered in New York. Publication author is Samuel Moffat, a writer specializing in health and science fields.

You can get a variety of statistics on hearing impairments. In 1971, the Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf calculated there were 15 million, covering the range of impairment from very slight to profound. The U.S. Public Health Service puts the figure at 8.5 million.

A BIG PERCENTAGE of hearing damage used to be caused by childhood illness, after speech and language skills had been developed. Immunization now prevents many of these illnesses; antibiotics can control others.

Today the majority of children with impaired hearing are born that way. This make the impairment more of a problem, because the child never has heard others speak, can't acquire speech himself, doesn't develop the patterns of thinking associated with language.

Part of after-birth prevention lies in proper medical care for the child-immunization against common diseases, prompt treatment of earache and other infections.

Deciding the best educational program for the hearing handicapped is not easy for parents. Moffat says that today some educators advocate making every effort to teach children orally, to enable them to speak, hear and speech-read to the best of their ability.

OTHER EDUCATORS argue that in addition to oral, the child also should be taught manual communication-finger spelling and sign language. These educators believe the child is at an advantage if he has two methods of expressing himself.

To decide which approach is best, Moffat suggests that each family investigate every program, oral and toral communication, available in the vicinity. Judge them as best suited to the child based on his hearing as corrected with an aid, his ability to speech-read, his development of speech and language.

In evaluating a school, Moffat suggests: Look for small classes, certified teachers and an atmosphere where they are encouraged to observe and carry on part of the learning program at home.

CLOWNS WILL BE pumping gas and washing windshields at Rolling Meadows Shell Station, Meadow Drive at Kirchoff Road, all day Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Jack Reif and Mrs. Dennis Bernier are among members of Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club staging the annual Gas Pump Jamboree. Proceeds go to club philanthropies.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Blackwood

Scott Blackwood, Schaumburg, and his bride, Phyllis K. Ray, Lodi, Ind., are both May '72 graduates of Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., now making their home in Schaumburg. Married Aug. 12 in Waterman Baptist Church, Lodi, Phyllis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ray Jr., and Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin S. Blackwood.

A graduate of Conant High School, Scott received his bachelor of science degree from the university in business management and he is now with United States Gypsum Co., Chicago. Phyllis received her bachelor's degree in office administration and until her marriage was employed as a bank teller in Newport, Ind.

The couple's candlelight, double ring service took place at 7 p.m. with a reception following in the church basement.

PHYLLIS CHOSE a floor-length Victorian gown of white chiffon trimmed with Venise lace with full skirt and train. Her veil was attached to an open crown Camelot headpiece of Venise lace with satin bow and pearl trim, and she carried a nosegay of roses, baby's breath, daisies and carnations.

Phyllis' sister, Alice Gay Ray, Kingman ,Ind., wax maid of honor, and the couple's sisters, Janet Blackwood, Schaumburg, and Faith Renee Ray, Kingman, were bridesmaids. Alice was in light blue chiffon, Janet in a medium blue and Faith in pink. The floor-length gowns were made with long, sheer sleeves and high necklines accented with lace trim. They carried basket bouquets of roses, daisies, carnations and baby's breath.

The bride's brother, Alan Jay Ray, Kingman, was best man, and Verne Biddle, Milwaukee, and the bride's brother-in-law, Bob Brooks Jr., Landrum, S.C., were ushers.

She Wed The Boy Next Door

The 1300 block of Cottonwood Lane in Arlington Heights was a beehive of wedding festivities on Aug. 5 when Christine Anne Ozimek married "the boy next door" — Stephen Raymond Ostermann.

The neighboring homes of the Edwin John Ozimeks, of 1307, and the Joseph E. Ostermanns, of 1305, kept a busy pace all day. It began with preparations for the two o'clock wedding ceremony in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church and continued through the evening garden reception at the Ozimek home.

Christine and Stephen have been dating since high school days, even though Chris went to Arlington High and Steve to St. Viator's. She graduated in '71 and spent a year at Western Illinois University.

Steve was a '70 graduate of St. Viator, where he was chosen "most valuable" player on the football team. He has a football scholarship at Washington State University and will be a junior in fall. His bride will begin her sophomore year there.

THEIR DOUBLE ring wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Patrick Render of the Viatorian Fathers. He had been one of Steve's high school teachers. Ken Ozimek and Joseph Ostermann, the couple's brothers, were altar servers for the Nuptial Mass.

Chris chose a rainbow setting, and she herself appeared as an old-fashioned bride. Her gown of dacron organza had a full circle skirt nipped at the waist with a wide sash. The bodice was topped with a wide yoke of cluny lace/edged with a ruffle. Chris wore a headband of lace and a floor-length veil of silk illusion edged with lace.

She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, miniature carnations starburst and baby's breath.

Her attendants were attired in green, blue, yellow and lavender. Their old-fashioned gowns featured colored flocked flowers on cotton polyester, styled with skirts of three gathered tiers edged with lace and a square neckline on the Empire bodice.

The girls wore matching chokers of lace at their throats. They carried mixed bouquets of cornflowers, daisies, pink carnations and ivy.

MAID OF honor Maureen Pearson of Arlington Heights wore green. The bridesmaids, appearing in blue, yellow and lavender, were Diane Kastning, Judi Milner and Sue James, also of Arlington.

Steve chose Mike Wilkin of Mount Prospect as best man. Groomsmen were Greg Diem, Hoffman Estates, and Denny Foreman and Gary Wenzel, both of Arlington.

Following the afternoon ceremony a dinner for 52 of the family and wedding party was held at Lancer Steak House in Palatine. Later the bride's parents hosted a garden reception for 150 guests. There, a catered buffet supper was served under a tent pavilion.

THE NEWLYWEDS spent two days at Arlington Towers and then left for Seattle, Wash., for three days. They have an apartment on the Washington State campus in Pullman.

Before the wedding, Chris worked part-time for Arlington Park District and Steve for Sellstrom Safeguards in Palatine.

The Consumer
by Monica Wilch

Most people sign their names so frequently — on checks, letters, rosters, petitions, application forms, etc. — that the action becomes automatic and is accompanied by little thought.

But he who thoughtlessly affixes his signature to any sort of legal contract is asking for a heap of trouble.

Never, never sign a legal document unless:

1. You understand what it says thoroughly, especially any fine print; be sure you read it yourself. If you don't understand it, have a reliable person — your attorney, if possible — explain it.
2. The merchandise, service or agreement is exactly what you want and need.
3. The contract provides for guarantees, repair services, etc., in written clauses.
4. There are no blank spaces.

The Federal Trade Commission, which offers these tips to consumers, also adds that you should never allow merchants to add new purchases to a contract on which you are already making payments, because if you fail to meet the additional payments you may lose everything.

Never sign a contract without knowing the total price, the FTC warns, and never sign just to get rid of a salesman. Always be sure you get a copy of any contract you sign.

In short, take your time. Once your name is signed, you are legally committed.

Speaking of contract risks, a reader has reported to us that representatives of the Wes-Ware cookware company are currently in operation at Woodfield mall. The company, which uses a chain referral sales approach, has been named in a suit by the state attorney general charging fraud (see The Herald, Aug. 10). However, according to the attorney general's office, Wes-Ware has until Sept. 10 to reply to the charges, during which time they are under no operating constraints. The attorney general's office has asked the court to nullify all Wes-Ware contracts sold by the chain method, but a spokesman emphasized that at this time there is no way to predict what the outcome of the case will be.

Recycling waste materials is the topic of a new film offered by Commonwealth Edison Company for presentation before school, civic, business, social and church groups. Entitled "The Hidden Resource — A Report on Recycling," it depicts the scavenging of garbage and rubbish, the grinding of bottles, junked autos and old newspapers, and their emergence as reusable materials. The 22-minute movie may be obtained by calling Edison's Jack Stephens at 259-2300, Ext. 222.

Grocery stores may no longer issue "rainchecks" on advertised sales, nor can they renege on a sale by announcing that "not all items are available at all stores," according to a recent Federal Trade Commission ruling.

The ruling states that retailers must have enough goods on hand to meet a "reasonable demand." The agency plans to extend the regulation to drug, hardware and department stores in the future.

Don't be duped into paying for merchandise you didn't ask for. Only free samples and merchandise from a charitable institution requesting a donation may legally be mailed unsolicited. Anything else that arrives in your mailbox may be considered a free gift, regardless of any instructions to pay a certain amount or return the merchandise.

The Home Line
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We've just built on some rooms to our home and have been invaded by the large black carpenter ants. We've tried ant sprays and ant traps but nothing has helped. Are there any potent insecticides still recommended for this type of pest? — Mrs. Fred Wolfe

While ants usually have their nests outdoors, they could be in the house. Try tracing the ants' line of march to see if you can locate the nest. If you find it, you can use a liquid household insecticide containing chlordane, diazinon, lindane or malathion. Then you should treat every area they use with the spray. In the kitchen it might be better to apply the liquid with a small paint brush. Allow a few days for the residual effects of the insecticide to get the ants. If they still appear, you haven't treated every surface that they crawl on.

Dear Dorothy: We have a good size freezer and with company unexpectedly dropping in, I'd like to keep frozen ice cubes on hand. I'm told you know the secret of making commercial ice cubes. Would you mind repeating it? — Alice P.

Sorry. All I can repeat is there is no home method to match the clear commercial ice cubes. Commercially, the water is constantly agitated and the cubes freeze from the outside in. The minerals and deposits go to the center and are drained off.

Dear Dorothy: What can you do with leftover steak? — Abby C.

If there's enough, it makes good stroganoff. Lightly saute some chopped onion, and add the strips of meat, a little water and a little meat concentrate. Simmer until the flavors are blended and add a dollop of sour cream just before serving — either over rice or noodles.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

There is something hauntingly exotic about mushrooms.

A search for the forest fungi conjures up vivid fantasies of trekking through swamp-soaked spaghum moss with a hooty owl, a hawk or some other wild-eyed creature of the forest watching your every move — waiting.

The aura of danger, like poison ivy, gives mushrooming a Lucretia Borgia-like air about it. Mushroom poisoning has strange hallucinatory effects. As you may know, LSD is fungal in origin.

Many, many mushroomers will flock to the woods during the next few weeks. Many more would like to if they could identify the good ones from the bad ones.

MUSHROOM IDENTIFICATION is just as interesting as "flower name-calling." But the greater challenge with the mushroom is complete accuracy, especially if you plan to eat your decisions There is an extreme swing between pleasure and pain if you "guess" wrong.

Some mushrooms are so easy to identify that a mushroom hunter can hardly go wrong. Most people stick with these easy marks: the boletus family, the wood mushrooms, the morels, puffballs are among the easiest to identify.

The greatest danger in eating the white, golf-ball like puffballs is that instead of a puffball you might miscollect the button stage of a poisonous Amanita (the angel of death mushroom). In that case, it will be the last such mistake you ever make. The symptoms of amanita poisoning are delayed, making the application of first aid useless. (Obviously, I'm telling you this NOT from first-hand experience.)

THERE ARE A few of the Amanita family that are not lethal, yet still poisonous. It is believed that the Berserks, a group of 12th century Scandivanians, ate the Amanita muscaria for its intoxicating properties just before battle. They would be seized by fury and act like animals, often going into battle dressed only in a bearskin. The onset of the poisoning (hallucinatory effect is what it is) was accompanied by fits of shivering and chills in which their faces would swell and change color.

At the height of their rage, they howled, bit their shields and cut down their opponents mercilessly. Once the fit ended, they were left weak and stupid for days on end. One might think the Berserks were mad if it wasn't for the fact that in 1123 a law was passed that forbid people from going berserk and having mass fits of madness. The Berserks stopping eating amanita muscaria and no violations of the law were reported.

The forest fungus in the Midwest is receiving more intensive study these days, due to the fact that the Center for Forest Mycology Research, US Forest Products Laboratory, moved to Madison, Wis. (from Laurel, Md.), last year.

FUNGI, ACCORDING to mycology scientist Michael Larsen, are the more neglected living things in the world. Yet they are essential as the forest clean-up committee, maintaining biological balance as they convert dead wood back to its soil components plus the carbon dioxide needed for new plant life. Some fungi are also indispensible to tree life and function.

If you are interested in the wonderful world of mushrooms, pick up a good book as you head out to the Forest Preserve, a book like Alexander Smith's "Mushroom Hunter's Field Guide", University of Michigan Press, $8.95) or write the Center for suggestions.

The Center for Forest Mycology Research is also quite responsive to samples of questionable species which are sent to them for identification.

As a parting word, remember, never, never eat a wild mushroom if you are not positive that it is edible and nonpoisonous. If in doubt, seed it, send another sample to the Center and await results.

BOB Meets Tonight

Best Off Broadway Players will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at Pioneer Park, 500 Fernandez, Arlington Heights.

Photographs from previous BOB shows will be on exhibit and available to those who are interested in them.

A sing-a-long of music from "The Sound Of Music" will follow the business meeting. Scores from the show, the next one to be produced by BOB, can be picked up by those persons who are interested in auditioning for the musical. Tryouts are Sept. 10, 11 and 12. Further information is available through 381-5371.

Last year, all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When mended, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.

Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

COMBINE NEWSPAPER WORK ADVERTISING AND TELEPHONE SELLING and you have the ingredients for a fascinating, rewarding job. We have an opening in our Classified Advertising Department for an intelligent, enthusiastic woman to begin training for this permanent, full-time position with a secure future.

You'll be working for an advertising Manager and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is!

Ability to type and spell correctly, any previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and a good telephone voice is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest. This is not a commission type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits.

Come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. Ask for Larry Bell, Classified Advertising Manager, or call 394-2400.

Sugar 'n Spice

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

The People's Party

Take it easy this summer . . . let your guests do the work! Plan parties featuring help-yourself appetizers and snacks, and you can enjoy the festivities with your guests.

Spicy Shrimp Kabobs, for instance, require no last-minute fussing. Early in the day, marinate shrimp in a spicy maple-blended syrup-catsup sauce. At party time, set out bowls of the shrimp, mushrooms, green pepper pieces and pineapple chunks. Guests thread skewers and cook their own kabobs over hibachis or miniature barbecue grills.

You can individualize the party by making a small hibachi for each guest. Use a new clay flower pot (6" in diameter) for the bowl and line the bottom with foil. Place small pebbles in the bottom as a base for charcoal. Cut circles of wire mesh (holes should be ¼-½" square) slightly larger than the top of the flower pot for grid.

Another time let guests make Party Pancakes. Little pancakes, accented with wine, are capped with a choice of blue cheese topping, liver spread or crab topping. Set a pitcher of pancake batter beside the griddle, and guests will enjoy baking their own pancakes.

Everyone likes fondue parties — not just for the food, but 'cause they're such fun. Here are two recipes to share top billing at your next party — tasty, festive fare and a change from traditional fondues.

Little meat balls are cooked on fondue forks and served with party rye bread. Easy Cheese Fondue, made with American cheese and mildly flavored with garlic, is served with bite-sized pieces of crips, toasted frozen waffles for "dippers."

EASY CHEESE FONDUE

Fondue:
1 clove garlic
2 cups milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 lb. American cheese, coarsely shredded
¼ cup all-purpose flour

Prepare waffles in toaster or oven according to package directions. Cool on wire rack. Cut each waffle section in 6 bite-sized pieces. For fondue, rub inside of earthenware fondue pot with garlic; discard garlic. Place milk and butter in fondue pot. Heat over medium heat until butter is melted.

Toss shredded cheese with flour; add to milk mixture. Continue cooking over medium heat, stirring frequently until smooth and thickened. To serve, pierce waffle pieces with fondue forks and swirl in fondue. Makes 12 servings.

MEAT BALL FONDUE

1½ lb. ground beef
½ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
One 2¼-oz. can deviled ham
2 tablespoons milk
36 stuffed green olives
One 8-oz. loaf party rye bread slices

Combine ground beef, oats, salt, pepper, deviled ham and milk. Shape around olives to form 36 small meat balls. Place each meat ball on the end of a skewer or fondue fork.

Fry in hot deep fat in fondue bourguignonne pan or chafing dish. Remove from skewer and serve on rye bread rounds. Makes 12 servings.

SPICY SHRIMP KABOBS

Spicy Marinade:
1½ cups catsup
½ cup maple-blended syrup
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
1 clove garlic, minced

Kabobs:
1 lb. cleaned, cooked shrimp
One 4-oz. can button mushrooms, drained
1 green pepper, cut in pieces
One 1-lb. 4-oz. can pineapple chunks, drained

For spicy marinade, combine catsup, syrup, ginger, salt and garlic. Cover and let stand about 2 hours to let flavor blend. (Spicy marinade may be refrigerated for later use.)

For kabobs, marinate shrimp in spicy marinade about 1 hour. Arrange shrimp, mushrooms, pepper and pineapple on 4-inch skewers. Brush with spicy marinate and broil over hibachi or other miniature barbecue. Makes 12 servings.

PARTY PANCAKES

Cream-Blue Cheese Topping:
Two 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
⅓ cup blue cheese
2 tablespoons milk

Sour Cream-Crab Meat Topping:
¾ cup dairy sour cream
One 7¾-oz. can crab meat, drained and flaked
2 drops liquid red pepper seasoning

Liver Spread:
One 8-oz. pkg. liver sausage
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon pickle relish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Pancake Bases:
2 cups pancake mix
2 cups dry white wine
2 eggs
2 tablespoons melted or liquid shortening

For cream-blue cheese topping, beat together cream cheese, blue cheese and milk.

For liver spread, beat together liver sausage, minced onion, pickle relish and mustard.

For sour cream-crab meat topping, gently stir sour cream, crab meat and pepper seasoning together. Refrigerate all 3 toppings until ready to use.

For pancake bases, place mix, wine, eggs and shortening in bowl. Stir only until batter is fairly smooth. For each pancake base, pour about 1 tablespoon batter onto hot, lightly greased griddle. Turn when tops are covered with bubbles and edges look cooked. Turn only once.

Top each pancake base with a spoonful of one of the toppings. Makes 12 servings.

AN APPLE TREE that produces five kinds of apples can be found in Frieda Lawrenz's backyard. The five strains are grafted onto one trunk so Frieda has apples all summer long. One of her favorite recipes is for Apple Slices, which resembles apple pie but is made in a jelly roll pan.

Mrs. Leonard Lawrenz

She Reaps The Fruits Of Her Land

Asparagus spears are about the only vegetable Mrs. Leonard Lawrenz has to go any farther than her backyard to get. The only reason she doesn't grow asparagus is that there simply isn't enough room behind her small house in Palatine.

Tomatoes, two kinds of red raspberries, green peppers, beans, sweet corn, cucumbers, an ever-bearing apple tree (five varieties are grafted onto one trunk), and a white cherry tree are just a few of the offerings that flourish under Frieda Lawrenz's green thumb.

Being raised on a farm increases her appreciation of home-grown produce. Frieda takes advantage of every square inch of soil and has fresh fruits and vegetables all summer.

She feels that the produce is only as good as the soil and combines several gardening techniques to obtain the best yield. "Good soil makes good plants," declared Frieda.

"I'M A PARTIAL organic gardener," she laughed. Mild chemicals are used at times, but lime sprinklings contribute to her bountiful crops and dark green lawn. The lime sweetens and breaks up the soil, she said.

Frieda has been a member of the Plum Grove Garden Club, "Oh, 15 or 16 years." House plants, flowers and outdoor plants of almost every variety possible can be found in abundance in and out of her house.

Every summer Frieda makes anywhere from 20 to 25 quarts of tomato juice from her tomatoes. She also cans whole tomatoes, pickled beets, corn, beans and the fruits. In the past Frieda usually froze her produce but is moving to Florida in the near future so is "canning almost everything this year."

AS A VETERAN cook with many years of experjence behind her, Frieda uses recipes basically for ideas. Her recipes for Apple Slices and Plum Kuchen do not appear in the usual form but have been time tested.

Frieda uses Italian plums from her tree for the Plum Kuchen. The recipe is basically an original and a favorite of her friends and family.

TOMATO JUICE

Wash and quarter enough tomatoes to fill at least a gallon kettle. Add approximately 1 quart water (to prevent tomatoes from burning), 3 celery ribs, chopped, and 2 sliced onions. Seasoning can be varied to suit taste. Boil until mushy, stirring occasionally.

Put hot tomatoes through foly mill to remove peelings and seeds.

Bring juice to a boil in a large kettle. Add ½ to 1 teaspoon salt per quart, pour into jars and seal.

APPLE SLICES

Triple your favorite recipe for pie crust. Roll out and line a jelly roll pan with the pie dough. Save half for top crust.

Mix 3 cups sugar and 3 tablespoons cornstarch. Add cinnamon and/or nutmeg, if desired.

Sprinkle part of the mixture on the crust-lined pan. Add enough apple slices (peeled and sliced thin) to fill pan to top. Sprinkle remaining sugar mixture over the apples. Place the top crust over apples and seal edges. Cut slits in the top crust.

Place in a preheated 400-degree oven. After about 20 minutes, or when the top is golden brown, lower the temperature to 375 degrees. Total baking time should be about 55 minutes.

PLUM KUCHEN

Add 2 tablespoons sugar to a Pillsbury hot roll mix. Prepare according to package directions.

Allow dough to rise; then roll dough think for a jelly roll pan (there will be extra). Line the pan with dough. Wash and cut Italian plums in half. Put cut side up on the dough, as close together as possible.

While the dough (with plums) is rising the second time, combine 3 eggs, slightly beaten, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, and 3 cups sugar (depending on sweetness desired.) When the dough has risen the second time, pour mixture over the plums. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for time indicated on hot roll package.

A Stewed Beef And Bitters Combo

Beef 'n bitters is a favorite on-the-rocks drink for people who don't. Drink, that is. It's made with condensed beef broth and a dash or two of Angostura. Weight watchers love it for its low calorie count; others like it for its bright and hearty taste.

It was inevitable that somebody should get the idea of putting beef and bitters together another way. Why not in a stew? Since that indefinable flavor of Angostura gives such zest to ordinary beef broth why wouldn't it pick up a beef stew. It does. The blend of herbs and spices that makes up the bitters seeps deep into the stew, giving it rare flavor and aroma. This turns out to be a magic seasoning trick.

The Spanish have a stew which they call Carne Boracha. Loosely translated: "Intoxicated Beef." In a way, that's what this could be called. It's a heady concoction. It can well be put forth on a company buffet or for the sit-down dinner for the new boss and his wife.

The beauty of it all is that it only gets better when it's reheated in the last minute. Just add a little more water or wine to prevent the meat from sticking.

BEEF 'n BITTERS STEW

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 pounds stewing beef, cut into 1 inch cubes
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon Angostura aromatic bitters
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup small stuffed green olives
- 1 cup sherry
- Water

Heat oil and butter. Add beef and brown cubes on all sides. Add remaining ingredients with enough water to cover meat. Cover and simmer gently for 2 hours or until meat is tender. Add more water from time to time to keep meat from sticking. When meat is done liquid should be at half the original volume. Serve meat spooned over yellow rice. Yield: 6 servings.

School Lunches May Affect Child's Grades

by PETER M. KELLY

A growing number of school nutritionists say the reason Johnny can't read is because he's hungry.

The theory is that meals dished out in a school cafeteria have a direct bearing on the grades on a child's report card.

Mrs. Patricia Bayer, editor of the School Foodservice Journal in Denver, Colo., concurs. She said in an interview that past studies have shown well-fed children earn better grades than those who come hungry to the classroom.

"Compared with ghetto kids coming hungry to school, the well-fed child's attention span is greater. His learning curve jumps way up."

Many problems with the present school lunch program set-up were outlined in a recent journal article by Dr. Bruno Bettleheim that appeared originally in Family Health magazine. Bettleheim is a top authority in the field of child care.

Bettleheim's critique boiled down the troubles to poorly tasting food, too little time in which to eat it and lack of nutritional balance.

Mrs. Bayer said response to the article from school system food directors throughout the country overwhelmingly backed Bettleheim.

"WE HAD ONE director from Louisiana order a thousand reprints of the article," said Mrs. Bayer. "We've had magazines order. We hope to get the message across."

She added that the message on the need for proper nutrition will take a long time to filter down to everyone involved — including parents and school board members.

She said diet problems often begin with parents who send children to school without a basic breakfast. The problem is compounded at lunchtime when pupils reject unappetizing foods in favor of better-tasting ones with little nutritional balance.

Mrs. Bayer said the problem also finds it way to school boards, which look at lunch programs as possible areas of economy instead of as an integral part of education.

She expects correction of the problem to be a long process.

"The impetus probably will come from the federal level. The President's Council on Advisory Nutrition has recommended nutrition education in the schools and the Department of Agriculture has shown a marked interest that these recommendations be carried out," she said.

She said that nutrition is not being taught currently to would-be teachers, although indications are some states will include the course in future curricula.

"WE THOUGHT Dr. Bettleheim's article was an excellent critique," Mrs. Bayer said. "He said in essence that there was not enough time to eat, that the cafeteria is noisy and food is shoved in front of kids. I don't think you'll find any administrator who feels that's the way to go."

She also said that food service administrators believe a 20-minute lunch period is not long enough "to allow food to become an integral part of a child's education."

School systems currently are testing a program that provides breakfasts for children before their classes begin.

It's not just ghetto children who come to school hungry, she noted.

A study by Dr. David Call of the Cornell University nutrition department showed lack of a proper breakfast is widespread among middle-class pupils as well as poor ones.

"Changing or making the school lunch program better comes down to the question 'does the child like the food or not,'" Mrs. Bayer concluded. "Many of these things come under nutrition education. "You have to teach a child that a hamburger and a malt is not the way he's going to make the football team."

Serve Salads Often

Many people don't serve salads often enough for best nutrition. It's common knowledge that when fresh vegetables are eaten raw, the full benefit of the vitamins and minerals is obtained. There is no loss, as is often suffered in even the most careful cooking.

In a family where good nutrition is well understood, even the children will ask you to "pass the vitamins" when they want another serving of salad. And it's true. Salads are high vitamin dishes and lettuce leads the salad parade.

Crisphead or Iceberg lettuce is the most popular variety in America, and what a lot of ways there are to serve it. The simplest serving is to just cut an Iceberg lettuce in wedges and spoon over it a favorite salad dressing. Russian, Roquefort, and sour cream dressing, are just delicious in contrast to the refreshing, crisp lettuce. When you are making a chicken or tuna salad, it's a pleasant change to toss small chunks of lettuce with the chicken or fish rather than serve the salad on lettuce leaves.

New Look For Southern-Style Ham & Yam Dish

The pleasing taste combination of ham and yams is one enjoyed by millions of people where once it was considered a Southern specialty. Stretching the imagination a bit with the addition of banana, ginger and coconut makes this a dish with a tropical feeling. . .one also familiar to those who grew up in the lush islands that are so popular with tourists today. This is a good family dish that goes well at a party, too.

TROPICAL-STYLE YAMS AND HAM

- 1 cup dark corn syrup
- ½ cup (canned) apple juice
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- Lemon juice, about 2 tablespoons
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
- 6 medium Louisiana yams, cooked, peeled and halved or 3 cans (16 ounces each) Louisiana yams, drained
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cooked bone-in center-cut ham slice, 2-inches thick (about 2½ to 3 pounds)
- 1 large ripe banana
- Blend corn syrup, apple juice, lemon
- 1 can (4 ounces) shredded coconut

peel, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and seasonings together in saucepan over medium heat. Bring mixture to a boil and remove from heat. Reserve ½-cup of mixture for basting ham; pour remainder over yams. Dot yams with butter and cover. Place ham steak in shallow baking dish; brush generously with reserved glaze mixture. Bake yams and ham steak in 350-degree oven 20 minutes, basting both occasionally. Slice banana and brush with lemon juice. Remove yams from oven and uncover; arrange banana slices over yams. Spoon glaze over bananas and yams. Sprinkle coconut around edge of dish to form a border. Return yams to oven and bake (uncovered) 10 minutes longer or until coconut is lightly browned. Serve with the ham. Makes 6 servings.

Use Safe Methods For Canning Vegetables

If you have hesitated to can vegetables because of fear of spoilage, remember the organisms blamed for spoiage are just doing what comes naturaly. The real culprit is the ignorant carless, or stubborn-not-about-to-use-modern methods person who does the canning.

The most common type of spilage in canned vegetables is called flat-our. The food may look right and smell ight, but has an unpleasant sourish taste. It is neither fit to eat, nor poisonous. The bacteria causing flat-sour can star growing in vegetables which have stood too long between steps in gathering, preparing, putting into jars and processing. This is particularly true of corn and ther starchy vegetables. If necessar to hold vegetables several hours or overnight, they should be refrigerated.

Botulism is another widely misunderstood type of food spoilage. t is by no means confined to canned fods. It has been found in frozen, smoke, and pickled sea foods; dried, smoked, and pickled meats; pickled beets and als homemade cheese. The invisible-to-te-naked-eye spores of bacteria which cse botulism are harmless until they fid their way into an airless space coaining very little acid and start growig. Then they give off a deadly toxin. Unless the illness of a person who has eten the contaminated food is promptly diagnosed and the right antitoxin qickly obtained, the patient may not survie.

The first step in preventing botulism is to use only strictly fesh, sound vegetables. No matter hov clean they may seem, wash them as i they were filthy. Then quickly prepare, put into jars and process in a steam-pessure canner for the right length of tim at the right pressure for your altitude. Then your canned vegetables will be as safe as any food can be. But if you sti have misgivings, turn the food into a sucepan and let it boil 15 minutes, stirrig often, before tasting. Never, never, tate food of any kind to learn whether it is poiled.

IF NEW AT canng, the first thing needed is an up-to-dte canning bulletin or book. You may e able to obtain a government bulletin from your county agricultural extensin home economist. If not, you can sen 20 cents for Home and Garden Bulldin No. 8 entitled "Home Canning f Fruits and Vegetables" to U.S. Goernment Printing Office, Washington, .C. 20402. Or send 50 cents in coin to "lue Book," Box 2005, Muncie, Ind., 4730. This one contains instructions and recpes for pickling, preserving, etc., as ell as up-to-date canning methods, an information on home freezing.

You can make he canning job easier and quicker by collecting all needed equipment, carefuly inspecting every jar to make sure the op is smooth (one tiny nick or chip can prevent sealing), and checking instructins ahead of time. Prepare, pack, and pocess the food in small quantities.

MIXED EGETABLES

Any go-wellogether mixture of vegetables may e canned. The mixture must be processd the length of time needed for vegeible in mixture requiring the longest pocessing time. Perhaps you would like to try canning corn and lima beans togeher. This is called Succotash. Be sur to start with strictly fresh vegetables. Boil corn 5 minutes. Cut from cob. Do not scrape. Combine with from one alf to equal amount of green lima beas. Heat mixture to boiling, pour to 1 inch of top of jar (this amount of headspace is needed because these vegetable tend to swell while processing). Add ½ teaspoon salt to pints, 1 teaspoon to qarts. Be sure to add enough water t cover vegetables. Wipe off anything spled on top or threads of jar. Put domelid on jar; screw band tight. Process pts 55 minutes, quarts 85 minutes at 10 punds steam pressure.

SPANISH SAUCE

Use firm, soud, red-ripe tomatoes. Do not use the so-alled low-acid tomatoes — they are shot on flavor. To fill 3 or 4 half-pint jars us:

- 2 quarts prepred tomatoes
- 1 medium-sized green sweet peppr
- 1 small red sweet pepper
- 1/3 cup choppe onion
- ½ cup sliced elery
- 1 clove garli— mince or put throgh garlic press
- ½ teaspoon died basil
- 2 teaspoons slt or amount to uit taste

Wash, rinse and drain vegetables. Scald, core, sin, chop, and measure tomatoes. Remoe stem and blossom ends from pepper. Iscard seeds and cut pepper into smal pieces. Combine all ingredients; boil 0 minutes and pour to ½ inch of top o jar. Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on ja; screw band tight. Process pints 15 inutes, quarts 20 minutes at 10 pounds seam pressure, or 50 minutes in boiling-water bath.

TOMATO KETCHUP

Use sound, firm, red-ripe tomatoes. Yield depends upon thickness of ketchup and variety of omatoes used.

- 4 quarts cord and chopped tomatoes
- 1 cup choppd onion
- 1 cup seeded and chopped rd sweet pepper
- 1½ teaspoons ach celery and mustad seed
- ½ teaspoon ach whole cloves, allpice, and black peppercorns
- 1 3-inch stick of cinnamon— break int small pieces
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 1 tablespon salt
- ½ cup sugar
- 1½ cups vinegar

Wash, core, chop, and measure tomatoes into kettle; add onions and pepper. Slowly cook vegetables (no water needed) until tomato juice runs freely. Increase heat and boil until vegetables are soft; then put through sieve to remove skins and seed. Return tomato mixture to kettle and boil bout 20 minutes. Add whole spices tied in thin piece of cloth to make spice "bag." Continue boiling until mixture is almost as thick as ketchup. Then add the remaining ingredients and boil until ketchup is as thick as wanted. Discard spice "bag," taste ketchup and add more sugar and salt if wanted. Pour hot ketchup to 1/8 inch of top of half-pint jar. Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process jars 5 minutes in boiling-water bath.

Use Safe Methods For Canning Vegetables

MAKE PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS PART OF YOUR DAILY LIFE

If you have hesitated to can vegetables because of fear of spoilage, remember the organisms blamed for spoilage are just doing what comes naturally. The real culprit is the ignorant careless, or stubborn-not-about-to-use-modern methods person who does the canning.

The most common type of spoilage in canned vegetables is called flat-sour. The food may look right and smell right, but has an unpleasant sourish taste. It is neither fit to eat, nor poisonous. The bacteria causing flat-sour can start growing in vegetables which have stood too long between steps in gathering, preparing, putting into jars and processing. This is particularly true of corn and other starchy vegetables. If necessary to hold vegetables several hours or overnight, they should be refrigerated.

Botulism is another widely misunderstood type of food spoilage. It is by no means confined to canned foods. It has been found in frozen, smoked, and pickled sea foods; dried, smoked, and pickled meats; pickled beets and also homemade cheese. The invisible-to-the-naked-eye spores of bacteria which cause botulism are harmless until they find their way into an airless space containing very little acid and start growing. Then they give off a deadly toxin. Unless the illness of a person who has eaten the contaminated food is promptly diagnosed and the right antitoxin quickly obtained, the patient may not survive.

The first step in preventing botulism is to use only strictly fresh, sound vegetables. No matter how clean they may seem, wash them as if they were filthy. Then quickly prepare, put into jars and process in a steam-pressure canner for the right length of time at the right pressure for your altitude. Then your canned vegetables will be as safe as any food can be. But if you still have misgivings, turn the food into a saucepan and let it boil 15 minutes, stirring often, before tasting. Never, never, taste food of any kind to learn whether it is spoiled.

IF NEW AT canning, the first thing needed is an up-to-date canning bulletin or book. You may be able to obtain a government bulletin from your county agricultural extension home economist. If not, you can send 20 cents for Home and Garden Bulletin No. 8 entitled "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" to U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Or send 50 cents in coin to "Blue Book," Box 2005, Muncie, Ind., 47302. This one contains instructions and recipes for pickling, preserving, etc., as well as up-to-date canning methods, and information on home freezing.

You can make the canning job easier and quicker by collecting all needed equipment, carefully inspecting every jar to make sure the top is smooth (one tiny nick or chip can prevent sealing), and checking instructions ahead of time. Prepare, pack, and process the food in small quantities.

MIXED VEGETABLES

Any go-well-together mixture of vegetables may be canned. The mixture must be processed the length of time needed for vegetable in mixture requiring the longest processing time. Perhaps you would like to try canning corn and lima beans together. This is called Succotash. Be sure to start with strictly fresh vegetables. Boil corn 5 minutes. Cut from cob. Do not scrape. Combine with from one half to equal amount of green lima beans. Heat mixture to boiling, pour to 1 inch of top of jar (this amount of head space is needed because these vegetables tend to swell while processing). Add ½ teaspoon salt to pints, 1 teaspoon to quarts. Be sure to add enough water to cover vegetables. Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process pints 55 minutes, quarts 85 minutes at 10 pounds steam pressure.

SPANISH SAUCE

Use firm, sound, red-ripe tomatoes. Do not use the so-called low-acid tomatoes — they are short on flavor. To fill 3 or 4 half-pint jars use:

- 2 quarts prepared tomatoes
- 1 medium-sized green sweet pepper
- 1 small red sweet pepper
- 1/3 cup chopped onion
- ½ cup sliced celery
- 1 clove garlic — mince or put through garlic press
- ½ teaspoon dried basil
- 2 teaspoons salt or amount to suit taste

Wash, rinse, and drain vegetables. Scald, core, skin, chop, and measure tomatoes. Remove stem and blossom ends from pepper. Discard seeds and cut pepper into small pieces. Combine all ingredients; boil 10 minutes and pour to ½ inch of top of jar. Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process pints 15 minutes, quarts 20 minutes at 10 pounds steam pressure, or 50 minutes in boiling-water bath.

TOMATO KETCHUP

Use sound, firm, red-ripe tomatoes. Yield depends upon thickness of ketchup and variety of tomatoes used.

- 4 quarts cored and chopped tomatoes
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup seeded and chopped red sweet pepper
- 1½ teaspoons each celery and mustard seed
- ½ teaspoon each whole cloves, allspice, and black peppercorns
- 1 3-inch stick of cinnamon—break into small pieces
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ½ cup sugar
- 1½ cups vinegar

Wash, core, chop, and measure tomatoes into kettle; add onions and pepper. Slowly cook vegetables (no water needed) until tomato juice runs freely. Increase heat and boil until vegetables are soft; then put through sieve to remove skins and seed. Return tomato mixture to kettle and boil bout 20 minutes. Add whole spices tied in thin piece of cloth to make spice "bag." Continue boiling until mixture is almost as thick as ketchup. Then add the remaining ingredients and boil until ketchup is as thick as wanted. Discard spice "bag," taste ketchup and add more sugar and salt if wanted. Pour hot ketchup to 1/8 inch of top of half-pint jar. Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process jars 5 minutes in boiling-water bath.

Canning Advice From Home Economists

by JEANNE LESEM

Old-fashioned home canning is increasing so fast this summer that retailers and manufacturers of pressure cooker-canners have a tough time filling back orders, says one major company.

A spokesman for Sears Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest combination retail and catalogue sales organization, added that the increases are as great in urban areas as in rural and small town locales. He estimated that canner sales are up about 20-25 per cent industry-wide.

In Baton Rouge, the Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service says three factors are responsible for the boom: the economic squeeze including high food costs, renewed interest in home skills, and power shortages or the threat of them.

While freezing vegetables and fruit is easy and effective, loss from spoilage can run high if freezers have to be emptied during power failures, said Catherine Arnold, an assistant extension specialist with the Louisiana Cooperative. Many homemakers prefer to reserve freezer space for sale-priced high ticket items, including meat.

Pickling and preserving, which also are increasing, need no special equipment such as pressure canners. Their high acid or sugar content acts as an adequate preservative.

But most vegetables must be canned under 10 pounds pressure — to raise temperatures to 240 degrees Fahrenheit, high enough to destroy the toxins that cause botulism. It is the single major cause of deaths from food-borne diseases in the United States. Botulism also is the rarest type of food poisoning in the United States, and is more likely to occur in home-canned foods than commercially-canned ones.

HOME CANNING is neither difficult nor dangerous. Free training is widely available through county home demonstration agents, or extension home economists. Regular workshop demonstrations and special interest meetings are held throughout the United States. Church and civic groups, state agencies and departments can arrange for such meetings by contacting county agents or the extension service at state colleges and universities. These were an outgrowth of Canning Clubs, the first of which was organized about 1910 by a South Carolina teacher for a group of 47 girls.

The clubs led to similar work with rural women. An extensive canning program was available by the time of the great drought in 1930 and the depression.

Federal and state funds helped buy and maintain canning equipment for loan to homemakers and women's groups. Many communities established canning kitchens and home demonstration agents trained personnel to run them. In Louisiana, volunteers and paid aides still give home lessons and demonstrations. Canning equipment and supply manufacturers also provide detailed instructions with their products.

But no one source tells you everything you need to know. Here, from the Louisiana State Extension Service and National Presto Industries, Inc., the nation's largest pressure cooker manufacturer, are some important tips for home canning.

If your canner is not new, have the pressure gauge checked with a maximum registering thermometer every canning season to make certain it's registering correctly. If you don't want to buy a thermometer, look for a local public utility home economics department that provides the service. Some county extension agents, hardware or department store cooker clinics and manufacturer's authorized service stations also offer this service.

—REPLACE WORN-OUT rubber sealing ring and safety vent, if necessary.

—Have all materials in one place before you begin canning.

—Use only Mason-type jars. Leftover pickle and mayonnaise jars can crack or break at the high temperatures used in pressure canning.

—Use only new lids. Discard any with defects such as scratches, cuts and dents in metal or sealing compound.

—Metal rings can be reused safely if they are free from cuts, dents and rusts.

—Rub a finger around the mouth of each jar to locate nicks or cracks and discard any damaged jars.

—Jars and lids for pressure canning need not be presterilized, but they should be washed in hot soapy water, rinsed and kept in hot water until needed.

—Wash vegetables in clean water and lift them from it to drain. This allows dirt and sand to settle instead of being redeposited on food.

—FOR EXTRA flavor in canning vegetables, add ½ teaspoon of packaged dry salad dressing mix the kind without cheese as well as ½ teaspoon of salt to pint jars, or 1 teaspoon each to quarts.

—Spaghetti tongs — the type with tines at right angles to the handles — makes it easy to remove vegetables such as hot beans from pot to jars.

—Because heat does not penetrate some foods easily, pack them loosely. This applies to peas, corn, lima beans, greens and meats, among others. They also tend to expand, and need 1-inch head space instead of the ½ inch required for solidly packaged foods such as fruits, berries and tomatoes.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends that only eight vegetables be packed without precooking. They are asparagus, fresh lima beans, snap beans, carrots, whole kernel corn, blackeyed peas, green peas and summer squash.

—Prepare only enough jars at one time to fill canner. Allow a little space between each jar to prevent possible cracking.

—Lightly brush underside of lugs on lid and canner with vegetable oil to make lid easy to remove.

A variation of one or two pounds pressure won't hurt, but the heat should be adjusted to prevent a wider range. In altitudes above 2,000 feet, one pound of pressure should be added for each additional 2,000 feet. It's easy to increase and decrease heat quickly on gas range burners. On an electric range, you may need to keep a second burner on lower heat so the canner can be eased onto it if pressure begins rising too rapidly. Gently slide the canner — don't lift it — so the jars inside don't move.

WHEN TIME is up, remove canner from burner and keep it away frm drafts. Let pressure drop to zero unaided. Do not place canner in water or lay wet cloths on it. The extension service suggests a three minute wait after pressure reaches zero.

—Wait until automatic air vent also drops before removing pressure regulator or opening petcock to release steam.

—Open cover away from you to prevent steam burns.

—Use a jar lifter to remove jars to rack or cloth to cool. They should stand several inches apart and out of drafts to prevent risk of cracking. Let cool 24 hours before checking seal and storing. Jar is sealed if dome lid is down or if it stays down when pressed. Rings may be removed for reuse. Store jars in cool, dark, dry place.

For safety's sake, never taste even a tiny amount of home canned vegetables or juices from a freshly opened jar until you've brought the contents rapidly to a boil and boiled them hard for 15 minutes. This method kills any botulinius bacteria that may be present.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Everyone likes a dish which can be prepared easily, cooked with minimal attention, and served at the table. Just such a preparation is this recipe for Five-Hour Stew, the favorite of E. N. Jacquin, Fairmount, Alton, Ill., long-time friend and newspaper editor.

Ed says "I can vouch for its goodness. We use it for sit-down dinners with hard rolls, salad and dessert for 6 to 8, with usually a little left over. Just put it in the oven and forget it."

In a casserole put 2½ pounds beef stew meat, cut into serving pieces. Season with salt, pepper and garlic salt to your taste. Add 6 to 8 potatoes, 6 to 8 carrots, depending on size, cut into large pieces, and 2 onions, quartered.

Add 1 No. 2 can peas and a little of the liquid, 1 can tomato soup and a half can of water, 1 bay leaf and a dash of oregano. Cover and bake five hours in a 325 degree oven.

ALMOST IN THE same mail Mrs. Emma L. Young, Zanesville, Ohio, sent her version of the stew. In a little fat, brown 2 pounds cubed stew meat. Drain. Add 6 diced potatoes, 6 diced carrots, 6 onions, quartered, 1 rib celery cut in chunks. Sprinkle over 3 tablespoons tapioca, 1 tablespoon sugar, salt and pepper to taste.

Add a dash of Worcestershire then pour over 1 quart of tomatoes, juice and all. Set oven at 250 and bake 5 hours.

So take your pick for an easy meal.

FOR A MAIN dish to be served cold, here's a real quickie for hot weather days. Prepare a package of Kraft macaroni and cheese dinner according to package directions. Then allow to cool.

Meantime in a bowl combine ½ cup chopped celery, ½ cup sweet pickles, chopped, ½ green pepper, diced, 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs, 1 teaspoon parsley flakes (or equivalent in fresh parsley) and salt and pepper to taste.

Add the macaroni dinner and ½ cup mayonnaise. Stir, then chill before serving to 4.

Homemade Pickles And Relishes

Seasoned For Your Personal Taste

Strange it is that so many home pickle makers search for new recipes when all one needs is two or three up-to-date ones. The secret is in the seasoning. Mrs. A and Mrs. B use the same recipe. Both make good pickles, but the flavor is different because each seasons to her own taste.

The only cucumber worth pickling is grown for that purpose, and it is no good unless firm, strictly fresh, and blessed with tiny seeds.

Persons involved in scientific research recommend that jars of pickles and relishes be processed (cooked) a few minutes in a boiling-water bath canner. Temperamental may be a strange word to apply to pickles, but that is the way unprocessed ones tend to behave. They may keep one year and spoil the next.

If you haven't been happy with your pickles, you might try this recipe. Do change the amount and kind of seasonings to please your taste, but please don't tinker with the vinegar.

EASY TO MAKE PICKLES

Leave pickles whole or cut into thick slices or "sticks" before canning. If you want them sweeter, add more sugar in installments. Adding too much at a time causes shriveling. If you want 2 or 3 more cups of sugar, add about half of it, and let stand a day or two before adding the rest.

For 3 or 4 pints of pickles use:

- 8 or 9 pounds 3 to 5 inch long fresh, firm, pickling cucumbers
- ¾ cup pure granulated salt
- 3 cups vinegar of 5 per cent acidity — check bottle label
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon mixed pickling spices and 1 large clove of garlic tied in thin piece of cloth to make "spice bag"

For each pint jar of pickle you will need:

- 1 teaspoon light mustard seed
- 1 small hot red pepper
- 1 large or 2 small heads of fresh dill or 2 teaspoons dried dill

Thoroughly wash and drain cucumbers. Watch for and discard blossoms. Put cucumbers in a non-metallic container and cover with brine made by dissolving the ¾ cup salt in 4 quarts of water. Use dinner plate or glass pie pan to hold cucumbers under brine. Let stand 1 or 2 days. Pour the vinegar, sugar, and 4½ cups water into kettle. Add spice bag and let simmer 20 minutes or until well flavored. If using fresh dill, wash it in cool salted water, rinse in plain water and drain. (Omit this step and you may pickle bugs.)

Put mustard seed and dill in jars; add well drained cucumbers to ½ inch of top of jars. Pour boiling hot pickling solution over cucumbers. Solution should come to about ¼ inch of top of jar. Wipe top and threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process pints 15 minutes, quarts 20 minutes in boiling-water bath. Begin counting the time as soon as jars are placed in the boiling water. Be sure to keep jars straight as they are lowered into the water, so the entire bottom of each one will touch the water at the same instant, otherwise the jars may crack from thermal shock.

MUSTARD RELISH

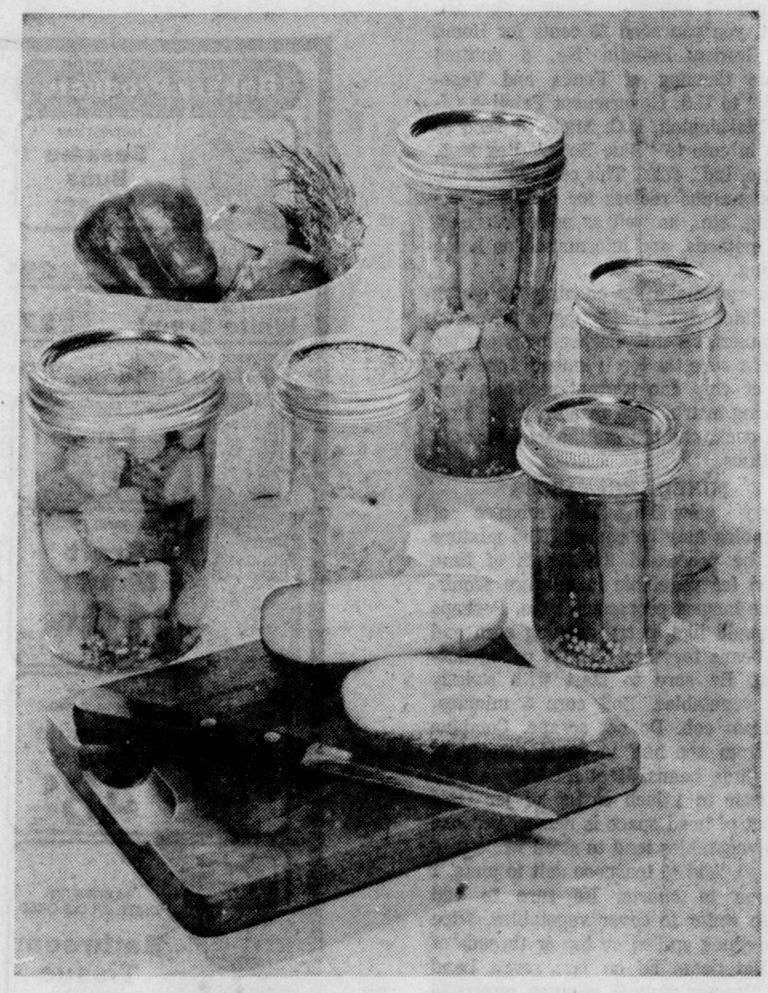
If you like it quite hot, add Dijon mustard to please your taste. To fill 3 or 4 pint jars use:

- 3 cups cored and chopped green tomatoes
- 1 cup chopped green sweet pepper
- 1 cup chopped red sweet pepper
- 1½ cups chopped mild onion
- 5 cups chopped cabbage
- ½ cup salt
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup prepared yellow mustard — more or less may be used
- 1 tablespoon each celery and light mustard seed
- 2½ cups vinegar

Wash, rinse, and drain vegetables before chopping. Mix vegetables and salt. Let stand 2 or 3 hours. Press out and discard as much liquid as possible. If vegetables are too salty, quickly rinse them in cool water and repeat the pressing bit.

Combine all ingredients in kettle. Heat to boiling, then let simmer 20 minutes or until there is very little liquid. Mixture should be neither dry, nor soupy.

Pour hot relish to 1/8 inch of top of pint or half-pint jar. Wipe top and threads of jar — one tiny seed can cause sealing failure. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. Process pints and half-pints 5 minutes in boiling water bath.



Serve Dilled, Filled Squash

Squash makes a relatively inexpensive and low-calorie vegetable dish to accompany any fish or meat. Filling squash with leftover meat such as roast beef makes it a meal in itself. Dilled stuffed squash brings color to your plate and pleasure to the taste buds.

DILLED STUFFED SQUASH

- 3 medium zucchini or yellow crookneck squash
- 3 tablespoons dill pickle liquid
- 2 cups (½ pound) diced roast beef
- ½ cup chopped dill pickle
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1 canned pimiento, diced
- 2 tablespoons low-calorie Italian dressing
- Dash pepper

Parboil squash in boiling salted water for about 5 minutes; drain, cool and cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out center. Brush zucchini with 1 tablespoon of the pickle liquid. Toss together remaining pickle liquid, beef, pickles, onion, pimiento, dressing and pepper. Mound on the zucchini. Cover and chill. Allow two halves per serving for dinner or one for lunch. Makes 3 dinner servings. Has 386 calories in 2 halves; 193 calories, 1 half.

Mr. Bill Wright

Tomato Rosebuds Blossom When He Cooks

by LOIS SEILER

Cooking creatively presents a challenge for Bill Wright of Arlington Heights. He likes to concoct something really special as the focal point of a dinner party, then lets his wife, Chris, handle the accompaniments.

Chris, a good cook in her own right, enjoys Bill's culinary masterpieces so much that she doesnt mind planning a meal around his specialties, nor cleaning up afterwards.

Bill seldom prepares a complete meal because of a lack of time. He gets so involved when creating a new dish or two that he spends hours in the kitchen.

"It would probably take me two to three days to produce an entire meal," he chuckled.

But that's because Bill has a compulsion for originality. A picture might give him an idea, or perhaps a recipe that sounds appealing but isn't quite what he wants. So he starts out from scratch, assembles the necessary ingredients, tests and tastes, ransacks the cupboards for seasonings and spices until voila! The dish is just right!

Bill learned to cook when, as a college student, he shared an apartment with three other boys. After his marriage to Chris, he stayed relatively clear of the kitchen until six or seven years ago when he and three friends decided to form a men's gourmet group.

The four men entered into the culinary field with enthusiasm and great competitive spirit. Each is assigned a certain portion of a meal, and each tries to outdo the others.

"It's a case of friendly one-upmanship," Bill good naturedly explained. "As a result, the meals are fantastic."

The wives are the guests at these gourmet dinners, and after their husbands have spent all day in the kitchen preparing such elegant fare, they are quite amenable to clean-up chores. Calorie counters would be casualties at these festive affairs.

"AFTER ONE MEAL, we figured out that between the four of us we had used 9 pounds of butter!" Bill exclaimed. "Surely no one person preparing a dinner by himself would be guilty of such extravagance, but it was a dinner we are unlikely to forget."

For one such gourmet dinner, Bill was called upon to prepare the salad.

"I'm a pressure cook," Bill said, "and work best when I'm challenged to create something original."

A picture of radish roses in a magazine set him to thinking. Not being particularly fond of radishes but being partial to roses, Bill decided to fashion a rose from more palatable ingredients. His choice was tomatoes encompassed with pink-tinged cream cheese petals to resemble a partially-closed rose, with a sprinkling of sieved yolk for the pollen on top. Placed on lettuce leaves and garnished with watercress, the tomato roses are a true sensation.

"However, the salad had more esthetic appeal than palate appeal," Bill said. To compensate for the blandness of the tomatoes, and creamcheese, he devised a lemon French dressing zipped up with grated onion. This is served in a silver gravy boat or saucedish and guests pour it over the salad just before eating.

"It adds just the right touch and gives the roses a flavor boost," Bill said.

While the Tomato Rose Salad is best for a formal dinner, Bill's fresh spinach salad is ideal for casual entertaining and barbecued meats.

THE CRISP GREENS are combined with bacon bits and grated eggs and tossed with a tangy dressing. Along with the basic vinegar and oil, he uses white wine and a variety of seasonings such as soy sauce, mustard, curry powder and garlic salt in his dressing.

The fresh spinach salad has lots of zest and is a great accompaniment for steak. It also is appetizing to serve with another of Bill's specialties, Sweet Sourt Pork.

The high price of beef motivated Bill to utilize more economical cuts of meat in his culinary endeavors. He devised this recipe from shoulder pork which is cubed and cooked in water seasoned with soy sauce. The broth is used in preparing the sweet sour sauce which is then combined with the pork and crushed pineapple and served over cooked rice.

"It is relatively simple to make yet has an interesting flavor," Bill remarked. Along with the spinach salad, he suggests peas with pearl onions as an accompaniment.

Bill's ingenuity isn't limited to cooking; a man of many talents, he has completely remodeled the kitchen and utility room of the family's new home and is redecorating the whole house.

A year ago Bill went into business for himself and is a producer's representative involved in motion picture production for industrial application. This new venture leaves him little time for his hobbies other than an occasional stint in the kitchen and gardening — an interest which he also shares with his wife. The Wilsons have two children: Cari, 11, and Janice, 6 years old.

TOMATO ROSE SALAD

2 8-ounce packages cream cheese
Milk
Red food coloring
2 hard-cooked egg yolks, sieved
1 head lettuce
Watercress

Peel tomatoes and chill. Soften cheese with milk to a workable consistency. Tint to a pale pink with food coloring.

Form petals on the tomato by using one tablespoonful of cream cheese per petal. Starting at the top, draw the spoon downward with a curving motion against the side of tomato so that the cheese will form a petal on the edge of tomato. Make two rows, with four petals in each row. Experimentation will allow you to place the petals in various positions so that the tomato will resemble a rose in a closed position. Sprinkle sieved egg yolk in the center top of each rose to resemble pollen.

Serve roses on base of crisp lettuce surrounded by watercress. Serve with Lemon French Dressing. Serves 8.

LEMON FRENCH DRESSING

1 cup salad oil
2/3 cup fresh lemon juice
1/3 cup granulated sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons paprika
1 teaspoon grated onion
4 drops red food coloring

Mix ingredients together in a jar and shake well. Makes 1 2/3 cups dressing. Serve in a saucedish or gravy boat and spoon over tomato rose salad before eating.

FRESH SPINACH SALAD

¼ cup wine vinegar
½ cup white wine
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon curry powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic salt
2/3 teaspoon freshly-ground pepper
2 bunches young fresh spinach (approximately 4 quarts)
½ pound lean bacon
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced or grated

Combine oil, wine, vinegar, soy sauce, sugar and other seasonings in a covered jar. Shake well and chill.

Thoroughly wash spinach. Remove all stems and tear into bite-size pieces. Let set in cold water until ready to use. Dry slightly on towels.

Dice bacon and fry until crisp. Drain.

Just before serving, mix bacon and eggs with spinach. Shake dressing vigorously and pour slowly over the salad while tossing it. Serve immediately. Serves 8.

SWEET SOUR PORK

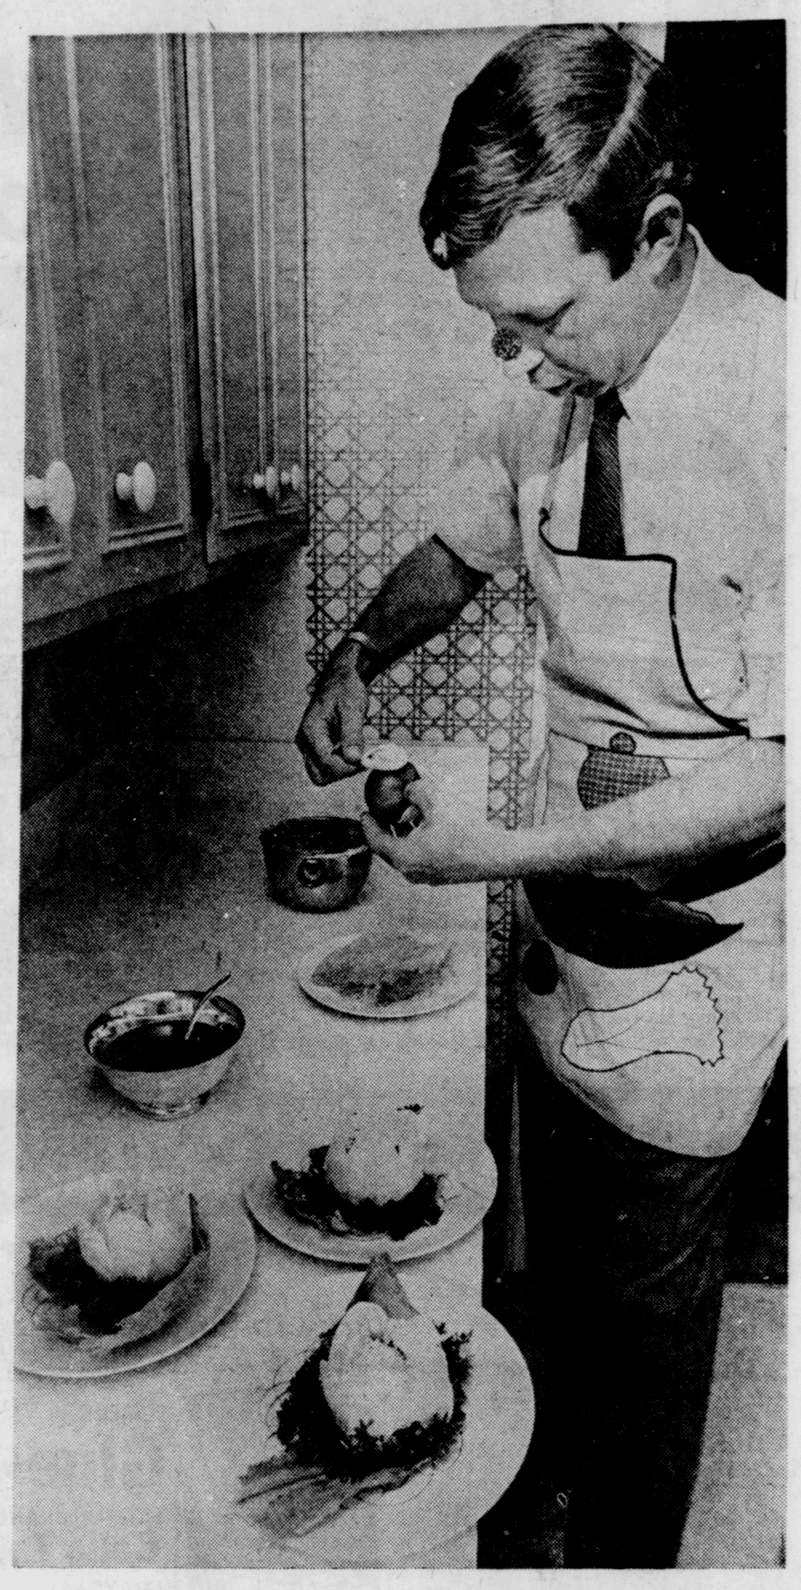
2½ pounds pork sliced from whole shoulder
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons sherry
1/3 cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 9-ounce can pineapple tidbits, plus juice
4 to 6 cups prepared rice

Have butcher remove bone and cut meat into one-inch cubes. Place in a two-quart saucepan. Add water, salt and soy sauce. Place on high heat and bring to a rolling boil. Reduce heat; cover saucepan and simmer 50 minutes until tender.

Drain off broth into a small saucepan and skim off floating fat. Add sherry and set aside.

Make the sweet sour sauce by combining sugar, cornstarch, vinegar and 1/3 cup pineapple juice drained from tidbits. Blend in a saucepan until smooth consistency. Slowly stir in meat broth over medium-high heat until sauce is thick and translucent, about five minutes, stirring constantly.

Add pork cubes and pineapple and warm through. Serve over cooked rice. Serves 8.



A PICTURE of radish roses in a magazine provided the inspiration for Bill Wright's Tomato Rose Salad. He encompasses tomatoes with pink-tinged cream cheese petals to resemble a partially-closed rose. A sprinkling of sieved egg yolk on top exemplifies pollen. Placed on lettuce leaves and garnished with watercress, the tomato roses make an elegant salad for a formal dinner.

Jams That Save Time And Pennies

If you have a pressure canner and a bountiful crop of tomatoes, you have the first two requirements of a good vegetable canner.

The most practical way to pack tomatoes for processing (means cooking after putting into jars) is to press each layer of whole tomatoes with a wooden spoon until the juice runs out and fills the spaces, additional liquid is not needed. One teaspoon salt is usually added to each quart jar, but tomatoes keep just as well without it.

Use only fresh, firm, sound, fully-ripe tomatoes of a variety known to be satisfactory for canning. Do not can tomatoes from which decayed spots have been cut and be sure to cut out all of the core.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and other nationally accepted authorities on canning recommend that jars of tomatoes, even those advertised as sub-acid, be processed in boiling water. The utensil used for a canner should have a cover and be deep enough for water to cover tops of jars without boiling over.

A rack is needed to keep the bottoms of jars from touching the bottom of canner. Something which will do can usually be found in the kitchen wares section of a variety or hardware store. However, if you need to buy the whole works, it's better to shop for a regular water-bath container.

Some persons prefer to process tomatoes in a steam-pressure cooker or canner for 10 minutes at 5 pounds pressure, but the short time required for processing may not expel enough air from the jars to permit a vacuum seal.

The tomatoes should be packed in regular home canning jars. Examine them for nicks, chips and sharp edges for such flaws prevent sealing. Jars must be clean but do not need to be sterilized. The lids should be dropped into hot water and set aside until needed. It is best to follow the manufacturer's instructions on this procedure.

WHEN READY to can tomatoes, wash and drain them, then scald a few at a time in boiling water to loosen skins — this takes about ½ minute. If you have no blanching basket, put tomatoes in center of a square of a cheesecloth, gather up the four corners to make a "bag" and hold it in the boiling water. Dip tomatoes into cold water, cut out all the core, slip off the skin and drop tomato into jar. If too large to go through mouth of jar, cut tomato into halves or quarters — shake jar to settle pieces close together. Fill jar to ½ inch of top and carefully run a knife down between tomatoes and jar to bring up air bubbles.

Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band as tight as it will go without undue force. Process jars promptly by slowly lowering them into steaming — not boiling — water. Keep jars straight so entire bottom of each one will touch the water at the same instant. Put cover on canner, quickly bring water to boiling, and start to count processing time. Process pints 35 minutes, quarts 45 minutes. Remove jars from canner and stand them out of a draft and several inches apart to cool. Don't worry if tomatoes rise from the bottom of jar as they cool. Store the jars in a dark, dry place, and away from steam pipes or furnace. Never put a jar of canned food away until you know that it is sealed.

Hot Frijo-ly Bowl

HOT FRIJO-LY BOWL

¼ teaspoon chili powder
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (11½ ounces) condensed bean with bacon soup
1 soup can water
½ cup cooked whole kernel corn

In saucepan, cook onion with chili powder in butter until tender. Add soup, gradually blend in water. Add corn. Heat; stir now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Unsweetened frozen blackberries, blueberries, raspberries and strawberries are fine for jams. Your favorite supermarket probably has them in 20 ounce plastic bags. They come ready to use so you don't even need to defrost them. These berries require a little less sugar than fresh ones usually do. Jams made by the following recipe are soft but not runny and are ready to be sealed in jelly jars when only a small rim of syrup forms after a spoonful of hot jam is dropped onto a chilled saucer.

To make 1 to 1½ pints of blackberry, blueberry, raspberry or strawberry jam use:

2½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Put berries, sugar and lemon juice in preserving kettle. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Increase heat and boil mixture rapidly, stirring often, until jam thickens. Quickly, skim off foam and pour hot jam to 1/8 inch of top of half-pint, pint, or 12-ounce home canning jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. If it is to be stored for several weeks, process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath.

STRAWBERRY AND CRANBERRY JAM

If you like the flavor but not cloy sweetness of strawberry jam, this one is for you. The cranberries may be either fresh or unsweetened frozen. If using fresh cranberries, look for bright red ones.

To fill 3 or 4 half-pint jars use:

1 20-ounce bag of frozen unsweetened strawberries
1 heaping cup (about 1¼ cup) fresh or frozen unsweetened cranberries
2¾ cups sugar
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients in preserving kettle. Stir over moderate heat until sugar dissolves. Increase heat, and boil rapidly until cranberries burst and jam thickens. Quickly skim off foam and pour hot jam to 1/8 inch of top of jar. Wipe off anything spilled on top or threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. If it is to be stored several weeks, process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath.

APRICOT AND PINEAPPLE JAM

Can this one in those 8-ounce jelly jars which come fitted with pretty lids and you will be prepared when a small gift is needed.

For about 3 pints of jam use:

1 pound dried apricots
1 large, tart orange
2½ cups water
3½ cups sugar
1½ cups crushed pineapple
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground ginger

Rinse, drain and cut apricots into small pieces. Use sharp knife to remove thin yellow part of about half of the orange peel. Discard the other half of peel. Cut orange into small pieces. Cut peel from which yellow part of rind was removed into 3 or 4 pieces (these pieces are discarded before jam is canned). Cover apricots, orange and pieces of peel with the 2½ cups water. Let stand several hours or overnight. Put soaked fruit and liquid in preserving kettle. Add sugar, pineapple (do not drain off juice), salt, and ginger. Cook over moderate heat until sugar dissolves; then boil rapidly, stirring often, until mixture thickens. Do not overcook. Discard the organge peel. Skim off foam and pour hot jam to 1/8 inch of top of home canning jar. Wipe top and threads of jar. Put dome lid on jar; screw band tight. If it is to be stored several weeks, process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath.

Sunny Coffee Cake

Make A Good Day Better With Sunny Coffee Cake

If it's one of those mornings when you wake up happy and want to share your feelings with the rest of the world, make a coffee cake and invite friends over to enjoy it.

Sunny Coffe Cake is a moist and tender cake that is perfect for morning get-togethers. A delightful flavor prevails because orange-flavored instant breakfast drink is an ingredient in both the cake and the crumb topping. It tastes delicious with coffee, of course, but for those who might prefer a cold drink, serve it with chilled orange juice.

SUNNY COFFEE CAKE

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon instant breakfast drink—orange flavor
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup shortening
1 egg, well beaten
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon instant breakfast drink—orange flavor
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons chopped nuts

Sift flour with ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon instant breakfast drink, the baking powder, and salt. Cut in shortening. Combine egg and milk; add to flour mixture and mix only until flour is dampened. Spread half of batter in greased 8-inch square pan.

Mix 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon instant breakfast drink, and the cinnamon. Add bread crumbs and melted butter; toss lightly. Stir in nuts. Sprinkle half of crumb muxture over batter in pan. Spread remaining batter over crumb fixture in pan; top with remaining crumb mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for about 35 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm with butter, if desired. Makes 9 servings.

Alternate Baking Pan: Cake may also be baked in greased 9-inch square pan for about 30 minutes.

Bean Shopping Tip

When buying fresh snap beans look for a fresh, bright appearance with a good color for the yellow or green variety. Get young, tender beans with pods in a firm, crisp condition.

A good diet provides high quality protein for body growth and maintenance, as well as sufficient amounts of needed vitamins, minerals and essential fatty acids to support the body functions and supply needed energy.

Food For Schools

About 75 per cent of the food used in school lunch programs in the United States is bought by schools locally. The remainder is donated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Engineered foods are being introduced in the federal school lunch program. They include a fortified breakfast cake with creamed filling, a tectured soy protein product and high-protein macaroni. The cake is designed to be served with milk, and the other two products, in combination with meat or meat alternates.

Hot Ice Cream Treat

The baked Alaska with which President Nixon surprised his Russian hosts in Moscow wasn't the only hot ice cream around. The Dairy Research Digest, a trade publication, says a patent is pending on french fried ice cream.

Scoops of almost any flavor are treated to resist heat before they're fried for 15 to 20 seconds in coconut oil heated to 360 degrees. The confection reportedly emerges steaming but is edible almost immediately. When you bit into it, the cold ice cream mixes with the batter and makes it cool enough to eat.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Child's Emotional Development Important To Health

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital, in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed hospital, known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

There are a number of reasons for taking a young child to the doctor regularly during his first six years of life. Aside from inoculations to prevent childhood disease and visits to cure childhood disease it's very important the physician be given the chance to check a child's emotional as well as physical development.

Frank Rafferty, M.D., professor of child psychiatry at the University of Illinois Medical School thinks that many parents neglect visiting the pediatrician regularly after the first six months of their child's life.

"Children can show signs of emotional difficulty in the first few months of life," explained Dr. Rafferty, "but a parent doesn't always recognize the difficulty. If something unusual occurs — usually it would be a disturbance in eating, sleeping or motility patterns — the parent may consult the pediatrician who in turn suggests they wait and see what happens. The problem is that the parent doesn't always bring the child back within six months or a year. Consequently disturbances cannot be followed up on by the physician.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Rafferty something that expresses itself in one way at one age expresses itself differently at another age. "A lot of things develop in children for future use. Verbal skills develop rapidly in the 16 to 18 month old child and yet in some ways these verbal skills will not be tested to a considerable degree until he's 6 years old and starting school.

"His playing with other children may, in the meantime, be disturbed but no one is asking him to meet a minimum standard and some rather fantastic things get passed by.

"An example: I just saw a child whose parents noticed she was afraid of things as a 3-year-old. She was afraid of other children as a 4-year-old and fearful of school as a 6-year-old. She was afraid of aggressive behavior as a 7 and 8-year-old but all the way her parents just kept saying she's just a scaredy cat and they let it go until at age 13 she had a full-blown schizophrenic episode. No one thought of seeing a professional."

DR. RAFFERTY thinks it's very important for a physician to see a child when he reaches the age of 3. "Mentally retarded children need preschool education and if the retardation can be detected at 3, the child has a distinct advantage.

"Once a child gets into school," Dr. Rafferty continued, "he may have emotional problems which are related to his neighborhood or school district. We know, for instance, that a certain proportion of children will not be able to deal with the standard curriculum of the first grade. This doesn't mean that they're retarded or ill or slow but in terms of the complexity of development there are some children who won't be able to develop tasks presented to him in the first grade."

Dr. Rafferty believes that it is important for the psychiatrist to be involved in the school system so he can help the system find the crucial places for change intervention that would benefit the individual child.

Veterans' News

EDITOR's NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — MY UNCLE a veteran of World War I, needs domiciliary care. Is this care available at VA facilities?

A — Yes, VA has 16 of these facilities. Suggest you advise your uncle of this. Any VA office will help him file an application for this benefit.

Q — I WAS separated from service two years ago and wonder if I am eligible for a business loan?

A — No, unless your tour of duty included service during World War II or the Korean Conflict, and you did not use your business loan entitlement. While Congress provided this benefit for World War II and Korean Conflict veterans, it is not available to post Korean Conflict veterans and servicemen still on active duty.

Q — WHAT SHOULD I do if my VA benefit check does not arrive on time?

A — Two things. a) Wait long enough to be sure the mails have cleared. b) Write to the VA regional office which has your claim file, including your name if you're a veteran, or the deceased veteran's name if it is a death claim, and your claim number. Never write the Treasury Department, as this will only prolong the delay in receiving your check.

Social Security and You

Q — AS PRESIDENT of my local church group, people ask me questions on many subjects including social security. Because so many of the members are interested in social security, would it be possible to have someone speak to our group?

A — Yes, contact your local social security office. They will be happy to provide a speaker for your organization. If the group is in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Inverness, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows or Wheeling you can write to the Social Security Administration, 120 W. Eastman, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004. In Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Niles, Park Ridge and Rosemont, write Social Security Administration, 770 Lee St., Des Plaines, Ill. 60016. For other areas, call 239-7000 for information about your local office.

Q — I HAVE recently moved and am 23 years old. Do I have to report my change of address to Social Security?

A — Your change of adress does not have to be reported unless you are receiving monthly social security checks.

Q — I'M 66 and getting monthly social security retirement checks. I'm also working part time for a church nursery. Since the church has not decided to cover my part-time work by social security, can these earnings affect my monthly checks?

A — Yes, if your total earnings for the year go over $1,680. Earnings from any work, whether or not covered by social security, have to be included in figuring the amount of your earnings that may affect benefits due your for a year. However, income from savings, investments, pensions and insurance does not count.

Q — I'LL BE 65 near the end of this year and I'm planning to retire then. Since my earnings up to the time I retire will be well over $1,680, should I delay applying for retirement payments until early next year?

A — Definitely not. You should apply for payments about 3 months before your 65th birthday. Regardless of your earnings for the year, you can still get a social security payment for any month in which you neither earn $140 in wages nor perform substantial services in self-employment. You should also apply for Medicare protection before you are 65, whether or not you plan to retire.

Easy Livin' With Seafood

Assure your easy livin' this summer by taking advantage of this fish story. You'll win favor with family or guests when you serve Swiss Salmon, a new, easy-do recipe developed by the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries. Salmon steaks are combined with two other flavor favorites to create a taste sensation that will spark appetites, satisfy hunger, and have them coming back for seconds. This recipe requires only a little time to prepare — the salmon steaks are browned on each side until flaky, then warmed in the oven while the onions are cooked until tender and golden. While the onions cook, mix the third flavor ingredient, chicken stock base, with water and boil until the liquid is reduced, about 2 to 3 minutes. Serve the sauce over the salmon and onions and your easy-livin' entree is ready to enjoy.

When time is short there is always "Time For Seafood," a full-color recipe booklet developed especially for the homemaker in a hurry. Fish and shellfish are natural timesavers and the recipes in this booklet were chosen with the hurried homemaker in mind. For your copy, send 45 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 and ask for "Time For Seafood," Fishery Market Development Series No. 12.

SWISS SALMON

- 2 pounds salmon steaks, fresh or frozen
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup flour
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1½ cups coarsely chopped or thinly sliced onions
- 2 teaspoons chicken seasoned stock base
- ½ cup boiling water
- Lime wedges

Thaw frozen steaks. Sprinkle both sides of fish with salt and pepper. Roll in flour. Melt butter in a 12-inch fry pan. Place fish in a single layer in hot butter. Fry at a moderate heat for 4 to 5 minutes or until brown. Turn carefully. Fry 4 to 5 minutes longer or until fish are brown and flake easily when tested with a fork. Place fish on a platter in a warm oven. Cook onions in remaining butter in fry pan for 4 to 5 minutes or until golden brown. Place onions on top of fish. Dissolve chicken base in boiling water. Pour stock into hot fry pan and boil rapidly, stirring constantly, for 2 to 3 minutes or until sauce is reduced to 3 to 4 tablespoons. Pour sauce over onions. Serve with lime wedges. Makes 6 servings.

Curly Salad Greens

A green that deserves wider use is delicious escarole. It has a slightly bitter flavor, and crisp, broad, flat leaves with a rather frilly edge. Excellent served for itself, it makes a fine salad with a simple French dressing. It is also very good in a mixed green salad since its taste and texture are different from crisphead lettuce, the most popular salad green. Escarole is actually a straight-leaved endive.

Curly endive is another green that merits more attention. It looks like a handsome, curly fern and tastes very crisp and green. These crunchy-fresh greens are high in vitamin "A" and low in calories. A whole pound of endive, for instance, has only 90 calorias, so you can imagine that a single salad won't set you back much as far as your diet is concerned.

Cooking Bag Safety

The secret to successful, accident-free cooking in the new oven-cooking bags is: Follow the manufacturer's instructions.

Irene Downey, University of Illinois assistant professor of foods, pointed out that cooking meat in the new bags and wraps helps eliminate the mess that generally accompanies oven-roasting. However, the new bags have been known to burst in use. But that need not happen. Where problems have occurred, the user ignored the instructions, according to Food and Drug Administration(FDA) investigations.

For safe and proper use of oven bags and wraps, the FDA and the manufacturers offer these suggestions:

—To help protect against bag bursting and release of hot fats and juices, coat the inside of the bag or wrap with one tablespoon of flour. This is not necessary if a seasoning or sauce mix accompanies the bag.

Use the bag in a pan that is large enough to contain the entire bag and is at least two inches deep. It's important that the pan be deep enough to hold all liquids that may be released during cooking.

Follow instructions on the package. For instance, manufacturers advise that you "vent" the bag by poking a few small holes in the top of it. This practice allows excess steam to escape.

Although remote, oven mishaps can occur with any type of oven cooking. In the heat and leave the oven door closed.

Five Little Words

Five little words could add so much to our nutrition when it comes to serving snacks.

The five little words are "Have a piece of fruit."

Fresh fruits are vitamin and mineral foods according to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Assn. They give a feeling of refreshment and well-being with their light textures and delicate flavors.

Naturally sweet fruits satisfy the appetite without depressing it for main meals to come. They are great for an energy pick-up that doesn't squander a calorie budget, carefully planned to avoid gaining weight.

Check seasonal fruits as they come and go in the market, fresh and juicy. Put them into the refrigerator in a regular place for the family to look for snacks. You'll have the satisfaction of knowing that good nutrition is being well-observed at your house.

Leftover Pork Teams With Fruit

An unusual dish using leftover roast pork includes a cereal such as groats, bulgar or brown rice, and red cherries. This is a hearty dish to serve with a salad, a homemade bread and fruit for dessert. It makes a different casserole for summer pitchins.

PORK WITH CHERRIES

- 1 cup buckwheat groats, coarse Kasha, bulgar or brown rice
- ½ cup butter
- 1 tablespoon liquid gravy seasoning and browning sauce
- 2½-3 cups diced roast pork
- 1 cup chopped onions
- 1 one-pound can sour red pitted cherries, drained*
- 1 pint dairy sour cream
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- Ginger

Saute the cereal in half the butter. Mix liquid gravy seasoning and browning sauce with 2 cups of water and pour over cereal. Bring to a boil, cover and cook over low heat until tender, about 30 minutes. Turn cereal into a shallow baking dish, spread with the diced pork. Saute onion in remaining butter, stir in cherries, sour cream, bouillon cube dissolved in a little hot water and ginger to taste (usually about ½ teaspoon). Spoon this mixture over the cereal and pork layers. Bake in a preheated moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 35 minutes. Makes 5 to 6 servings.
